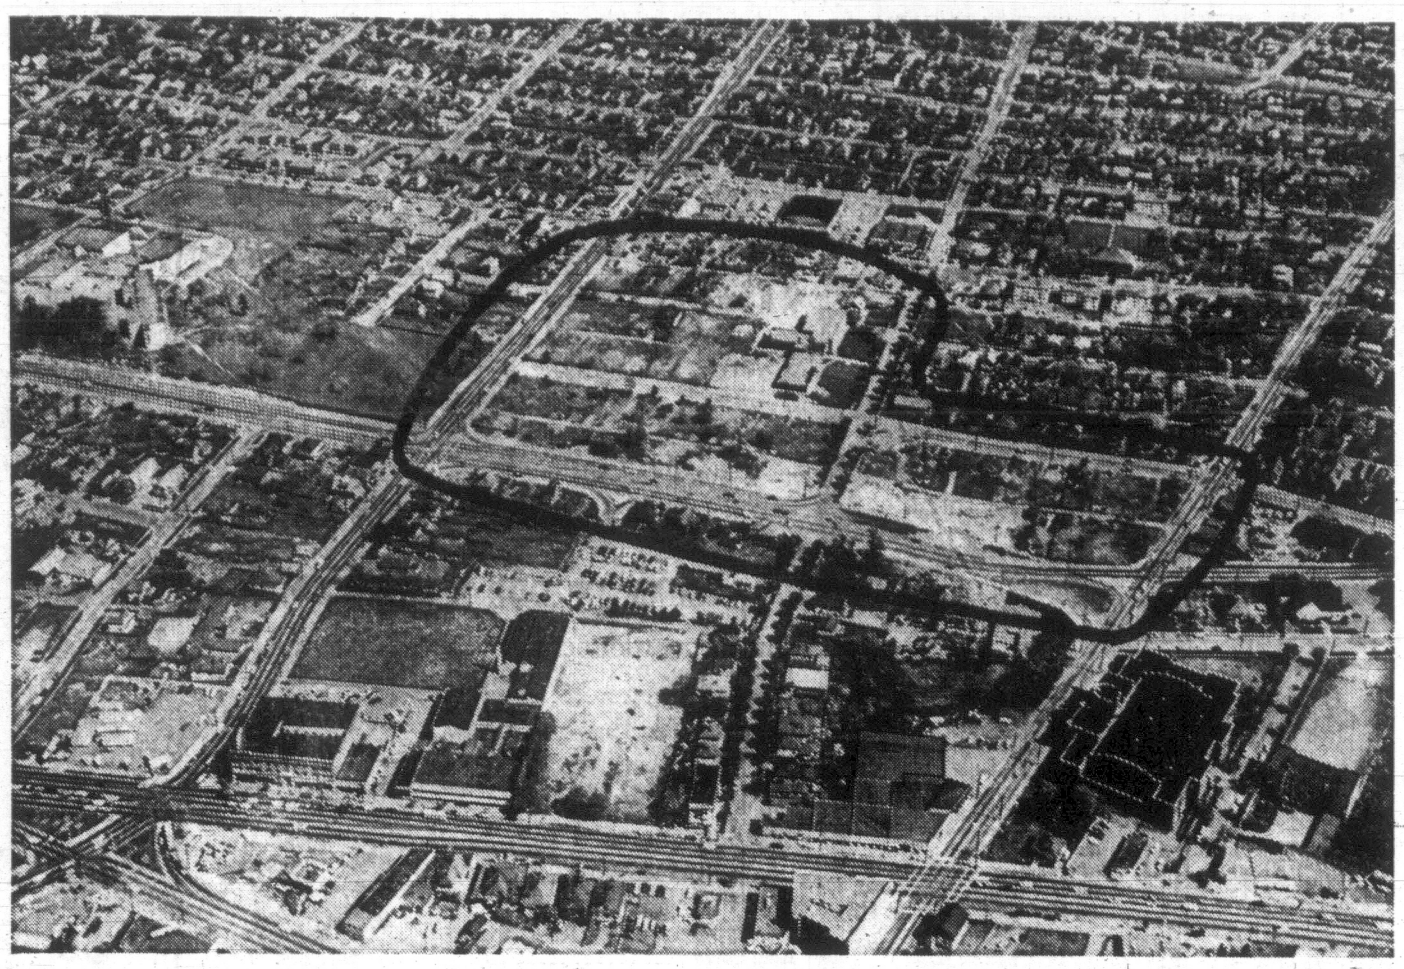
85th Year, No. 259 ★★ VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1969—52 PAGES PRICE: 10 CENTS WEEKEND 15 CENTS



MORE THAN THREE YEARS AGO Victoria city council unveiled its great scheme to transform a section of the Rose-Blanshard area from a semi-slum to a modern housing development. The area, outlined in symbolic black, has been plagued with delays since its inception. The latest delay comes from Minister of Transport Paul Hellyer, who is finding it difficult to place his required signature on contract papers. The old houses have gone, some with a great deal of heartache, and the Rose-Blanshard area stands vacant waiting, hopefully, for the scratch of a pen. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

City Housing Plan Facing Roadblock

Problem of Tender Blamed by Hellyer

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

As a result the $2.4-million scheme which should have seen the construction of 180 housing units start last fall could now be delayed indefinitely.

Interviewed by telephone from Ottawa this morning, Transport Minister Hellyer agreed he had not yet signed the documents required before local contractor George Wheaton can start construction.

And he indicated it might be some time before he did sign.

"The matter was brought to my attention yesterday, or maybe it was the day before, by David Groos," Hellyer said.

"The problem lies in the fact the authorities (in Victoria) did not take the low tender but took the fourth low tender.

"The head office (of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation) and myself are now trying to satisfy ourselves that this is in the best interests of the public taxpayer."

Due in Vancouver to inspect another urban renewal site Thursday, Hellyer was asked if city authorities and the contractor could expect a statement at that time.

"I had not planned to make a statement in Vancouver," Hellyer answered. "We shall be discussing the problem on the way out, but at this time I don't expect to make any announcement."

BID ACCEPTED

Asked if he would be visiting Victoria to discuss the situation with local officials Hellyer answered "no."

The Hellyer stall has thrown city officials and the Wheaton contracting firm into a state of bewildered anxiety.

Wheaton's bid has been accepted by provincial and municipal elected officials and by the technical experts at provincial, municipal and federal levels.

It awaits only the signature of Hellyer.

While the delay causes city planning officials concern it could cost Wheaton a severe cash loss unless a decision is made to go ahead within the next few days.

When the proposals for the housing units were submitted CMHC inserted a clause stating that the bid prices must be good for 60 days.

That 60-day time limit expired 10 days ago.

In the contracting business that means that every price increase in materials or labor

RIVER DIPS, HOPES RISE IN LUMSDEN

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — The Qu'Appelle River dropped slightly here today and there was hope in this town of about 875 residents that the worst danger from flooding has passed.

About 350 flood fighters working through the night kept sandbag dikes at least a foot above the swollen river that has been menacing the valley town for more than a week.

Today the complement of flood fighters, which has risen at times above the 1,000-mark, was reduced to 100, with another 100 standing by in case of need.

The beleaguered community 17 miles northwest of Regina was not, however, completely out of the woods.

DANGER NOT GONE

"While things look bright and rosy, we still have about three or four days when we will be very vulnerable."

The forecast today was for continued sunny weather with very light winds.

Stan Blackwell of the Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission said it appeared that the peak flow was reached last night at Lumsden.

"Today," he said, "There has been a drop of about a third of an inch."

The higher flows are moving downstream from Lumsden to a point where the spring runoff is expected to split and lose much of its impact.

EXODUS CONTINUES

Spring floods have caused eight deaths in Minnesota and damage was more than $5,000,000 in five states.

In parts of Minnesota and North Dakota, where swollen rivers already have overflowed, residents braced for possible showers and further inundation.

Spy Plane Downing 'Deliberate Murder'

South Korea Calling For Retaliatory Action

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

President Nixon conferred today with his top advisers to discuss what action, if any, can be taken against Communist North Korea for shooting down an unarmed United States reconnaissance plane—an incident described by one official as "deliberate murder".

The national security council has convened at the White House.

Meanwhile, in Seoul, South Korean Defence Minister Chung Sik Yim met Tuesday with top military officials and issued a statement denouncing "this barbarous act committed by North Korea in defiance of international law."

Both the ruling Democratic Party and opposition groups in South Korea demanded immediate retaliatory action by the U.S. A spokesman for the Democratic Republic Party said that "immediate and resolute retaliatory action would prevent a recurrence of a third, fourth or fifth incident of such gravity."

"We will closely watch what the Nixon administration is going to do about this preposterous act of provocation."

The opposition New Democratic Party urged the U.S. to "do away with its past lukewarm attitude to put an end to North Korean impudence once and for all."

'CONCERTED' ACTION

Foreign ministry sources in Seoul reportedly said that South Korea may ask the U.S. for "concerted" retaliatory action.

These sources said that the latest incident is more serious than the Pueblo because it represents "a deliberate and explicit act of provocation" indicating a possible larger Communist shift of emphasis from Vietnam to the Korean Peninsula.

Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi told a Socialist questioner in the Japanese Diet that the North Korean action in shooting down the plane "goes beyond defensive measures."

A U.S. embassy spokesman said that the U.S. will give a "categorical" assurance to the Japanese government that the plane did not go closer than 40 nautical miles to "North Korean territory."

AVAILABLE EVIDENCE

The U.S. defence department said all available evidence indicates North Korea shot down the EC-121 aircraft with its crew of 31.

The department said there apparently are no survivors.

"All evidence now available to us, including North Korean claims and debris sightings, leads us to believe that the aircraft was shot down by North Korean aircraft," the statement said.

ABM Foes Now Seeking Nuclear Freeze

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON (WP) — The opponents of the anti-ballistic missile system are expanding their objectives to include a freeze on deployment of all offensive and defensive nuclear weapons by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, one of the leading Republican critics of the ABM, disclosed Tuesday that he will propose that a ban on further production and emplacement of nuclear weapons "be placed at the top of the agenda" of expected U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

Percy told a group of newsmen he will detail his proposal in a speech Thursday at State College, Pa. A similar suggestion was offered last Saturday by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, another ABM critic.

By broadening their objective, the anti-ABM forces appear to be trying to diffuse the partisan heat that has built up on the president's recommendation for deployment of the Safeguard system.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Criminal Court Judge Arthur C. Faquin Jr. today set May 26 as the date for a hearing to determine whether James Earl Ray will be tried again for the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Taxes Increased

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A $4,500,000 tax increase was unveiled in today's Newfoundland budget, including a five-per-cent increase in the province's rate of personal income tax, a one-per-cent boost in the 12-per-cent corporation tax and a new business tax.

Arab Guerrilla Groups Renew Demand for War

By The Associated Press

Five Arab guerrilla organizations have rejected King Hussein's six-point Middle East peace proposal and renewed their demand for war against Israel.

The guerrillas, who long have sworn to fight until Israel is destroyed, rejected "each and every point" in the plan Hussein outlined in a speech in Washington last week. They also rejected all other plans for a political settlement with Israel.

The Jordanian monarch, who said he spoke for President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt as well as for Jordan, called for Israel's withdrawal from Arab territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. His other points included a guarantee of the "territorial inviolability" of all Middle Eastern states, use of the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba by Israeli shipping, an end to Arab warfare against Israel and an equitable settlement of the claims of Arab refugees from Palestine.

Hussein said Sunday in New York that a "majority" of the Arabs, including the guerrillas, would accept a peace settlement negotiated on the basis of his six points. With many of the guerrillas now operating from bases in Jordan, and support for them increasing among the hundreds of thousands of refugees in Hussein's kingdom, the repudiation of his peace overture constitutes a grave new threat to the young monarch.

Israel already had called on Hussein to make his proposals at face-to-face negotiations with the Israelis if he were serious.

Leaders of the five major Palestinian resistance groups held a secret meeting Monday and later issued a joint statement in Amman, the Jordanian capital, rejecting the king's proposal. They said they had agreed on a "unified course of action"—to send delegations to a number of Arab governments seeking clear definition of their attitude toward plans for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

PAY HIKES COME OUT FOR CIVIL SERVANTS

About 5,000 Greater Victoria workers were to learn about their pay increases at quitting time today.

The provincial civil service commission was to announce the breakdown for distributing $6.5 million in this year's budget for pay boosts to the 23,000 B.C. government employees.

Retroactive to April 1, the boosts will average about 7 per cent but there are expected to be wide individual variations.

LAUNCHES TIRADE AGAINST . . .

Bennett Sharpens Vote Claws on Berger

. . . THOSE 'GODLESS' SOCIALISTS

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett Tuesday called for a political holy war against the NDP in his strongest indication yet that he will call an election this year.

Bennett asked all British Columbians who are federal Liberals and Conservatives or "CCF reformers" to join a Social Credit crusade against the "Godless socialists" and "labor bosses" he claimed took over the NDP with selection of Tom Berger as its leader.

The premier also said it remains to be seen whether Berger ever will sit in the legislature as leader of the opposition because he could suffer personal defeat in a general election before the next session.

Berger shot back that he expects an election this year and is sure it will bring the NDP to power with a 36-seat majority.

"I think the premier should hustle up to Kelowna and make sure he's going to come back himself before he begins to suggest anyone else is not going to come back," said Berger.

He said last weekend's NDP convention had a bigger impact than expected "and the premier obviously has blown his cool.

"But the premier has no right to cast reflections on the religious convictions of 15,000 members of the New Democratic Party or the quarter of a million people of this province who voted for us (in 1966)," he said.

The exchanges came in back-to-back interviews which showed both party leaders were in a go-for-broke mood following the NDP convention in Vancouver last weekend which gave Berger the leadership by a 4 per cent margin.

Berger came to Victoria to take over the opposition leader's office in the Legislative Buildings and announce he was winding up his law practice to devote full time to his political duties.

Bennett, who personally staked out the NDP convention by conveniently holding a minor family reunion in the same hotel, touched off the electioneering crossfire.

He vehemently denied he had seen Robert Bonner on his Vancouver trip to discuss the timing for severing the former attorney-general's last links with public life.

He said rumors that Bonner, who left cabinet last summer to become executive vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel, would drop out as MLA for Cariboo next month—due either to resignation or a general election call — "are without an essence of truth."

But Bennett shifted a religious query which began the interview into his favorite election platform theme—portrayal of Social Credit as the population's saviour from anti-church socialism.

The premier was asked for comment on a Vancouver school board decision to request the cabinet to abolish the mandatory religious exercises in classrooms comprising daily Bible readings and the Lord's Prayer.

"It's the law of the province and personally I'm not in favor of changing it," Bennett said.

"We are a Christian society," he responded when asked about the feelings of Buddhists, Jews and other religious minorities whose children also are in the classrooms.

"But," he added with sudden passion, "there are forces all around that are trying to break down our Christian principles."

Bennett said society now is "reaping the whirlwind" in breakdown of moral fibre and family life sown by atheists and such things as "progressive" education.

"These people who believe in the socialist no-God theory —that's what I oppose," he cried across his desk. "These Godless socialists are all around."

A startled reporter asked if he meant the NDP.

"Certainly," snapped Bennett.

"We've seen how a socialist state like Russia drives out the Church."

(In a press release today, Berger said he supports the Vancouver school board's request because the mandatory classroom recitations make "a meaningless ritual of religion and religion is too important a part of life to allow that to happen."

(Referring to "Premier Bennett's hysterical outburst" describing socialists as Godless, Berger said "he obviously has decided that he wants to run against the Devil at the next election.")

●

Bennett was asked by reporters how he felt about Berger facing him in the legislature as Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, in view of his statements about Godless socialists.

"He might not get elected personally," the premier snapped.

'The Better Life'

It's: "The Better Life."

The watch phrase of the Social Credit government in the last few years had been "the dynamic society." Bennett told a news conference today "we now see the dividends coming for the better life."

The dynamic society was marked with intensive construction of highways, bridges and electric power developments throughout the province.

Beginning this year and going into the 1970s "the emphasis will be on the better life," which the premier described as the results of the dynamic society.

There's many a slip twixt th' blueprint an' th' housewarmin'.

Biafran War Talks Open

Breakthrough Chances Slim As New Fighting Flares Up

By IAN LAVAL

LAGOS (Reuters) — Six African heads of state meet in the Liberian capital of Monrovia Thursday in a third attempt to halt the civil war between federal Nigeria and secessionist Biafra.

The six leaders, members of a consultative mission set up by the Organization of African Unity, will open the third peace bid in 18 months amid a new flare-up of fighting between the two sides.

But with no sign of changes in federal Nigerian and Biafran positions since the last direct peace negotiations in Addis Ababa, observers here were reluctant to predict any breakthrough at Monrovia.

Month-long talks between federal and Biafran representatives in the Ethiopian capital, arranged at a meeting of the same OAU committee in Niamey, Niger Republic, collapsed in September, 1968.

Federal leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon has since maintained his demand that Biafra must renounce the secession it declared nearly two years ago and must hold talks on a permanent solution before a ceasefire.

Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu demands a ceasefire before talks, but is faced with critical pressure on his capital of Umuahia from federal troops who have advanced to within shelling range of the city.

The OAU committee mandate, approved at the organization's Kinshasa summit in 1967, will seek peace in terms of Nigerian unity—a mandate which has brought the OAU repeated criticism from Biafra.

The committee comprises Liberia, The Congo, Cameroun, Niger, Ghana and Ethiopia, with Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie as chairman. Its first meeting was held in Lagos in November, 1967, and its second at Niamey in July, 1968.

Gowon has announced he will send a six-man team to Monrovia headed by Femi Okunnu, federal works and housing commissioner.

Firm Fined $2,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Advance Market Research was fined a total of more than $2,000 Tuesday in a test case under British Columbia's Consumer Protection Act. The fines came after the company failed to return a vacuum cleaner and floor polisher, that a couple had traded in, after they repudiated a contract to buy a new vacuum cleaner.

"Even the people in Burrard will have to have a new look" at Berger after the "I won't say purge" of Robert Strachan as NDP leader by union delegates, Bennett said with a broad smile.

"No wonder Strachan used, it appeared to me anyway, every effort right to the last second to stop Berger.

"He's not one-quarter as good as Strachan because Strachan had a broader base.

"Strachan, to give him credit, in accordance with his own statements as I understand them, resisted the strong efforts of the labor bosses but the labor bosses have taken over (the NDP)," said Bennett.

"So it's a new ball game now.

"All those old CCFers who wanted social reform rather than state socialism, don't belong in the NDP anymore.

"They should realize that Social Credit is the reform movement within the free enterprise structure.

"It's because we're reformers that we have so many critics — and also so many supporters.

"So I invite NDP supporters who are not state socialists to support us and I also invite those who are federal Liberals and Conservatives to support us."

Bennett said "only a few illustrations of our reforms" are the home-owner and home-acquisition grants, take-over of B.C. Electric to develop public power "which is entirely different from telephones that don't develop resources—anyone who would take over B.C. Telephone has a buzzing in his mind."

Bennett said the perpetual funds to help Indians, foreign nations, culture and physical fitness "all without tax increases" are recent reforms and the Socred administration now is in the forefront of efforts to establish a negative income tax system as the reform of the future.

"All people of good will, who don't want special privileges, should support Social Credit reforms and vote for us when the next election comes.

"People said we wouldn't elect anyone in 1952 but last time (1966) they said we would get too big a majority and they may be saying now that we're collapsing—but that's just stupid," said Bennett.

Berger told reporters, "If the premier is saying in his usual inscrutable style that he is about to call an election, that's fine with me. I'm ready to go anytime.

"But the premier isn't going to be able to use the same old bag of tricks anymore.

"If he's against state socialism, then he's against B.C. Hydro, against B.C. Ferries and against the PGE because all these represent state socialism.

"I'm in favor of them and I hadn't realized the premier is against B.C. Hydro, the ferries or PGE and I confess I'm surprised to hear it."

"We in the NDP also believe there is an important place for free enterprise in our economy but we want to see that it is free and enterprising.

ACCORDING to rumors in Montreal, Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal Party leader, may be replaced by Robert Bourassa, 35-year-old economist lawyer and MLA. Bourassa is said to be favored as the only man "to offer an alternative to Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's nationalism and Rene Levesque's separatism. Bourassa has denied intentions to replace Lesage.

B.C. Girl 'Welcome' In Australia

CANBERRA (CP-Reuters) — The immigration department announced Wednesday that Donaleen Fong, Vancouver girl of partial Chinese extraction, will be permitted to come to Australia because her sweetheart is here.

The department made the announcement two days after immigration Minister Billy Snedden said he would consider sympathetically any application for admission by Miss Fong, who says she was told she could not come to Australia because she is non-caucasian.

The immigration department said it has received no application from Miss Fong.

Cambodia Chief To Re-Establish U.S. Relations

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state said today he will resume diplomatic relations with the United States now that the U.S. government has recognized Cambodia's frontiers.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk said charges d'affaires will be exchanged, a step short of exchanging ambassadors again.

South Vietnam meanwhile said it was "ready to reconsider" its frontier problems with Cambodia.

A communique from the South Vietnamese foreign ministry lauded the statement last Saturday in which the U.S. government said it recognizes "the sovereignty, independence, neutrality and territorial integrity of the kingdom of Cambodia within its present frontiers."

Relations between South Vietnam and Cambodia were broken off after Ngo Dinh Diem became president in 1955.

As the pace of the Vietnam war picked up, Cambodia accused U.S. and South Vietnamese forces of repeatedly violating its border, while the United States and South Vietnam accused Cambodia of giving sanctuary to Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops. Cambodia broke relations with the U.S. in 1965.

After years of denying and minimizing the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia, Sihanouk recently expressed alarm at their build-up in his country.

costs from this point on must be absorbed by Wheaton — unless he excercises his rights and withdraws his bid.

Contacted this morning, Wheaton said he could hang on a little longer but added that he wasn't sure how long.

"None of the sub-trades have yet threatened to pull out, but several of them are getting anxious," Wheaton said. "They can't sit by forever and keep their prices firm.

"As far as I am concerned we can hang on, but there is a limit to how long. With the prices of lumber and plywood increasing so sharply we have cause for very serious concern."

Wheaton added that the simple solution would be to pull the bid "but I have a feeling that's what Hellyer would like."

Should the lack of a decision from Hellyer force the pulling of the Wheaton bid the province, city and local office of CMHC would be right back where they were in the fall of 1968—calling for proposals from contractors.

When the first call went out last year five firms submitted designs and costs.

They were: Dawson Developments of Vancouver, $2,039,000 for 180 units; Norwood Construction, Burnaby, $2,343,847, 179 units; Allied Developments, Vancouver, $2,345,628, 181 units; George Wheaton, Victoria, $2,463,000 for 184 units and J. M. McLaren Construction, $2,825,000 for 173 units.

Toe-Tapping Protest Marches on Ottawa

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill has seen many a protest demonstration, but for rollicking good fun few have matched Wednesday's display for the Don Messer television show.

To protest the CBC decision to cancel the Halifax-based old-time fiddling show (see page 35), demonstrators turned out with their appropriate weapons—fiddles, guitars and dancing shoes.

There were placards, too, but few people noticed them.

Graham Townsend, three-time North American fiddling champion, led the protestors with a toe-tapping version of the Don Messer Breakdown. Carol Kennedy, an attractive violinist from Avonmore, Ont., played beside him. Ed Press of Ottawa strummed his guitar, and Gilles Roy of Cumberland, Ont., step-danced under the Peace Tower.

It was a swinging protest.

Frank Bassile of Beirut, Lebanon, marched with a placard that said Old Time Music Is For Us.

"I love Don Messer," he said. "We used to hear him on radio in Beirut.

"I will stay here as long as I have to."

"The Negroes in the United States fight for their rights," said Mr. Townsend. "We in Canada must fight for the Don Messer Show. The young generation at the CBC wants to kill it."

Without missing a step, Mr. Roy said he was representing French-Canadians, particularly in the Gaspe area "who will die if they lose Don Messer."

A light drizzle fell on Mr. Townsend's violin as he rattled off his protest numbers, but he didn't seem to mind.

At one stage they were joined by Don Gilchrist, an Ottawa step-dancer who has appeared on the Messer show. He is on the Commons maintenance staff.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The ridge of high pressure over the interior which has protected western B.C. from migrating Pacific storms is moving eastward to the Rockies allowing a moist flow of air to penetrate the coast. Rain spreading down the coast will reach the lower mainland by this evening with a band of intermittent rain crossing the interior overnight tonight. Showers will be general over the coastal areas on Thursday with cloudy skies over the interior.

The Weather and You

By Carl Riblet Jr.

It appears that nothing can get away from the effects of weather. Everything from the granite blocks of a building to a life-saving drug are affected by cold, heat, wind, rain, snow and wind. For example, the effect of weather change on digitalis, a drug long in widespread used in treating heart disease, is well known to laboratories.

Years ago, laboratories discovered that equal doses of digitalis from the same batch showed day-to-day differences in potency. Tests on animals came up with the finding that doses of digitalis had to be increased to be effective when rain and storms were prevalent.

Some weather scientists believe that weather acts like a stress on your body, and stress may tend to affect the ability of various membranes to absorb drugs into the blood stream. the doctors say they don't know why.

British to Get Strike-Curb Law

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government today challenged Britain's trade unions with a pledge to ram strike-curbing legislation through Parliament as soon as possible.

Government sources said Wilson hopes to do so before Parliament's summer recess, regardless of opposition from trade unions and the governing Labor Party's left wing lawmakers.

Mrs. Barbara Castle, minister for employment and productivity, told the House main provisions of the bill would be:

- Powers for the government to order a 28-day cooling off period in case of wildcat strikes. Workers or employers defying the order could be subjected to a fine but not to jail sentences.
- Statutory right of every worker to belong to a trade union.
- Disputes between trade unions to be submitted first to the Trades Union Congress (TUC) for mediation and then to the government's newly established Industrial Relations Board.

Mrs. Castle said the bill will not contain provisions calling for a ballot before a strike.

Tornado's Death Toll Hits 1,000

DACCA (AP) — The stench of death hung over villages on the outskirts of this East Pakistan capital today as rescue workers dug out more bodies and the estimated death toll in Monday's killer tornado rose to 1,000.

More than 500 persons were killed in the industrial suburb of Demra alone.

Hospitals sent out an urgent appeal for blood donors. Doctors and nurses struggled to cope with a continuous flood of thousands of injured. Students of Dacca University went into the countryside in trucks and helped troops bring back piles of bodies wrapped in white sheets.

The tornado moved in late Monday afternoon from the Bay of Bengal and just missed Dacca, a city famous for its many ancient mosques. The twister first hit Demra, then roared on into the countryside, leaving a trail of destruction through 30 villages.

Electric power flickered on and off Tuesday night as engineers tried to cope with damaged power lines. There was a severe shortage of drinking water in many areas. Fifteen relief camps were opened in hardest hit districts to supply food, medicine and cash. President Agha Yahya Khan ordered 1,000,000 rupees—$218,000—made available for relief work.

'I WOULD HAVE DIED IF I STAYED'

GOLDEN (CP) — John Gow, his face smashed and bruised, lay on a hospital bed Tuesday and said: "I wanted to live . . . if I stayed I would have died."

The 22-year-old professional guide in Alberta's Banff National Park told how he stumbled through treacherous Rocky Mountain terrain for five days in a desperate bid to reach safety after a plane crash in a mountain canyon 15 miles northwest of here and some 160 miles west of Calgary.

Early Tuesday, Gow stumbled dazed and incoherent with hunger, pain and exhaustion into the arms of a lumber company employee on a forestry road 17 miles west of Golden.

Gow said the ordeal started only 10 minutes after takeoff in their small plane "when we went into the valley to look for new climbing sites."

"All of a sudden Bernie made a sharp turn and we began to fall."

Unable to find flares or even a match with which to build a signal fire and aware of the danger of freezing, Gow began to struggle towards the lip of the valley.

"I didn't think I had a chance if I stayed. I was bleeding pretty badly and we had cracked up in a thick grove of trees and I could hardly see the sky."

Search aircraft had gone over the valley more than 20 times without spotting the plane.

Clad in a heavy down coat, light summer slacks and heavy boots, Gow soon ran into trouble in the deep snow.

"Every step I took I sank up to my waist and I soon became soaked."

He managed to fashion a crude pair of snow shoes from pine boughs.

By nightfall he had stumbled to the lip of the valley and through eyes half-blinded by weariness and blood from deep facial cuts he could see far to the south the glimmering lights of Golden.

Gow finally came across an old forestry road and from there the going was easier but hunger began to gnaw at his stomach.

"I tried to eat leaves to stay alive," he said, "but they only made me sick."

Gow said every step was painful as he stumbled along the road, unwilling to stop. He said he saw "lots of planes" circling overhead but had no way of contacting them.

•

"I wasn't even looking for the downed plane. I thought it had crashed mlies away," Gzillinger-Horvath said.

"I had just wandered up to see how deep the snow was. I was just ready to turn back when I saw him."

More Revolts Hit Prisons

In Ivrea, near Turin, 50 convicts went on a hunger strike, squatting in the prison yard all night. The only woman in the jail also refused food but remained in her cell, the first woman convict to take part in the series of mutinies that started Saturday.

Another revolt hit the prison in Bari Tuesday, on the heel of the Italian boot. About 150 prisoners set fire to the informary and the tailor shop, but police finally herded them back to the cells.

Other prisons rang with shouts of solidarity for the rioters who wrecked prisons at Turin and Milan before they were forced to surrender. More than 2,000 of these rioters were transferred in chains and handcuffs to some 20 other jails across the country, creating tinderbox situations in their new lodging places.

The prison revolts started at Turin Saturday after a false rumor that guards had killed three prisoners. But for months prisoners have demanded a revision of the penal code; bigger, warmer and cleaner cells; better food and more fresh air. News of the Turin outbreak fed unrest at other jails.

WRECK A COMPOUND

More than 1,300 prisoners rioted at Milan's San Vittorio prison Sunday and Monday, damaging much of the compound beyond repair. A riot in the Genoa prison involved only about 50 men and lasted only a few hours.

Government officials and prison wardens took a new look at proposals for prison reform.

The Waiting Game

ONE OF THE STRONGEST reasons for continuing the Paris talks on a Vietnam peace is the negative one that there isn't apparently anything better in sight to do. What little comfort can be derived from that idea is now bolstered by hints that secret talks are being conducted between the United States and North Vietnam. But it seems that the chief basis for this belief—apart from wishful thinking—is that neither side has denied the rumors, and that is pretty tenuous evidence. A surprise offer by the South Vietnamese government to confer privately with the Viet Cong has been loudly and scornfully rejected by the latter. The Viet Cong still do not seek to dicker with the Saigon government: they seek only to destroy it.

After three months of sessions it seems clear that so far the Communists have put the Paris meetings to considerable use — but not for negotiation. The chief use — and the United States has also indulged —appears to be as a propaganda platform, an arm of the fighting machines in Vietnam, a lure to encourage concessions, a pawn in an endless Asian waiting game. None of these uses has been productive so far as ending the war is concerned. The bombing halt is still in effect, the Hanoi forces observe the reciprocal halt on city attacks just enough to avoid breaking American patience, the large-scale fighting has been reduced to more localized engagements even though the death toll on both sides continues its sickening rise.

What was the real purpose of the North Vietnamese in entering upon the Paris talks? They have gained the benefit of a respite from escalation of the American war effort. Although some other factors are also involved, any plans to increase the American troop concentration in Vietnam have been put in abeyance; considering the climate at home it appears good policy to give Paris a full opportunity to produce. The talk in Washington, indeed, is of bringing a few troops home.

This sort of stalemate has a time limit. At some point President Nixon will be charged with losing the initiative or even ignoring the war. He will then have to impose a positive policy — of build-up overseas, of retrenchment, of some entirely new and decisive gambit at the conference table. The North Vietnamese public may be expected to wait indefinitely, the South Vietnamese population perhaps to endure indefinitely, but the United States people — impatient, politically minded and thoroughly disillusioned about the war — will not abide an overly prolonged stall. That, after all, may be the deliberate strategy of the Hanoi leaders. But though they may count on a change at some point, they cannot be sure of what that change will be.

Don't Sell Everything

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE Lornex Mining Corporation that it has signed an agreement to ship copper concentrates from British Columbia's Highland Valley to Japan for processing is part of a growing trend in the industry. The immediate benefits of such arrangements are undeniable. Mines are able to go into production with financing they would otherwise be hard-pressed to obtain. Nevertheless, the trend should be cause for some concern.

To what extent should the province allow its basic resources to be shipped for treatment abroad? When we rightly impose curbs on export of raw logs and reject suggestions for export of our water, it is difficult to make a case for permitting minerals to be sold abroad if profitable processing is at all possible.

This is a question which the province of Ontario has considered for some time and just recently faced up to. In future, Mines Minister Allan Lawrence announced the other day, most mining companies in Ontario will be required to build smelters themselves or make arrangements with other Ontario processing plants.

Explaining the new policy, Mr. Lawrence said: "We are trying to insure that our resources will be utilized and provide employment and security for Canadians first." That is a worthy objective, and one that should be given greater consideration now in British Columbia. At the present time this province is losing the opportunity for full benefits from its resources. The Lornex contract with Japanese smelters is for 12 years, which should emphasize the need for action soon before more of our basic mineral resources are relinquished without full advantage accruing to our own working force.

Los Angeles—in Black and White

DOMESTIC POLITICAL ANALysts in California have defined the Los Angeles mayoralty runoff election in terms of black and white. Far out in front in the April 1 primary was Thomas Bradley, described as the tall, soft-spoken Negro city councilman who left incumbent Mayor Samuel Yorty a distant second. In the May 27 runoff, he has the chance to become the first black mayor of Los Angeles. But, say the pulse-takers, Los Angeles isn't ready for a black mayor.

The consensus appears to be that only the criterion of color can defeat the councilman, who shrewdly established his appeal for a coalition vote of black, Mexican-American, labor and liberal Democrat supporters in the primary. Victory would create a precedent for the state and place him in company with Carl B. Stokes of Cleveland and Richard Hatcher of Gary, Indiana, who have already proved that Negroes can be elected to chief civic office in big cities.

The issue, and it will be hard-fought, is of concern far beyond the extensive limits of Los Angeles. While the campaign continues, international interest will focus on the outcome, seeking an answer to the question: Can the city that experienced the Watts riots rise high above the color bar? Councilman Bradley could give the encouraging reply.

When Lumber Is Too High

COQUITLAM CONTRACTOR Ray Spani has delivered a timely warning to the lumber industry of British Columbia. If it costs too much to build a house of wood, he says, builders will seek an alternative. He is studying the economics of concrete construction.

There are many advantages to wooden homes, including warmth, but if, as Mr. Spani argues, the price of them puts a house of native forest products out of reach, a substitute will be found. As he points out, various other materials are coming into use and human inventiveness will produce more.

Already, because of the high price of wood products, some major buildings have been erected without recourse to the usual lumber used at various stages in even steel and masonry construction. The trend could grow and be applied to homes. The warning is timely.

'Bugs' Knocking Out the Nuclear Reactor

The Douglas Point Nuclear Generating Station on Lake Huron, cradle of Canada's multi-billion dollar hopes in the atomic energy field, is out of commission again this time because of a serious failure in its reactor fuelling equipment. The trouble appears to be purely mechancial and can be fixed, but it will take perhaps two months to do it and the breakdown inevitably puts another question mark over the natural uranium, heavy water nuclear reactor as an efficient, reliable source of electricity.

To be cost-competitive with power produced by a coal-fired thermal station, nuclear-generated electricity must be used in base-load operations. That is, the nuclear station must run all the time, which in practice means at least 80 per cent of the year, since some time must be lost for annual overhaul.

Douglas Point went "critical", a year late, in November of 1966 and fed its first power to the Ontario hydro system on Jan. 7, 1967. In the 28 months since, however, it has been out of action 11 months. The big problems up to now were the replacement of a pressure tube which had a hole worn in it by a regulating mechanism, and the failure of the 10 main pumps which circulate the heavy water through the system. In each case, the reactor has to be shut down for two months, and modification and improvement of the pumps took a further five months.

Such difficulties are perhaps to be expected in the progressive commissioning of a nuclear generating station. But the breakdown in the fuelling machine which occurred March 6 gives rise to a rather different order of concern, because it is the reliability of these machines which will really determine whether Douglas Point is to be a 200,000 kilowatt producer of electricity or just a noble, 10-year, $81,500,000 experiment.

Other Units Concerned

And not just Douglas Point. Its fuelling machines were developed at a cost of $3,000,000 by the power projects division of atomic energy of Canada at the Sheridan Park Research Center west of Toronto. Essentially the same machines are to be used for the reactors at Ontario hydro's $528,0000,000 Pickering station east of Toronto, the recently announced $760,000,000 expansion at Douglas Point, and the two-unit Rajasthan atomic power plant in India.

The power projects division is also designing the fuelling machine for the natural uranium, ordinary water reactor which AECL is building for Hydro Quebec at Gentilly, across the St. Lawrence from Trois Rivieres.

In all these cases, the key to fuel efficiency and the economic production of power is that the reactor must be refuelled while it is "on load". It cannot be shut down every time it needs fresh fuel.

This arises not because uranium oxide burns up all that quickly (Douglas Point's fuel load of 60 tons will last at least two years) but because the inner part of the fuel core burns up more quickly than the outer part. Uranium oxide may be the cheapest form of nuclear power but it still costs about $22.50 a pound (or $2,700,000 to charge Douglas Point) and costs must be minimized, and fuel burn-up maximized, by constant "reshuffling" of the fuel in the reactor core.

Complicated 'Reshuffle'

This is achieved, first, by structuring the core as cylindrical bundles of fuel which are inserted into channels running through the reactor. Each bundle can then be periodically pushed through a channel from one end to the other. The Douglas Point reactor has 306 channels with 12 bundles each, which means the shuffling rate averages about five bundles a day in normal operation. This means two or three channels must be opened each day for refuelling. Obviously the reactor is useless for power generation if it has to be shut down for this operation, so immensely complicated, remotely controlled fuelling machines have had to be developed to do the job while it is going.

The machines rather resemble a giant revolver, two are required, one for charging and the other for discharging the fuel bundles, at the opposite faces of the reactor. In a fuelling sequence, the snout of the barrel of each machine is clamped onto the ends of the reactor channel (this demands a perfect seal since the channels contain heavy water as well as fuel) and sealing plugs are withdrawn into chambers in the machines' magazines. The magazines then rotate one position and shielding plugs are withdrawn from the channel.

The magazines are then rotated again, bringing a new fuel bundle into position in the charging machines and an empty chamber into position to receive the used fuel in the discharge machine. A ram then pushes the fresh fuel through the barrel and into the channel, at the same time pushing the spent fuel out the other end, the reactor is closed up again by reversing the procedure.

Malfuctioning Jaws

The ram, however, must be of flexible length, which is achieved by making it in sections or links, each link hooking on to the next by spring clamps or jaws. It is the malfunctioning of the jaws on one of these links which is believed to have caused the breakdown at Douglas Point.

Refuelling had proceeded to the point where 130 channels had been changed when it was discovered that eight channels contained fuel bundles with defective sheathing. In the course of pushing these out, the jaws on one ram section rode up on the preceding section, thereby jamming the ram in the channel.

Getting it free is not as easy as may sound. The loading machine contains hot fuel and cannot be simply taken apart; it is also full of heavy water. The favored solution is to modify the discharge machine so that it can pull as well as push (they are made only to push) and then freeing the jammed ram by pulling on it from the other end.

No Certainty of Success

No doubt the engineers will overcome the problem. But until they do, the refuelling mechanism for the natural uranium power reactor must remain suspect. Refuelling was a major bug in the 20,000 kilowatt demonstration station at Rolphton on the Ottawa River, the fore-runner of Douglas Point, and no one can be certain all the difficulties have been licked yet. The real test of refuelling under full power, at maximum heat and pressure, has still not been tried; all the refuelling so far at Douglas Point has been carried out at very low power.

A great deal hangs on the outcome. Ontario Hydro is now counting on 5,400,000 kilowatts of electricity from nuclear generation over the next 10 years—about one third of its planned capacity. If it doesn't get it, this province is going to burn an awful lot of candles.

Letters to the Editor

Food Instead of Missiles

I never cease to be astonished by those great humanitarians who love peace, liberty and democracy so much that in order to make it available they, without awareness of the contradiction, advocate it be taken away from us.

Thus Professor George Wald, Nobel Prize winner, has destroyed his case. He o fears the dual explosions, both nuclear and population, that he would sell us out to international Communism to avoid the first and enslave parents to overcome the second.

Almost 30 years ago Peace in our Time was purchased ignominously by the enslavement of another people — and war came shortly afterwards. Professor Wald would do well to concentrate on history rather than biology — R. G. Groves, 1730 Richardson.

Challenging Wald

Although I do not wish, in any way, to detract from the strength and thoughtfulness expressed in George Wald's article "A Generation in Search of a Future" published in your edition of April 9, I would like to point out that he may be in error in making the statement that "There is a widespread expectation of famine on an unprecedented scale in many parts of the world."

May I commend to the attention of your editorial staff, and of your readers, the March, 1969, issue of "The UNESCO Courier" which is devoted entirely to the New Food Revolution. Some startling facts are brought forward in it: for example, "India expects to be self-sufficient in food production by 1970-71." (page 7); "Milk production will soar to 30,000 pounds per cow from today's 8,000. Synthetic milk will also be manufactured from carrot tops and pea pods," (page 8); "A single cow will produce as many as 1,000 calves in its lifetime, as compared to the present 10 . . . Embryos will be transferred from special breeder animals to ordinary incubator animals." (page 8), "A fish farm of eight square miles able to produce more fish than are presently caught in the entire North Sea." (page 32).

Our mass media today are sometimes "dispensers of doom" so that reading such articles fills a person with a sense of optimism about the future of mankind. It is encouraging to see that so many scientists are devoting their talents and their energies to the solution of these urgent problems, rather than to the manufacture of missiles and satellites. — (Mrs.) D. Berringer, 785 Cowper.

Looking Back

From the Times, April 16, 1909.

The biggest passenger bus ever seen in Victoria and one of the biggest on the American continent arrived here today on the steamer Cascade, which has been specially chartered for the purpose of bringing the bus to Victoria for Stephen Jones, proprietor of the Dominion Hotel. It is 20 feet long with open sides. It will hold about 26 persons and will be used for meeting boats from Seattle and Vancouver.

Back To The Rails

By RICHARD PURSER
from New York

SOMETHING unprecedented in United States railroading began on April 2: a high-speed, non-stop passenger service between major cities more than 200 miles apart, the cities being New York and Washington. The nearest precedent is in Canada, where Canadian National Railways has been developing its Rapido and Turbo-Train service in the east. Now Americans may also be about to learn what Europeans and Japanese have known for years: that the modern businessman need not travel by air alone.

Purser

On its first northbound trip, the new "Metroliner" of the Penn Central Railroad left Washington's cavernous and once-crowded Union Station, now little more than a white elephant, on the dot at 4:30 p.m.

The new train was a rounded, silver, locomotiveless streamliner of self-propelled units powered from overhead wires and driven from the tiny cab of the front unit. It took off like a bullet. It had to: there could be none of the customary dawdling through the yards of most North American trains if it was to make its incredible schedule and reach New York's Pennsylvania Station at 7 p.m. The 227-mile run was to be made in two-and-a-half hours, for an average speed of 94.4 miles an hour.

Second Fastest in World

The Metroliner beats the Europeans at their own outstanding railroading game; it is the fastest train in the world, except for the Tokkaido Express of Japan, which has the advantage of running on a new line especially built for it. The Metroliner uses the old New York-Washington tracks, which makes its high average speed all the more remarkable. The line has some necessarily slow stretches where it winds through such major cities as Philadelphia and Baltimore. It makes it by extremely rapid (and smooth) acceleration and deceleration—it picks up quickly from a slowdown—and by sustaining a speed of 120 m.p.h. for long stretches between cities.

There is little sensation of the train's high speed. It is almost noiseless, being well insulated and running on welded rails much of the time. There is little swaying; miracle of railroading miracles, the coffee does not spill.

Coach passengers pay $12.65 for the trip, a $2.00 surcharge over the fare on the old trains, which take nearly four hours. Each coach has a centre counter selling snacks and drinks, alcoholic or otherwise. Space is limited and admission to the trains by airline-style boarding pass, which must be obtained in advance for a specific trip.

Comparative Fares

Parlor car passengers pay $21.65. $1.68 more than on the old trains, and receive luxury treatment from attentive porters who bustle around like airline stewardesses. Each first class passenger is given a card on which his drinks and meals are noted and totalled up, to be paid as the train approaches its destination. Dinner is $3.25 complete, served airline style on individual window tables. The meals are better and hotter and the portions larger than on planes; on the inaugural trip the menu featured a superb breast of chicken cordon bleu.

Comparable air fares are $19.95 on the Eastern Airlines air shuttle which dominates the New York-Washington businessman's travel market, or in economy class on competing American Airlines, and $25.20 in first class on American.

Penn Central and U.S. transportation officials believe the Metroliner can be competitive with the airlines once it is put into planned hourly service and the archaic railroad reservation and ticketing procedures are modernized to match the airlines.

Once the railroad can establish a regular and reliable service (arrival in New York on the first trip was seven minutes late owing to track slowdowns, but early on-time perfection is expected), it will be able to offer an all-weather service impervious to problems of air or ground traffic congestion.

Congestion Worries

It is this congestion that has the airlines, notably Eastern, looking worriedly at this revival of railroading. Businessmen have been packing the Metroliners, determined to see for themselves what the new service has to offer.

What the businessman is up against was well illustrated when this writer, checking into his hotel in New York, encountered in the queue a Canadian embassy official who had left Washington at the same time, travelled by plane, and reached downtown New York no sooner. His plane had been held on the ground in Washington for 45 minutes, was stacked over New York before landing, and the drive in from the airport took an hour instead of the 20 minutes it can take when the traffic is clear.

The is something innately ridiculous about business travellers being forced to rely on airplanes for trips of scarcely more than 200 miles, especially when air and road congestion and the erratic weather of northeast leave them ever uncertain whether they will make their appointments. If the railroads, with government help, can be made to do in the U.S. northeast what they can do best, the entire continent may find itself on the road to a better balance between its modes of transport.

Can Venice Be Rescued From Descent Into Sea?

By CHARLES FOLEY

ROME—Parliament squabbles, committees argue and experts agree to differ about the right way to save the sinking city of Venice. But on one point opinion is unanimous: in 199 years streets, squares, even ground floors will be under water, having sunk a further 20 to 40 inches.

Venice, then, would appear to have little more than a human lifespan left to it. With good cause has the Italian Senate just passed a motion demanding urgent action on the problem. During the two-day parliamentary debate, the Communists berated the government and its committees which "endlessly debate, but never act." The minister of public works, Signor Giacomo Mancini, admitted that no solution has been agreed on, but hoped that studies, which have already cost the State over a million dollars, would be completed by the summer of 1970.

Venice sank into its lagoon six inches over the past 50 years, but the process is speeding up. One supporter of the pessimistic 40-inch subsidence theory is the city's own Chief Engineer, Signor Eugenio Miozzi, who has a novel scheme to stop the rot.

This is to inject large quantities of salt water into the subsoil, as has already been done in the United States where similar troubles have occurred.

The Venetian waters are rising, we know, because of the melting Arctic icecaps. But why is the city sinking at increasing pace into its muddy bed?

"Between 1908 and 1921," says Signor Moizzi, "the process began of draining some 3 million to 4 million cubic metres of water from the River Piave for irrigation and canals. And from the start of the century more and more artesian wells were sunk. In the Venetian province there are about 4,000 wells today taking 135,000 cubic metres of water from the subsoil. This is certainly a principal cause of subsidence."

A second man-made hazard is the extraction in great quantities of methane gas, which is destined to increase over the next decade. "We can't stop all this," says Signor Moizzi. "But we can pass laws making it compulsory to replace water drawn from underground by salt water. In this way lost pressure would be artifically maintained.

"It's not a new idea. They've had laws about repressuring operations in California since 1959. American engineers say it's the only way to stop these underground subsidences. But nothing is being done."

This is largely because so many fact-finding projects are under way. Only when all are complete can an Italian government safely organize action on the basis of the information revealed.

One long report has already been made by three experts from the Low Countries — all men with experience of very similar problems on the Zuider Zee and Delta schemes in Holland. The remedy they suggest, on a long-term basis, is that of breakwaters off the coast.

"Venice can be protected," declared the report, "only if it be encircled by a flood bank or dike with movable gates which could be closed when there is a high tide."

The gates would be big enough to allow the passage of ocean-going ships into the lagoon and the cost would be astronomical but, say the Dutch experts, such a surrounding breakwater is the only sound defence against extremely high tides.

A second possibility is a system of movable barrage breakwaters encircling the city, inside the lagoon. A third is to build lock-gates at the lagoon's three entrances, thus regulating the water coming in.

The city has no sewerage system. Homes, hotels, palaces all tip their rubbish and residual waters into the dense, unplanned net of the canals causing, at the least, discomfort in hot weather.

So, say Holland's three wise men, plans must also be prepared for construction of a sewerage system or of pumping stations to lead water out of canals no longer cleansed by high tides.

Venice, once its safety is ensured, may turn out to have been saved for tourists. The cheap, secure mainland suburbs of Meste and Marghera are draining away her life.

Within 70 years the city will be a ghost town if the present exodus continues. Departure of 4,000 people a year has already reduced the population by a third in the past decade. Most are young people. Of 13,000 elementary schoolchildren in the city 10 years ago, 5,000 remain and classrooms are half-empty.

Against this there is the summer tourist population of 20 million visitors, even though most stay only for short periods.

A brighter feature of the scene is the scheme to develop Venice as a cultural centre where universities, American foundations and scholars from around the world can work in peace.

UNESCO, which has long studied the city's problems and drawn worldwide attention to the need to preserve it, now has a scheme to establish a big international university in Venice.

"Let's hope all these planners don't delay too long," said one Venetian. "The German travel agents are already using the slogan: 'See Venice before it is too late.'"

France Cutting Back on Aid To Former Africa Colonies

By BERNARD KAPLAN

PARIS — The de Gaulle government has begun applying the brakes to its expensive program of underwriting its former colonies in Black Africa.

France's revision of its African "doctrine" carries a substantial interest for Canada at a moment when the Canadian government is thinking in terms of a bigger role in that continent.

It would be a gross exaggeration to assert that the French, economically pressed and distracted by their own worries, are pulling out of Africa, or that their ties with their former colonies are foundering. Indeed, the de Gaulle regime's emphatic, more than slightly hypocritical concern for Biafra is evidence that Africa retains its fascination for the French both as a market for their goods and their influence.

But the past decade's policy of providing French Africa with the trappings of independence while ensuring it stayed responsive to Paris has proved a steady strain on France's resources. Within Gaullist ruling circles, there has been a rising debate over how worthwhile this really is.

Since last May, the view that France can't afford an open-ended policy of prestige in Africa has gained adherents. The most significant of these is Foreign Minister Michel Debre.

The result is that this year's budget for aid to French Africa has been sliced by more than three per cent. At the same time, French investment in the same countries is being reduced by nearly 10 per cent. It is the first time since the French African republics were granted independence on a wholesale basis in 1960 that economic assistance has been cut back, although since 1966 there has been no real increase in practical terms.

Pull Out Teachers

Hand in hand with financial retrenchment, the de Gaulle government has been withdrawing technical consultants and teachers. Of some 10,000 French men and women working in government-sponsored or assisted programs in Black Africa two years ago, it is estimated only 8,000 will be left by the end of 1969.

The retreat of technical advisers has been resented by the African rulers even more than the cutback in straight economic aid. Only in one or two instances has the tightening up of the French purse-strings produced open signs of strain between those who are known here as "Les Rois Negres" and the de Gaulle government. The former's dependence on France remains too great, even now, for that. But, it has undoubtedly accelerated a process already underway by which the Africans have been searching for other sources of succor, just in case.

Traceable to this is the difference in their reaction of late to Ottawa's gestures of interest, as compared, say, to their suspicion when Canada initially began taking a serious look at French Africa in 1966-67. The fact the Canadians are living up to their promise to match their assistance program to French Africa to their aid for former British Africa — something French officials had told them would never happen — hasn't been lost on the leaders of the "Francophone" republics.

Their attitude toward Quebec has undergone something of a change in consequence. By and large, it is still friendly, but no longer is it unreservedly so. Not because the Africans believe that, in order to guarantee Ottawa's help, they must disavow Quebec. The federal officials with whom they deal appear to have been scrupulous in avoiding the least suggestion of anything like that.

If for no other reason, they are perfectly aware that, in a part of the world where French intelligence agents are everywhere, the merest hint of that sort of game could easily boomerang.

What Quebec suffers from in Africa at the moment is, instead, a rather natural resentment for being de Gaulle's spoiled darling. The Africans have noted that even France's austerity program, introduced after last autumn's financial crisis, failed to touch Franco-Quebec co-operation.

Can't Explain It

Well realizing that Quebec hardly rates as an underdeveloped country African or, indeed, most international standards, they are at a loss to explain this except as the practice of Gaullist realpolitik."

In the past, the French took care not to publicize that Franco-Quebecois co-operation is, in many respects, a two-way street — which, of course, Franco-African "co-operation" is not, by any stretch of the imagination. This is hurting them, and Quebec, in African eyes now.

Incontestably, Africa has been among the outstanding successes of de Gaulle's diplomacy. Conceived in the heat of the Algerian crisis, the policy toward French Africa has been compounded of just the right mixture of vision and cunning to work in the unstable conditions which abound.

To a much greater extent than the British, the French have been able to maintain their power, while simultaneously receiving the gratitude of their former colonies. They have never made the mistake of tying their mast to a single leader or even to a political system in any African country. They have, instead, made sure of each republic's political-cultural elite.

No Dividends

Internationally, however, this has never quite paid the dazzling dividends the Gaullists no doubt had a right to expect. The French African republics have not blindly followed France's lead in the United Nations or in other international bodies.

De Gaulle's support of Biafra has won only a small following among his African clients and was, as a matter of fact, formally rejected by the Organization of African States with the French republics joining in support of Nigeria.

Whether these developments have been a factor in Debre's thinking, no one can say for sure. But the impression in informed circles here is that the foreign minister intends henceforth to be more "selective" in dispensing largesse. Not only has the amount of aid been cut in absolute terms; the suspicion is that, hereafter, it will be employed principally to reward France's loyalest African friends. There already have been instances which might be considered evidence of this.

'Social Council' Urged for Canada

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — When the Economic Council of Canada rediscovered poverty in this country, in its 1968 review, politicians, press and public reacted with shock, dismay and demands for instant action.

Westell

Similarly, in its 1967 review, the council noted that the rate of home-building was not adequate to meet all demands and a housing crisis was at once proclaimed.

The existence of poverty and a shortage of houses had, of course, always been apparent to social scientists and indeed, to anyone who wanted to examine available statistics. The reports of the Economic Council rounded out the facts and focused attention upon them in a dramatic way.

●

This is a useful function and stimulates action. But it would be even better if there were a body charged with keeping social problems and progress under constant attention, and reporting regularly.

The Economic Council is primarily concerned with economic conditions. What is required is a social council of equivalent status.

The United States is showing Canada the way in this regard, as in so many others, by developing the concepts of social reporting, or social accounting.

Lyndon Johnson initiated the project in 1966 and it may turn out to be one of his significant legacies as president. A few days before leaving office, he received a preliminary report on the progress of the scheme, from the department of health, education and welfare, and it is available as a U.S. government booklet entitled: Toward a Social Report.

The report said in part: "Curiosity about our social condition would by itself justify an attempt to assess the social health of the nation. Many people want answers to questions like these: Are we getting healthier? Is pollution increasing? Do children learn more than they used to? Do people have more satisfying jobs than they used to? Is crime increasing? How many people are really alienated? Is the American dream of rags to riches a reality?

"We are interested in the answers to such questions partly because they would tell us a good deal about our individual and social well-being. Just as we need to measure our incomes, so we need 'social indicators', or measures of other dimensions of our welfare, to get an idea how well off we really are.

"A social report with a set of social indicators could not only satisfy our curiosity about how well we are doing, but it could also improve public policymaking in at least two ways.

"The existing situation in areas with which public policy must deal is often unclear, not only to the citizenry in general but to officialdom as well. . . ."

The main conclusion of the report was that a great deal more work needs to be done to expand social reporting to areas not now covered and to develop more refined and varied techniques for measuring social conditions.

A considerable body of social statistics is already available in Canada, from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and other government and private agencies. But as the Economic Council reports on poverty and housing showed, information needs to be presented in the proper context to command attention.

All the talk about priorities in public spending would make a great deal more sense if there were better and more regular information put together in one report on what problems require priority attention.

At present, problems enjoy a brief period of fashion in which they command massive attention in press and Parliament, and then tend to fade away into obscurity.

One year it is education that has top priority, the next it is poverty, then it is housing, and so on.

It would be extraordinarily valuable if the federal government—in partnership with the provinces if possible—would appoint a social council with instructions to conduct research and to report at least once a year on social conditions in Canada.

Small Town? Sure, So Was 1563 London

By ART STOTT

When leaders of the University of Victoria, backing their School of Fine Arts in the concept of this year's Victoria Fair, discussed the ingredient they wanted most in the program, the message came through loud and clear to community representatives listening last week. They want quality.

Stott

As Peter Garvie phrased it, Victoria Fair would not succeed as a pilot project in 1969 if it established only a reputation as a pretty good effort for a small town on the west coast of North America. It had to be good enough to gain high rating by international standards. Mr. Garvie thinks there is the talent here to achieve that goal—given sufficient local support.

He spoke with quiet confidence, pointing to the possibilities of establishing here a companion piece for the Stratford Festival. The backbone of the dramatic schedule will be Shakespeare.

In one of those stream-of-consciousness flows that occasionally pass through what I call my mind, I came away connecting the name and times of Shakespeare with the reference to a small town on the west coast of North America.

By population standards, Greater Victoria is not a great city. In our community, however, we now have almost twice as many residents as the Britannica lists for London the year before Shakespeare was born. The encyclopedia sets the figure at 93,000 in 1563. Yet to London of the First Elizabethen era came Shakespeare, Kit Marlowe, and the buckoes who made the Mermaid Tavern a shrine for English letters. Edmund Spenser, Francis Bacon and Walter Raleigh were young. A more mature Francis Drake used to come up from Plymouth occasionally for the ninepin congress, with other assorted sailors who were pushing horizons back.

Population was not the factor determining whether the town was big or small—though other great cities of the time were admittedly small by comparison with the metropolis of today. You look beyond the number of residents to determine the sources of greatness.

If there are any modern Shakespeares, Marlowes, Bacons, or Raleighs walking the streets of Victoria these days, they have escaped my notice. A few "mute, inglorious Miltons," perhaps, but no giants.

Still, it seems to me, we should not accept the straitjacket of small-townishness because genius, if there be any among us, is well-concealed. We should take confidence from people like Peter Garvie and others who can see beyond the fences we're too apt to build from the combined materials of parochialism and self-depreciation. We start expanding horizons—and cultivating a place in the sun—by creating a state of mind conducive to that development.

We've had a few examples of how to do it. Two of my friends who have made regular visits to Britain and taken in their share of good theatre there, tell me that some events sponsored by UVic bear very favorable comparison.

And the mere existence of the University of Victoria in its present form offers inspiration. When, a few years ago, Dick Wilson let the community know how much money was expected from it to begin major building, some of us shook our heads. It was a lot of dough. We'd never make it. But we did.

Having acquired the university, we possess assets which can be exploited. They could be used, for instance, to make Victoria Fair something a great deal more than the conventional round of amateur theatricals which those interested several years ago considered pretty good for a small town. We have a professionalism now that catches attention from people who appreciate professionalism in the arts—and a professionalism which buttresses the early foundations laid by those of our older residents who have striven for quality.

It represents a potential which could be developed to increase our tourist attraction in a centre which is apparently headed for greater and greater dependence on the visitor industry for its economic expansion.

That's dollars and cents. To nurture the returns, some investment is required. It can come from sponsorship and from the box office at Victoria Fair events. At worst the program is a gamble—one that those who take it should enjoy. Worth a fling? Or shall we go back to bingo in the village meeting house?

Nixon's Budget Shows Caution, Fails to Please

WASHINGTON (WP) — In explaining the details of President Nixon's new trimmed-down budget Tuesday, his spokesmen predicted that the reassessment would win them no popularity contests. They were right.

Rep. Wilbur Mills (D.—Ark.) immediately called for an additional $5 billion over the president's $4 billion reduction of the Lyndon Johnson budget.

And the administration's war on inflation, Rep. Henry Reuss (D.—Wis.) chimed in, is "phony." It would result in higher unemployment, but do little about prices, Reuss said.

There is no doubt that the new Nixon budget reflects the cautious approach that has become the hallmark of the administration.

MORE FOR POOR

A mean-axe was not swung at the Johnson figures, evidenced best by a 10 per cent increase in spending programs for the poor, from $24.4 billion in fiscal 1969 to $26.9 billion in fiscal 1970. This is a slice of only $300 million from LBJ's proposals, a modesty that will contribute to the budget's unpopularity among conservative Republicans.

"We know Congress will in the end buy our increases," said a staff man, "but will they buy our cuts?"

Politics aside, the key question that arises is two-fold:

- How "real" is the projected $5.8 billion surplus, touted Tuesday by budget director Robert P. Mayo as the fourth largest in U.S. history and the biggest in 18 years?
- What will be its usefulness in cooling off "an already overheated economy"?

On the first point, there seemed to be little "gimmickry" in the budget that overstates the surplus. If anything, it is understated because receipts for fiscal 1970 will be higher than the figure currently being used. Moreover, Mayo's strict sense of ethics resulted in a re-definition of commodity credit corporation accounts that took $500 million out of the potential surplus.

And there are real cuts in this budget—$200 million in the popular "impacted areas" program, for example. The pinch will also be felt in a net reduction of 5,000 federal jobs (47,800 below LBJ's recommended level.)

TRICKY AREA

There is one tricky area where the surplus could be trimmed substantially, depending on future congressional action: the budget includes $1.7 billion in proposed new social security taxes, only $800 million in proposed new benefits. If Congress raises taxes only to match Nixon's new benefit program, $1.1 billion is lopped off the surplus.

The question of economic impact is more difficult to assess. The intolerably inflationary budget deficit of $25.2 billion in fiscal 1968 had already been turned into a small surplus, as projected by LBJ, of $3.4 billion for fiscal 1970.

That's a swing—biggest in history—of $28.6 billion. The new Nixon budget raises the ante to $31 billion dollars. Is the net difference enough to make a dent in the ebullient, inflationary U.S. economyy.

When asked about it at the White House Tuesday, Mayo answered in the affirmative, but he waffled a bit. "To say that we can 'fine-tune' the economy so that the addition of another $1 billion or so in surplus makes a difference—we're not that smart."

DEFENCE VICTORY

His final characterization of the increased budget surplus: "It's not a deflationary increase, it's a contribution to the anti-inflationary program."

But the Democrats, concerned by what they term Defence Secretary Melvin Laird's victory over Mayo (and the rest of the civilian leadership in the White House) seem ready to take the offensive.

Only a paltry $1.1 billion (and half of that can easily be restored) has been whacked out of the near-$80 billion for defence. The Democrats thus plan an assault on all military appropriations—to correct what they consider Nixon's misdirected priorities.

And when he comes up with his request for extension of the surtax, they will demand a reduction of the investment tax credit "bonanza" for business—and genuine tax reform.

Automobile Sales Climb in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Motor vehicle sales in February totalled 69,368 with a retail value of $254,897,000, compared with 60,172 and a retail value of $213,980, in February last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Sales in the first two months of 1969 were up 10.1 per cent in volume to 131,460, and 13.6 per cent higher in retail value at $480,360,000, than comparable figures for the first two months of last year.

Sawmill Scheduled

Nootka Cedar Products Ltd. will begin construction during April of a modern cedar sawmill with a capacity of 40 to 50 million feet. The mill be located at the head of Tahsis Inlet adjacent to the Tahsis Company's sawmill.

Nootka Cedar Products Ltd. have a long term log supply contract with Tahsis Company Ltd., which in turn have agreed to purchase all the cedar chips developing from the operation.

The mill is expected to be in operation early next summer and will employ about 100 men.

Bid Made for Salada

An offer worth about $47,000,000 has been made by Kellogg Co. of Battle Creek, Mich., for all outstanding common shares of Salada Foods Ltd. of Toronto.

The offer is subject to the tender of 90 per cent of Salada's 2,653,000 outstanding shares by May 14. The sum offered amounts to $17.50 a share Canadian.

Salada said its directors have voted to tender their own shares, but Slater Steel Industries Ltd. of Hamilton holds 50 per cent of Salada's shares.

Steel Firm Loses

Depressed market conditions in the steel industry, high interest rates, and lower prices throughout the industry combined to produce a $271,733 loss for Bridge and Tank Co. of Canada Ltd., of Hamilton, for 1968. This compared with a profit of $327,116 for 1967.

"On some contracts," President W. B. Nichol told shareholders in his annual report, "there was no profit nor even full overhead recovery . . . production and erection costs have increased due to higher wages without a compensating increase in prices."

Exploration Deal

Rio Algom Mines Ltd. says it has entered into agreements with Mitsubishi Metal Mining Co. of Japan for joint mineral explorations in British Columbia and Wyoming.

The company said the B.C. agreement will continue for at least three years, with more than $300,000 to be spent on exploration this year.

JUST A NAME COSTS $100,000

TORONTO (CP) — When Ford Motor Co. decided last year to name a new line of cars Maverick, Donald Kirsch pocketed $100,000.

That's the amount Ford paid for trade mark rights to the name Maverick. Mr. Kirsch, owner of a small manufacturing company in the Toronto suburb of Rexdale, produced car mufflers called Maverick.

Donald Carlson, a Ford vice-president, said Ford paid the money to Mr. Kirsch's company, Gidon Industries Ltd.

Ford, after deciding on the name Maverick, conducted research in trade mark offices in Ottawa and Washington and found Mr. Kirsch's mufflers were the only product in the automotive field with the name Maverick.

B.C. Sawmills To Expand Considerably

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's sawmill industry will spend $44,000,000 in expansion during 1969 and 1970, the Council of B.C. Forest Industries reported Tuesday.

Council president Gordon Draeseke said new mills and modernization will add an annual capacity of 470,000,000 board feet to last year's estimated lumber production of 7,800,000,000 board feet and will create an additional 500 jobs.

New mills are scheduled for Houston, Nanaimo, Fort St. James, Taylor, Kitimat and Dawson Creek while expansion or modernization is planned for existing mills at Cranbrook, Canal Flats, Tahsis, Mackenzie, New Westminster, Savona and Williams Lake.

Bank Plans To Expand

BASEL, Switzerland (Reuters) — The Bank for International Settlements is planning to raise its share capital, a move which would open the way for non-European membership, informed sources say.

A spokesman for the bank said he could not comment on the report.

According to the sources, details of the increase will be released when the bi-annual results are published next month.

Japan and Canada are known to be interested in joining BIS, which is owned by all the main central banks of Eastern and Western Europe except that of the Soviet Union, the sources added.

The bank has a share capital of 500,000,000 Swiss gold francs (about $166,600,000), which is 25 per cent paid up.

Tax Appeal Denied

Canadian Utilities Limited, an Alberta electricity supplier, must pay $927,454 federal income tax and $219,364 provincial tax levied in 1967, the federal tax appeal board has ruled.

A judgment made public in Ottawa by board member Roland St. Onge dismissed the company's appeal from a tax reassessment involving those amounts of tax.

Steel Production Up

Steel ingot production totalled 230,544 tons last week, a slight increase from 229,919 tons the previous week, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

The bureau's index of steel production, based on 1957-59 output equalling 100, was 240 last week, 239 a week earlier, and 227 a year ago.

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07¼ for cheques, $1.07¼ for cash, $1.06¼ for silver. Sales were $1.08 for cheques and $1.08¼ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.07 21/32. Pound sterling was up ¼ at $2.58 1/16.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 29/32 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.39 43/64.

Top Asbestos Year Made

QUEBEC (CP) — Canada's asbestos-mining industry scored record production and exports in 1968, says Paul A. Filteau, general manager of the Quebec Asbestos Mining Association.

Mr. Filteau said in a report Tuesday that asbestos fibre shipments from Canadian mines last year reached 1,580,026 tons valued at more than $180,000,000.

This represents an increase of 135,141 tons, or 9.3 per cent over the 1,444,885 tons shipped in 1967. Meanwhile, the increase in the value of over-all mineral production in Canada in 1968 averaged 7.7 per cent.

Although Canada's share of world asbestos production had declined to 35 per cent from 50 per cent in the last 10 years, the output of the Canadian asbestos mining industry has increased by 50 per cent to 1,580,026 tons in 1968 from 1,046,086 tons in 1957.

Output from the Asbestos and Thetford Mines area of Quebec's Eastern Townships accounts for 87 per cent of total Canadian asbestos fibre production. Other mines are in Ontario, British Columbia, the Yukon and Newfoundland.

About 45 per cent of Canada's total asbestos fibre production is shipped to the United States. The balance, apart from Canadian domestic requirements which totalled 70,000 tons in 1968, is exported to 85 countries.

12-Mill Hike For Saanich?

Major Cutting Needed Tonight To Stave Off Big Increase

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Major surgery will be necessary tonight to avoid a heavy tax increase in Saanich.

Council spent six hours Monday and Tuesday night reviewing the provisional budget, but the savings only totalled $49,400.

This is just over one-third of a mill, and the provisional budget indicates an increase of 7.45 mills.

On top of this will come school costs, over which council has no control. School boards have yet to set mill rates.

Some aldermen are noting privately that the combined municipal and educational increases could be a whopping 12 to 14 mills. Assessments are up too. Against this is the $20 increase in the provincial homeowner grant.

'EXTRA SHOCK'

And council got an extra shock Tuesday night.

It was indicated an additional $92,000 will be needed for road maintenance, on top of the provisional $170,000 which compares with an expenditure of $69,079 during 1968, but the $92,000 will reduce to $62,000 by applying another account.

The reason for this is the severe winter which broke up many older roads in Sanaich. In addition, Saanich has always needed to spend more on roads than it did and the expanding population brings with it a demand for better roads.

The problem facing council is that it decided earlier this year to spend much more on roads, and if a hefty mill rate increase is to be reduced, it may once again be at the expense of road construction.

In 1966, the municipal mill rate was 27.1, in 1967 it was 28.4 and in 1968 it was 28.7. This year's provisional budget indicates a mill rate of 36.15, subject to budget-cutting.

The school mill rate has been about equal in the past to the municipal mill rate.

CHECK FOR LICENCES

At Tuesday night's meeting, council:

- Voted to have comptroller-treasurer John Tribe report back on the possible hiring of a man on a commission to go door to door to check whether dog owners possess licences;
- Heard that the estimated cost of emergency ambulance service, a function of the fire department, is $59,700, or just over the $1 per capita the provincial government has designated for "ambulance services" without defining whether this is for emergencies only or total service;
- Eliminated the spring cleanup of household refuse and set aside $2,000 for boulevard and streetside cleanup, putting one man per day per week on the road with a truck picking up litter.

The total municipal expenditure in 1968, excluding schools, was $6.61 million compared with the provisional budget of $8 million this year.

School costs last year were $3.2 million.)

ON SOOKE SCHOOL GROUNDS

Trustees Uphold No-Smoking Rule

Sooke school trustees ended the tobacco debate Tuesday night with emphatic confirmation of the school board's "no student smoking on school grounds" rule.

The issue was aired two weeks ago when two high school principals requested students be allowed to smoke in certain areas of their schools.

Two other high school principals were opposed to the idea.

The pair in favor argued students should be permitted to smoke in school because they will smoke elsewhere anyway. And it's hypocracy for teachers who smoke to try and stop them.

DISCOURAGE SMOKING

Teachers have a duty to discourage smoking, the other two principals argued. Permission would be tacit approval. Students have to learn that everyone, including adults is forbidden to smoke at times.

The board received a report on the subject from Ray Warburton, supervisor of secondary instruction. It was anti-smoking and district superintendent Ernest Hyndman said he fully supported it.

CALLERS AGAINST

"Because a large segment of society smokes, and because parents condone or even support the smoking habits of students does not mean that teachers should quit trying to control and discourage smoking," said Warburton.

"After all, it was not so many years ago that the revolting habit of chewing tobacco was commonplace. This habit is rarely seen today.

"There is so much more evidence today than 20 years ago concerning the detrimental effects of smoking that logically, more effort by the schools is needed now to control smoking than ever before."

Board chairman Fred Willway said Monday night he had received 32 phone calls on the subject, none of them in favor of permitting smoking on school grounds.

Five of the callers said they were teen-agers in the school district. When Willway asked them if they smoked, some said they had but didn't think they should at school.

Trustees went on record as affirming their current no smoking policy and authorized signs carrying this message be posted on school property where necessary.

In other business, the board noted with satisfaction a letter from the Sooke Teachers" Association which congratulated trustees "on being able to cope with the new finance formula."

COPE WITH FORMULA

The formula sets a government ceiling on operating budgets which trustees can authorize by themselves and the Sooke board's budget this year was well within the limit.

The teachers singled out Hyndman "whose hard work and keen insight have helped guide you through this trying period."

The board agreed to meet at a later date to review what trustee expenses were allowable after a misunderstanding produced an argument over expenses submitted by three trustees.

Uvic Students to Have Role In Judging Worth of Teacher

By BOB MITCHELL

Students at University of Victoria are to have a role in judging the worth of their teachers.

The Uvic senate Tuesday approved a recommendation which also would let students have a say in improving the quality of instruction.

The recommendation was contained in the report of subcommittee B of the academic planning committee which was set up last fall to study student proposals. These included an ombudsman, student representation and teaching effectiveness.

The sub-committee was chaired by Peter Garvie, chairman of the School of Fine Arts.

It said since students are "directly affected by the quality of teaching" they should be represented on any committee set up to determine methods of promoting and assessing teaching effectiveness.

REVIEW UNNECESSARY

The senate rejected another recommendation that a review of the results of increased student representation be conducted sometime in the future.

The majority of senators felt a study of the subject two years or more after implementation would be inaccurate and unnecessary.

On the subject of open meetings the senate approved the sub-committee's recommendation that joint faculties, individual faculties, departments and divisions decide whether their meetings be open or closed.

Dr. Cary Goulson, associate professor of education, proposed the number of graduate and undergraduate students to sit on various senate committees. The slate was also approved.

Formerly procedure was for the committees concerned to each year notify the committee on committees as to the number of students it would seat.

The committee or committees, acting as middleman, would then notify the Alma Mater Society, which would appoint student members.

Final Word On Phase-Out In August

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Final decision on the extent and timing of the phased reduction of Canadian NATO forces in Europe will be held off until August, following publication of a white paper charting the direction given to Canadian foreign policy by the current policy review, says Prime Minister Trudeau.

The prime minister said Canada would discuss with NATO allies proposals for reduction of its forces in Europe at the NATO defence committee meeting in Brussels May 28.

But he said this discussion could take the form of seeking NATO members' reaction to several different proposals. This reaction could then be taken into account before making a final decision in time for a further NATO meeting in August—at which members must make final military commitments for the following year.

"I hope by then that our foreign policy in the form of a white paper will have been debated in this House," the prime minister said, indicating that the white paper could be expected some time before the House rises at the end of June.

FIRST STEP

Answering opposition efforts to learn what the government meant in its announcement, on the day after the Commons adjourned for the Easter recess, that there would be a planned, phased reduction in Canadian NATO forces in Europe, the prime minister emphatically repeated the theme of his Calgary speech on defence and foreign policy Saturday, that foreign policy must shape defence policy.

"In the past several years there has been a tendency for our foreign policy to be swallowed by our NATO policy," he said.

The prime minister said the government's first step would be to decide on foreign policy and inform the country of it.

The government would then decide what defence policy ought to flow from this foreign policy and what place NATO should have in defence policy.

Mr. Trudeau said the government had resisted efforts to push Canada into a final decision on NATO policy before last week's NATO meeting in Washington or next month's meeting of defence ministers in Brussels.

"We are resisting this development and making sure we are not once again committed to a NATO policy before our over-all foreign policy has been established," he said.

URGENT NEED

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux rejected a Conservative motion, by Angus MacLean (PC—Malpeque) and Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) that the House adjourn for an emergency debate on "the urgent need for clarification of Canada's defence policy as a result of the statement on this subject made by the prime minister while Parliament was in recess."

The government, however, proposed a special two-day debate on defence policy next week.

Sharpest opposition criticism, in the question period and in statements in reply to Defence Minister Cadieux's report on last week's NATO meeting in Washington, came from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

He urged the government to "withdraw its decision to withdraw troops from NATO at this time or announce its intention to do so commencing next year."

He said efforts to reach a detente with Eastern Europe had been the theme of the NATO meeting in Washington April 10 and 11.

RENEWING CONTACTS

This fact, Mr. Stanfield said, "emphasizes to all of us how inappropriate was the decision of the government of Canada to announce on the eve of that meeting its decision to reduce its support of the NATO alliance, and thereby to that extent—which is a considerable extent—reduce and weaken the position from which the NATO countries would be conducting any such negotiation with the countries of the East."

The defence minister indicated however in his report on the NATO meeting, at which NATO members "agreed on a policy of gradually renewing contacts with the Warsaw Pact countries and of exploring all possibilities for negotiations," that Canada had had a significant influence in steering the alliance toward a search for East-West understanding.

"The Canadian delegation's principal aim was to ensure that NATO would use to the full its capacity to contribute to the early improvement of East-West relations," Cadieux said. "The paper on East-West relations which the ministers had before them was based on a Canadian draft and its conclusions were largely reflected in the results of the meeting."

PEACE IGNORED

Prime Minister Trudeau has made it clear that some of his own reservations about NATO stem from a belief that the 20-year-old alliance has over-emphasized military security at the price of the search for peace.

"I would be inclined to say that we can't wait until all the problems of security have been settled before we tackle the political issues of peace in the world," he said at a Liberal fund-raising dinner in Calgary Saturday.

"And it so happened that NATO after 20 years in our opinion had developed too much into a military alliance and not enough into a political alliance, not enough into an alliance which is interested, not only in keeping the balance of deterrence of tactical power in Europe, but into an alliance which is interested in arms control and de-escalation," he added.

News Co-Operative Re-Elects President

TORONTO (CP) — J. R. H. Sutherland of New Glasgow News was re-elected president of The Canadian Press by his fellow directors Tuesday.

St. Clair Balfour of Southam Press Ltd. was re-elected honorary president; Beland Honderich, Toronto Star, first vice-president; and Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal, second vice-president.

Gabriel Gilbert, Quebec Le Soleil, and R. S. Malone, Winnipeg Free Press, were re-elected to the executive committee.

Officers were chosen by the board after the annual meeting of CP, the national news-gathering co-operative, attended by newspaper executives and editors from across Canada.

Mr. Sutherland reported on the co-operative's operating position and Gillis Purcell, general manager, on details of the news service.

Prairie: R. S. Malone, Winnipeg Free Press; Frank Swanson, Calgary Herald.

British Columbia: Fred S. Auger, Vancouver Province.

Sewage Plant Study Set

Sidney Monday approved a sewage plant study — the first move towards eliminating the discharge of raw sewage into the sea.

It appointed D. W. Thomason of Vancouver, to conduct a study on the best location for a primary treatment plant. Cost of the study is estimated at $1,100.

He will also recommend to council the best type and size of plant to serve the needs of the town.

Council's action stems from a B.C. Health Department order prohibiting the extension of the town's system until it had committed itself to the primary treatment of waste.

Housing development on unsewered lands has been brought to a standstill as the result of the restrictions.

PROCEDURE

Primary treatment of waste means removing some of the solids by screening or settling. These solids are then decomposed by bacteria in sludge digester tanks before the sewage is discharged into the sea from an outfall.

The 1966 Greater Victoria sewage study proposed construction of a plant at the foot of Ocean Avenue in Sidney with a 2,100 foot outfall into the sea.

The plant would serve the needs of North Saanich eventually. It also proposed a parallel relief outfall located in the vicinity of Rothesay Avenue when the population of North Saanich and Sidney warranted expansion of treatment facilities.

'OUT OF LINE'

"I think the costs estimated by the study are out of line," said Ald. Stanley Dear. "I'm certain we can build a less costly plant — even if it's planned to take care of the needs of North Saanich at some future date."

The alderman also felt that a 2,100 foot outfall — a pipe running out to sea — was not necessary.

"I feel confident that health authorities will permit us to install a 1,000 foot outfall," he said.

Auxiliary Policemen To Graduate

Twenty-three men will graduate from auxiliary police training in a ceremony Thursday at the War Amputations Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Ave.

Magistrate J. A. Byers will conduct the swearing-in and Greater Victoria police chiefs will be in attendance. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson is scheduled to present the efficiency award to the class's top graduate. The program gets under way at 8 p.m.

Those completing the course will receive certificates of qualification and candidates passing the required examination will be sworn in as special police constables, uniformed and assigned to one of the area forces for further training and duty.

Instructor is A. R. Foster. This is the 14th class trained for auxiliary police service and the 10th anniversary of the service.

City Woman Overcome By Smoke

A 29-year-old Victoria woman was taken to hospital Monday afternoon after being overcome by smoke when her bed caught on fire.

Mrs. Georgina Thomas, 315 Langford, was released after treatment for smoke inhalation. She was taken semi-conscious from her apartment by Lieut. George White of the city fire department.

Deputy fire chief Carl Coates said the woman was smoking in bed about 1:30 p.m. when the pillow caught fire. She got up and extinguished it, returning to bed.

Another tenant in the building called the fire department when smoke was noticed pouring from the room. When firemen arrived the mattress was burning.

Damage to the building and contents was estimated at close to $600.

TEST OF STRENGTH BETWEEN PRESIDENT, CRITICS

Nixon Blind to National Feeling Over ABMs?

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Like the Vietnam war before it, the safeguard anti-ballistic missile system has proved to be too important an issue to be left to the generals and the military experts. It has now become a test of strength between the president and the coalition of critics who are challenging the economic and present national security political assumptions of our present national security policy.

There is a stunning similarity between the arguments now being voiced by Republicans opposed to President Nixon's decision to begin deployment of the ABM and the warnings anti-Vietnam Democrats were giving President Johnson, say, two years ago.

Now, just as then, the fellow-partisans of the incumbent president are pleading with him not to pursue what seems to them a mistaken policy and not to make adherence to that policy the prime test of party loyalty.

It would be foolish to predict at this juncture that the ABM fight will prove as costly to Mr. Nixon as Vietnam did to his predecessor. But it might be equally mistaken to assume that the opposition cannot prevail.

Many of us believed two years ago that a party would never repudiate an incumbent president on a basic issue of foreign policy or national security. That assumption proved wrong. The revulsion in the Democratic party against the expansion of the Vietnam war proved so strong that Lyndon B. Johnson could no longer contemplate continuing either as president or party leader.

HIS JUDGMENT

Mr. Nixon, obviously, is a long way from that point. Conventional wisdom suggests that his advisers are right when they assert that—in a murky technical argument—the public will look to and trust the president's good judgment.

They are right, too, when they say that in the crunch, conscientious senators—particularly Republicans—will find it hard to repudiate the president. His popularity is high, his term has barely begun and he must speak for a united country if the arms negotiations with the Soviets and the peace talks in Paris are to succeed. Balking a president at such a moment as this is no casual act.

And yet . . . and yet . . . one is struck by the passionate conviction with which Republicans opposed to ABM argue (as did the anti-Vietnam Democrats two years ago) that they are ahead of their president and party leader in recognizing that the voters will refuse to support decisions that are so costly and that return so few visible dividends as fighting in Vietnam or building the ABM.

In the case of the ABM, thank God, we are talking only about the commitment of dollars, not of lives. But even in this case, costs have major political consequences.

Opposition to the Vietnam war suddenly spread from the left wing of the Democratic party to the breadth of the political spectrum when Mr. Johnson in 1967 was finally forced to ask for a tax increase to finance its costs.

Now, Mr. Nixon has asked to keep the Johnson surtax in effect for another year.

Splinter Parties Expected in West

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Alberta MP Eldon Woolliams warned Tuesday that unless a new, dynamic national oil policy is established soon, splinter political parties will be founded in Western Canada.

Mr. Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) told the Commons that the West is becoming greatly disillusioned with the Liberal and Conservative parties. He said this was because of the loss of grain markets and the fear that oil markets would follow suit.

He spoke as the Commons gave second reading to a government bill to control future oil and gas production in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio who piloted the bill through its first major Commons stage, said the millions of dollars now being spent on northern oil and gas exploration means that discoveries are almost certain to follow.

"The need for legislation to control production, conservation and safety in respect to development of this resource is both immediate and critical," Mr. Andras said.

Pat Mahoney (L—Calgary South) said he doesn't share the same feeling of "panic" as Mr. Woolliams.

SEES NO THREAT

In many ways, he said, the Canadian oil industry had one of its better years in 1968. As well, the growing market for petroleum products probably meant that oil from the huge find at Prudhoe Bay in Alaska would be marketed in an orderly way with no great damage to the Canadian interests.

In other Commons business, MPs gave second reading to a bill establishing the public and private corporation which will own the domestic communications satellite to be launched in Canada in 1971.

The government says the system will bring improved television, radio and other communications to all parts of Canada, including the Canadian North.

Today the Commons continues study of several proposed revisions of the Criminal Code. The more controversial changes include making legal homosexual acts between consenting adults in private, permiting abortion where the health of the mother is endangered, and cracking down heavily on drinking drivers.

Mr. Woolliams, a lawyer, said the West is facing a depression "the likes of which hasn't been seen since the 1930s."

The U.S. planned a pipeline through Alaska and thence by ship to markets normally served by Canadian oil companies as part of the "informal agreements" that now make up the national oil policy.

WANTS NEW PACT

There was a need for Canada and the U.S. to get together to work out a new agreement. He suggested that MPs with experience in the oil industry be sent to Washington to work on it.

Mr. Mahoney said he resents the attitude he found in Eastern Canada that he is regarded as lobbyist for "oil millionaires" when he speaks up for the industry.

While there undoubtedly were such millionaires, he was speaking for the 750,000 others who depended on the industry for their living. Oil was as important to them as manufacturing was to some parts of Ontario.

Mr. Andras, pinch-hitting for Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, said northern oil finds probably will have to compete on world markets. This made it important that it be low-cost oil.

"A discovery like Prudhoe Bay, if situated in Northern Canada would, I am sure, result in this country becoming not a net importer, but a net exporter of oil," Mr. Andras stated.

Second reading of the bill on the satellite corporation came after the government defeated 128 to 19 an NDP motion to set it aside until there was agreement that the corporation be owned by the federal and provincial governments.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said the aims of the satellite were political and social and not in keeping with private ownership, even in partnership with government.

Assembly Line Treatment Hit By Loffmark

Some Doctors Pay High Under Plan

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday some British Columbia doctors are making too much money under medicare.

In a speech to the scientific session of the College of Family Physicians, he said the medical profession should take a close look at itself and begin policing some members.

"Some doctors' drawings under medical plans are outrageous and, if general, would be alarming," the health minister said.

He said there must be a limit on the amount a doctor can make under a medical plan. He did not specify the amount.

One way a doctor makes more money is the assembly-line system in his office with a constant stream of patients, none of whom receives proper attention, he said.

Later Dr. Robert Lane, president of the BCMA, said Mr. Loffmark could undoubtedly provide a few examples from among the 2,300 members of the association, which already guards against arbitrary or unethical practices.

OFFICE RESEARCH

Dr. Ian McWhinney, a physician from the University of Western Ontario in London, told the convention in another session that medical research can be carried out in the office just as well as in the laboratory.

He said general practitioners should not accept the notion that their work cuts them off completely from the world of research.

He said it was general practitioners who did much of the early work in smallpox and heart disease and added: "You can do research — only let's call it observing, recording and analyzing."

GOOD POSITION

A professor of family medicine, Dr. McWhinney said the general practitioner is in an especially suitable position for studying human patients over a long period of time and following the natural history of diseases.

Earlier, doctors were told that within the next year general practitioners will probably be taking an examination to qualify as specialists in family medicine.

Dr. A. J. MacGregor of Victoria, outgoing president of the College of Family Physicians, said exams, stressing social and psychological knowledge of the patients as well as physical diagnosis, should be available next year.

UBC MAN WINS MEDAL, CASH PRIZE

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Society of Canada announced Tuesday it will present medals and $1,000 cash prizes to four Canadian scholars and scientists at the society's annual meeting June 2 at Ottawa.

Recipients of the awards are Dr. Alexander Brady of the University of Toronto's political economy department, Dr. W. G. Schneider, National Research Council president, Dr. J. J. R. Campbell, head of the University of British Columbia's department of microbiology, and Dr. J. A. Jeletzky of the Geological Survey of Canada.

Most-Wanted Criminal In Canada?

OTTAWA (CP) — Cameron David Bishop, 26, just added to the FBI's list of 10 most-wanted fugitives, is believed to be hiding in Canada, the RCMP said Tuesday.

Bishop, wanted in connection with the dynamiting last January of four transmission-line towers in Colorado, "has stated his willingness to kill a police officer" and "should be considered armed and extremely dangerous," the RCMP said.

An RCMP spokesman said a car used by Bishop was found abandoned in Vancouver last February.

Bishop is a native of Pueblo, Colo. He is white, 5'8" or 5'9" tall, weighs 155 to 165 pounds, has brown eyes, brown hair, a stocky build and a medium complexion. He has worn a beard, long hair and sideburns.

Wage Offer Rejected

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations between Air Canada and the union representing its 6,200 mechanics and maintenance men broke down again Tuesday night when union negotiators rejected a new Air Canada wage offer of 23 per cent increase over three years.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1969 —PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

Across the road from our place, big yellow digding machines are scooping out sewer trenches with diesel-powered ease.

On our side, by way of quaint contrast, a couple of guys with hand-propelled spades and weary backs are renewing a septic tile field.

These toilers are a teen-ager by the name of Bob, and myself. I'm pleased to report that Bob is doing about three-quarters of the work.

Let me make it plain right here that I'm not reproaching

our local government for what might appear to be favoritism. We're on the downslope to Haro Strait, and can be sewered only with the aid of a pumping station which Saanich does not include in its present plans.

However, there's nothing wrong with a well-functioning septic tank and tile field, provided they're given plenty of elbow-room.

Like any other project, digging in a tile line requires some initial study. I made a sketch of the operation, and was filling in measurements when my wife paused to inspect the plan.

"You didn't allow for a nine-inch layer of drain rock under the tile," she said.

"Well," Win said amiably, "that's what the sanitation people told me when I phoned." She borrowed my pencil and made some changes. "See? You wrap the tile joints with building paper, and put strips of tarpaper over them to make a roof. Then you lay another two inches of drain rock over the tarpaper, and building paper over the rock."

★

"Anything else?" I asked her, not too happily.

"Yes," she said. "I'm afraid your trench has to be deeper. The sanitation people said about two feet should be right."

I did some hasty arithmetic, and decided it might be an idea to call Bob in on the deal.

Then, with a fair stretch of daylight still in hand, I went out and turned the first sod.

It was tough with grass roots, and only by jumping up and down on the spade could I make a dint in it. Chunking turf is hard work, but by persevering, I got our line marked out.

This done, I limped in to clean up, and in the process, stole a side-view glance in a mirror.

There's nothing like digging to flatten the silhouette. Mine, however, was discouragingly unaltered. On the debit side, I'd acquired a set of twinges that began in the left instep and ranged upward.

"I thought it might save you some time if I ordered the tile and gravel," Win told me at dinner.

"Gravel, sure," I said. "But what about all that old concrete tile I've been saving?"

"It's against the regulations for septic lines," my dear one said. "The sanitation people told me that, too."

★

Next day, the drain rock arrived, and with it a batch of the proper orange-red tile. Bob turned up. I loaned him my best spade, and was about to join him in the diggings when I remembered commitments elsewhere.

Anyway, in a task of this sort, it's unfair to set an adult pace and expect a boy to match it.

That evening, we strolled down for a look. For a moment I wondered if one of the yellow monsters across the road had waddled down to lend a hand. The trench was mostly dug, and this to a depth that would make the sanitation people very happy. The finished portion was neatly floored with rock wheelbarrowed from the pile.

Since then, the job has progressed very nicely. Though it's but a humble effort compared to the machine-delved operation across the road, we're kind of proud of it.

We're about ready to fit the tar paper roof, apply the other two inches of gravel, and fill in. I expect business elsewhere will keep me from sharing the windup, but perhaps I'll be through in time to replace the sods.

Vast Playhouse For Handicapped

By PAT DUFOUR

The young patients will feel they've moved into a giant-sized playhouse.

David Hambleton, of architects Wagg and Hamilton, said one of their objects was to provide a light airy atmosphere. This has been achieved with artistic effect.

The patients moved into their new quarters this week. It will take some time before they're truly able to appreciate their surroundings. The main floor of the $660,000 building covers 27,400 square feet while the huge basement spreads over 43,000 square feet. The clinic stands on three acres.

Clinic officials are certain the new building is unique in Canada and will prove an example for other organizations dealing with the handicapped.

Nothing has been overlooked. The most modern of equipment has been built in the jumbo-sized physiotherapy room, each piece adding its own splash of color.

A room of the same size at the other end of the building doubles as an assembly and dining area. It's skirted by the most modern of kitchens, complete with a freezer, two stoves, washer and refrigerator.

Day Nursery Service Provided

There's a nursery with built-in cribs that will also be used by parents who wish to leave their children under supervision in order to shop or make other necessary calls.

The four classrooms each have their own sink, cloakroom and bathroom facilities, and an enclosed outside porch, which can be used for both study and play areas.

Occupational and speech therapy rooms are well equipped and attractive. One of the clinic's most recent gifts is $12,000 of equipment to be used with the hard-of-hearing patients. This was donated by the Victoria Rotary Club, project director George Gray said.

A 20 by 40-foot pool, heated to 90 degrees, is designed for use by both walking and wheelchair cases. Gaily-curtained cubicles are available for changing and an observation corridor facilitates overseeing by medical staff.

The floor of the basement play area, to be used on wet days, is staked out with permanently installed shuffleboard checkers, hop-scotch and square ball games.

The ranks of the patients were increased this week by 35 pre-schoolers formerly taught at the Elford Street School for the Retarded and five pre-school children with hearing difficulties.

In many of the rooms overhead supports (looking something like inverted bed springs) have been installed for children who need help with head or limbs.

The clinic will have the wraps taken off officially when Premier W. A. C. Bennett declares it open April 30 at 2 p.m.

It will be completely paid for in three years time when all pledges have been met, at a cost of $17 a square foot.

FREEMAN KING

OVERTIME PERMIT OK

That rambling naturalist, Freeman King, has had his licence to ramble extended for a year by the British Columbia government.

By order-in-council the cabinet extended the well-known Victorian's post as naturalist with the department of recreation and conservation's parks branch at Goldstream.

The order notes that the formal extension is necessary, King "having reached the age of 65."

Freight Rate Effects Minimized

Victoria won't suffer any more than other B.C. points as a result of coming freight rate increases announced today in Montreal.

George Farmer, chairman of the harbor and transportation group in the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said he was not shocked by the announcements but the full picture could not be seen until there is more information.

Canadian Freight Association said 6 per cent boost will be made effective July 14 in two-thirds of 1,500 "agreed-charge" arrangements with individual companies shipping by railways.

The boost will add $3 million to the total revenue of Canadian railways during the last half of 1969, it was estimated.

Farmer said the only agreed-charge bulk shipments coming to Victoria are CNR grain cars delivering to the Ogden Point elevator but a special agreement provides that the Vancouver-Victoria shipping cost will not be increased.

The Express Traffic Association, representing most Canadian railways, also announced that charges for non-carload railway shipments west of Quebec City will be raised between 3 and 10 per cent May. 1.

Farmer said few such shipments are made to Victoria anyway.

"So I don't think the increases will affect Victoria any more than any other place," commented Farmer.

PO Asks Public To Pin-Point Mail Problems

Cause of Slow-Up Object of Probe

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Delays in mail delivery have been increasing, especially in the last two months, prompting a number of complaints.

Stofer and Victoria Postmaster James Deans met Tuesday with officials of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, which has had a small committee looking into the subject for several months.

While not guaranteeing the post office will have all the answers, Stofer said specific instances of delays are being sought along with envelopes and cancellation marks.

This could provide a lead in finding out why there was a delay, he said.

For example, some people have complained it takes five days to receive a letter from Vancouver.

Stofer urged the public and businesses to mail early and often during the day to connect with early flights out of Victoria, rather than hold all the mail until quitting time at the end of the day.

He said late-day mailing is "part of our problem."

At the same time, the post office in Ottawa issued a statement saying the amount of mail being shortpaid is "rather substantial" since postage rates for surface letters and printed matter to other countries took effect last November.

A good portion of the mail with insufficient postage was for addresses in the United Kingdom, Germany, The Netherlands, Switzerland, South Africa, France and Italy.

The statement said short-payment resulted in complaints and criticism by recipients who must pay double the deficient postage.

Mailers were reminded to make note of the correct postage rates for surface letters and printed matter mailed to other countries.

"The importance of the foregoing cannot be too strongly emphasized," said the statement.

U.S. SHIPS VISITING ESQUIMALT

Two United States Navy destroyer-escorts arrived in Esquimalt Tuesday following exercises in local waters with Canadian Navy ships.

USS Bridget and USS Evans were accompanied by destroyer-escorts Qu'Appelle, Yukon, St. Croix and Mackenzie and the submarine Rainbow.

The American ships will leave Friday for their home port of Seattle. Built in 1957, they are both Courtney class escorts.

Marijuana Trafficking Still Means Jail Term

Judge Montague Drake said in county court today that, under Canada's present law, no person found guilty of trafficking in marijuana or LSD can be "let off" with a suspended sentence.

Defence counsel A. N. Patterson said the pre-sentence report on an 18-year-old Victoria youth, convicted of trafficking, suggested a suspended sentence would be desirable.

"But, in view of the decisions of the Court of Appeal, I don't think that course is open to Your Honor."

Judge Drake agreed. He sentenced 18-year-old Raymond Prior to three months definite and 12 months indefinite at the Young Offenders' Unit Haney on two charges of trafficking.

Defence counsel Patterson asked that Prior be give a chance to continue his education, which was halted at Grade 7.

REHABILITATION

"Rehabilitation is obviously called for," said Judge Drake.

Patterson said the pre-sentence report called for by Judge Drake, showed he was not a non-co-operative citizen and did not have any chip on his shoulder against society.

"He has no previous convictions."

Prior had admitted to selling LSD in Centennial Square last Oct. 7.

He was also jointly charged with David Weir, 18, of trafficking in marijuana on Nov. 13 last.

Weir entered a plea of not guilty on the trafficking charge, but was convicted. Judge Drake said he would sentence Weir on April 21.

UNDERCOVER

On the LSD charge, RCMP Constable John O'Neill said an undercover man, Constable Michael Onischuk, met Prior in Centennial Square and arranged to purchase the drug.

He paid $75 for it.

On the joint charge against Weir and Prior, Constable Onischuk said the trafficking deal was arranged in a downtown department store.

Ask The Times

Q. On traffic signals, why is the red at the top and the green at the bottom? D.F.

A. The red, being the most important of the two signal colors, is placed at the top so as to give it greater prominence and make it visible at a greater distance. Another reason is that the color is less likely to be obscured by high trucks and other abnormally-large vehicles, according to highways and police officials.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Kiddies' Theme for Parade

The Victoria Day parade will have a children's theme this year to get away from the "serious centennial business we've had for the last umpteen years."

This year's parade will also be cut to about half its usual length, but quality will be improved, a Greater Victoria Celebrations Association spokesman said today.

Association chairman John Rafter said the "Children's Fantasy" theme was chosen because "normally the parade is for children anyway."

As for length, organizers hope the procession will pass any spot on its route down Douglas Street from the Mayfair shopping centre to Belleville Street in about 1½ hours.

Only a few local entries have so far been received and organizers emphasized that applications must be in by May 2, eight days before the parade.

MAJOR LOCAL INDUSTRY, SAYS PLANNER

29,000 RETIRED PERSONS

South V.I. Retirement Centre for All Canada

Southern Vancouver Island is becoming the retirement centre for Canada.

This view was presented to the Capital Region Planning Board Tuesday at its second seminar and review of regional planning in the area from Sooke to Sidney.

CRPB planner John Northey said the retirement industry is an invisible one, but it was a "strong, highly important" sector of the economy.

He produced a welter of statistics to show this, pointing out that the retirement industry is bigger than manufacturing.

In fact, in terms of payroll, it was nearly equivalent to the major employer—the federal government.

In another comparison, he said retirement income was equivalent to a shipyard payroll of 6,800 persons.

But he cautioned later that a shipyard of such size would result in greater retail sales than the retirement industry because the workers would be heavier purchasers of consumer goods.

It was estimated that there were between 28,000 and 29,000 retired persons in this area in mid-1968, which is only slightly less than the combined populations of Oak Bay and Esquimalt municipalities.

Just over 11 per cent of total income in the area came from investments or pensions, the highest rate in Canada. Most metropolitan areas had a figure of four to five per cent.

Two reasons given by retired persons for coming here were the attractiveness of the region and the climate.

The seminar was entitled How Are the Bills Paid and Northey's comments followed some suggestions by elected officials that the area should be attracting certain specialized industries.

"Comfortable retirement is what this area can provide," said North Saanich Ald. Trevor Davis after Northey's presentation. "This aspect is more important than perhaps it has been credited."

Of those who come, 45 per cent were from the Prairies, 20 per cent from other parts of British Columbia and lesser amounts from Ontario. The United States total was "very small."

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, said the economics of the region are one of the essential foundations of its life and growth.

Roughly 70,000 persons work for a living, or a third of the population, but in 1951 this figure was 40 per cent. The number of workers was increasing, but the percentage of the total population was slipping.

One of the obvious reasons for this is the number of retired people, he said.

The percentage of the labor force who are men was declining (today's figure of 73 per cent was predicted to fall to 60 per cent by 1981) while the female percentage was rising correspondingly.

If nothing interrupts the trend, the labor force will be equally divided between men and women by the end of the century.

A number of reasons were advanced for this—the decline in the stigma attached to the working mother, more part-time work which is suitable for mothers, improved contraception, deferred motherhood after marriage.

There were more and more pressures to buy more and more consumer goods and the service industries were suitable employment areas for women. The trend in female employment is "pretty much the same as the rest of Canada."

A breakdown of the labor force showed 14,638 people working for government, including defence, 13,020 in service industries, 7,199 in retail and 5,960 in manufacturing.

By 1981, it was predicted the government workers would increase to 23,000 but service workers would jump to 24,000 and take the lead. Retail would increase to 11,100 and manufacturing to 7,600.

Serenade of Moans and Groans . . .

. . . as Tourists Dine First

MEAL LINE-UP UPSETS COME IN PRE-PACKAGED AMOUNTS

By PETE LOUDON

The season of meal hour upsets has returned to the B.C. ferries and its isn't mal de mer.

The people getting upset are the ones in the line-up for the dining room.

It doesn't happen every trip, just on those where pre-arranged package bus tours are aboard. The scenario, leading up to a ferryboat serenade of moans and groans goes like this:

The ferry docks, unloads and passengers and traffic stream aboard, the fastest movers leading the line-up at the in-door to the dining room. Then everyone stands there until the ship leaves the wharf and the door opens.

What starts the steam rising is when the waiters learn that streaming through the out-door into the dining room and filling up the booths, is a party of tourists — no delays for them, no line-ups.

The tourists are travelling at reduced rates; the waiting locals have paid full fare and they've also paid for a car in most cases. On top of that, they built the ferry with their taxes.

Ferry boss M. F. Aldous said today an attempt is being made to schedule tour buses to and from the mainland between meal hours.

"We are avoiding it as much as possible." But he says there are reasons for the back door admissions. The operator of the tour bus pays the bill for his whole party. He wants them seated together to maintain better control.

Why doesn't the tour bus wait until the people in the line-up have been served? Aldous says this would mean scattering the tourists through the dining room and inconveniencing passengers by asking them to move to permit the tourists to sit together.

This is, however, a difficult message to communicate to a line-up of hungry locals — the ones who supply the ferry with its trade winter and summer — the ones who almost alone in Canada, must pay to use the Trans-Canada Highway.

Private Family Funeral Will Be Held For Hunter Lost in Woods 25 Years Ago

A private family funeral will likely be held for Leslie Heal, lost while hunting 25 years ago, the brother of the dead man told the Times.

Victor Heal of 6533 Central Saanich said the family had not had time to settle funeral arrangements yet.

A signet ring with the initials LH was among effects found with a skelton near Dymple Lake, south of Lake Cowichan, by a logging company tree-planting crew last Friday.

Leslie Heal disappeared in the dense bush country Nov. 5, 1944, while deer hunting with two companions. Over 200 searchers combed the area for days but found no trace of the 26-year-old leading aircraftsman, then stationed with the 122nd Squadron, RCAF, at the Pat Bay Airport.

Record-Spinners Help Blues Swing

Plante Equals Broda's Record As Kings Blanked

ST. LOUIS (CP) — The 81st shutout of Jacques Plante's lengthy National Hockey League career probably was his most rewarding in many ways.

Plante gained the shutout Tuesday night as St. Louis Blues blanked Los Angeles Kings 4-0 in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals.

It was the 13th for the 40-year-old Plante in Stanley Cup play, tying a record held by Turk Broda, former Toronto Maple Leaf goaltender. Plante also has 68 regular-season shutouts, five of them coming this season.

"After being out for three years, I didn't think I'd play in another playoff game let alone tie a record," said Plante, who retired in 1965 and made a comeback this season with the Blues.

Sharing the spotlight with Plante Tuesday night was centre Red Berenson, who scored three second-period goals to tie a Stanley Cup record for the most goals in a period.

SHARE THE RECORD

The late Harvey (Busher) Jackson, Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Ted Lindsay share the record with Richard accomplishing the feat three times.

The second game of the series will be played here Thursday night, with the third and fourth games scheduled for Los Angeles during the weekend.

"I didn't think about a shutout until there was less than two minutes to play," said Plante, who registered two in the Blues' four-game sweep over Philadelphia Flyers in the Western Division semi-final.

It was the second time in his career that Plante has recorded three shutouts in playoffs.

"I had three in 1960 when Montreal won the cup in eight straight games—two against Chicago and one against Toronto," he said.

Plante kicked out 30 shots Tuesday night and described them all as difficult.

BROKE GAME OPEN

Berenson, who broke the game wide open with his second-period outburst, shrugged off suggestions that he would get a new car from the Blues for his performance.

"It's fine to tie a record, but it's more important that we win," Berenson said.

An enthusiastic crowd of 15,638 saw the Blues take a 1-0 lead in the first period when Larry Keenan, only a five-goal scorer during the season, got his third goal of the playoffs.

Then in the second period, Berenson went to work.

The Blues, idle for nine days since disposing of Philadelphia, appeared to be bursting with energy. But the Kings, who won the deciding game in their quarter-final series against Oakland Seals Sunday night, looked tired.

The Blues' Bob Plager assisted on the first two St. Louis goals and was responsible for most of the fireworks in the relatively clean contest.

He picked up a major penalty in the first period after a fight with Los Angeles forward Bill Flett and drew another for elbowing winger Lowell MacDonald early in the third. The two majors resulted in an automatic misconduct and Plager added another misconduct later in the period.

Fan Shatters Turk's Aplomb

BOSTON (CP)—It could be bad news for Montreal Canadiens—the Turk has snapped out of his depression.

The Turk is Derek Sanderson, last year's Rookie of the Year in the National Hockey League, and one reason this year that Boston Bruins have been keeping pace with Montreal.

In a town that idolizes its sports figures, Sanderson has been raised to the status of super hero.

Kids stop him for his autograph or hang around after practice to pick up his broken hockey sticks. Teen-age girls flock around the young swinger from Niagara Falls, Ont.

Oldsters sit in the penalty box lounge near Boston Garden and compare him to Bruin greats of the past.

UPSET ABOUT LOSSES

The depression set in when Boston dropped the second overtime decision to Montreal in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

Sanderson left the ice and sat transfixed in the locker room.

He was silent on the plane home and he walked quickly through the welcome-back crowd at the airport.

Later, he turned up alone at the Garden for treatment of a charley horse bothering him since the NHL quarter-final against Toronto.

"Older players feel it just as badly for the moment but they know the world hasn't come to an end. They know there are two games home, here, and they know we can win."

What may have snapped Sanderson out of his mood was a fan letter from a young boy.

The Turk exploded when he got it.

Then he read it out.

WANTS ORR'S AUTOGRAPH

"Dear Mr. Sanderson. Would you please get me Bobby Orr's autograph? I've written him several times but he never answers my letters. I know he is busy and gets a lot of mail. You don't, so I'd appreciate it if. . . ."

Suddenly Sanderson, 22, was back to earth and telling stories about his childhood.

"I was only eight years old and I was called for a tripping penalty. I went to the box and cried. The next time I was called it was for charging and I laughed. I grew up in a hurry."

About Montreal, he said:

"We are a better team than they are. We are going to knock them right out of the rink Thursday, right? And then we'll beat them again Sunday, right?"

Twins' Silent Fireman Checks Oakland Rally

By The Associated Press

Minnesota manager Billy Martin went out of his way not to talk to Ron Perranoski Tuesday and the ace reliever responded with a silent treatment of his own.

The Twins managed to hang on to a 5-4 victory over Oakland Athletics but not before the Athletics rallied for two ninth-inning runs and had runners at first and second with two men out.

Perranoski was summoned in from the bullpen and the count on Ted Kubiak reached 3-1 when Martin, angered by plate umpire Jerry Neudecker's calls, raced to the mound as if to talk to his pitcher.

"I wanted to go out and talk to the umpire," said Martin. "I figured if I pretended to talk to Perranoski I wouldn't get thrown out of the game.

"Neudecker said 'Are you taking him (Perranoski) out?' and I said no. He told me to leave. So I asked him how his family was and left."

Kubiak then walked to load the bases but Perranoski got Bert Campaneris to hit a game-ending foreceout grounder and the Twins had their second straight victory after four losses.

In other American League games, Cleveland Indians won their first game after five consecutive defeats, 3-2 over Detroit Tigers in 10 innings, New York Yankees slammed Washington Senators 8-2 and Baltimore Orioles dropped Boston Red Sox 10-5.

SINGLE WINS GAME

Minnesota got homers from Rich Reese, Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva but a ninth-inning run-scoring single by Oliva proved the winner. Killebrew's blast was the 399th of his career.

Alex Johnson found some rhythm in his bat Tuesday and now San Francisco Giants are singing the blues.

Johnson drove in five runs with two homers and a ground out, then tripled in the 12th inning and scored on Johnny Bench's single, sending Cincinnati Reds past San Francisco 11-10 in a wild slugfest.

Meanwhile, Andy Kosco slammed a grand-slam homer and two-run double as Los Angeles Dodgers ruined Johnny Podres' homecoming and crushed San Diego Padres 14-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Claude Osteen.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Mets trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 6-3, snapping a four-game losing string, Houston Astros topped Atlanta Braves 4-2 behind rookie right-hander Tom Griffin, St. Louis Cardinals edged Montreal Expos 4-3 and Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4.

Ex-Champs Roll To Second Round

Visitors displayed a flash of strength Tuesday but defending champion Jim Barry—Victoria's lone contender—remained in contention after the first round of match play in the 39th annual Empress tournament at the Victoria Golf Club.

Barry sidelined Ernie Martin of Seattle, 3 and 2, while Pross Clark of Portland, a co-medallist and one of the five former winners in the running, carded a 2 and 1 win from Ray Perry of Calgary.

Jim Snider of Portland, Ray Tull of Clagary and Vancouver's Herb Fritz also sidelined opponents with Tull the only one of the past winners having to go a full 18 holes.

Women's medallist Mrs. William King of Burlington, Wash., moved to the quarter-finals with a 4 and 3 victory over Mrs. R. Welch of Calgary.

Victoria Mechanic Injured

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — James Stainton, 38, a pitman from Fresno injured Sunday in Hanford when he stepped into the path of a race car driven by Mario Andretti during the California 200 race, died Tuesday at Fresno Community Hospital.

Stainton suffered massive head injuries when he tried to get away from a fire in a neighboring pit and stumbled into the path of Andretti's turbo-Ford, which was just coming into the pit for a stop.

In addition to Stainton, pitmen Grant King of Victoria and Ed Stratton suffered burns from the same flaming racer, driven by Portland's Art Pollard, that forced Stainton into Adretti's path.

Among the drivers slightly injured in the race were Roger McClusky, who spun out on the 67th lap and Garry Bettenhausen, who crashed into the back stretch retaining wall forcing the final four laps to be run under a yellow flag.

RESPECTED RECEIVER LATEST LION RECRUIT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Standout pass receiver Howie Taylor, of New Mexico State University, has signed a 1969 contract with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

Taylor holds receiving records at New Mexico State for a single game, season and career. During his final year, the 200-pound 21-year-old caught 40 passes for 545 yards for a two-season total of 89 catches and 1,184 yards.

Taylor will probably play split end, or running back or, in special situations, defensive end, Lions' coach Jim Champion said.

Spinning Turnstiles Montreal's Delight

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos have to draw at least 1,200,000 customers to their 81 National League home games this year to break even financially and if early indications are anything, they won't have any trouble doing so.

The Expos, Montreal's latest sports heroes, attracted 14,718 Tuesday for what seemed like an ordinary ball game compared with Monday's opener. But they couldn't come up with another victory as St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Expos 4-3 on a ninth-inning run.

Tuesday's attendance, which some observers called an above-average attendance for an afternoon game in the week, boosted the Expos' attendance to 43,902 for the two-game stand against the defending league champions.

The fans were no less enthusiastic in Tuesday's game but the atmosphere and excitement generated by the first game ever played outside the United States wasn't the same.

The Expos matched the Cardinals almost hit for hit through the first four innings and starting pitcher Mike Morton and reliever Don Shaw combined to put on a fine pitching performance.

Shaw worked five innings in relief, gave up three hits, one run, walked three and struck out four but was tagged with the loss when the Cardinals scored the tie-breaking run in the top of the ninth.

Roller Hockey On the Scene

Tigers defeated Barons 5-2 and Falcons scuttled Islanders 7-3 during premier action of the newly-formed Greater Victoria Roller Hockey League Tuesday night at Memorial Arena.

Brian Lee scored three goals to pace Tigers while singles were added by Ray Saxon and Robin Pearson. Al Aldonen replied both times for Barons.

Gordon Pengelly and Ed Warneken each fired three goals and Chuck McGregor added a single for Falcons while Rick Miller (2) and Rick Fyfe handled scoring duties for Islanders.

Next Tuesday, Falcons take on Tigers at 8 p.m. and Barons face Islanders at 9. Admission is free to all interested.

SOME SEE RED . . . . . . IN BLACKOUT

Irate Fan's 'Cut-Up'

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Police are investigating the possibility that an irate hockey fan may be behind the severing of an antenna guy cable that closed down CKLW-TV for several hours Tuesday night.

The station went off the air and employees were evacuated after it was discovered one of the cables supporting th 650-foot antenna had been sawn through.

Police cordoned off a three-block area and stopped all traffic near the station's downtown site. Residents of nearby houses were also moved out.

The severed guy wire was discovered about 8 p.m. by an employee coming off shift. Detectives said a hacksaw was used to cut the shackle holding the half-inch steel cable supporting the top section of the mast.

Officials said the station had received an anonymous letter two to three weeks ago threatening to topple the antenna if National Hockey League games were "blacked out."

S. Campbell Ritchie manager of the station, said CKLW does not "black out" NHL games "but it is difficult to explain that to viewers."

Bettor's 'Mistake' Profitable

MONTREAL (CP) — An unidentified man made a $10 "mistake" that turned into a profit of almost $6,000 at Blue Bonnets Raceway Tuesday night.

A spokesman for the track said the error occurred in the daily double wagering when the man approached the wicket and wagered on the 8-2 combination five times.

The man remarked to friends that he had intended to wager on the 2-9 combination and realized his error only after placing the bet. Tickets cannot be changed once a wager is made.

As it turned out the 8-2 combination, longshot Foul Ball in the first race and Sterling Jones in the second, was a good bet as the two combined for a $1,167.60 daily double payoff.

Multiply that five times and the mistake turned into a $5,838 profit.

Foul Ball paid $134.80, $34.20 and $7.90 and Sterling Jones returned $13.60, $7.30 and $5.30.

Shores Still Hopeful

VANCOUVER—Vancouver Firefighters virtually assured themselves of a League playoff berth by defeating Vancouver Eintracht 2-0 Tuesday night.

The win gave the third-place Firemen 29 points with one game to play.

Fourth-place New Westminster Labatts have 28 points with two games left and the only team which can overtake either of them is North Shore, which has 21 points and four games left.

Vancouver Columbus and University of British Columbia have already sewn up the first two playoff spots.

Inside forward Normie McLeod gave Firefighters a 1-0 lead at 35 minutes on a pass from Robbie Goodheart and McLeod's long throw set up winger Dave Hutton for the clinching goal midway through the second half.

The shutout was the ninth of the season for goalie Mike Gilmore.

Tonight, New Westminster meets North Shore at Callister Park and the George Wright-coached Labs then visit Victoria's Royal Athletic Park on Saturday for a match that will wrap up the season for both teams.

FIRST WORKOUT THURSDAY

LINEUP A QUESTION MARK

It's Cultivating Time for Shamrocks

It's the time of year to "cultivate" Shamrocks.

Victoria Shamrock coach Tom Druce will begin the cultivation process by proxy Thursday night at the first practice of the Western Lacrosse Association team.

Druce will be at work when players hit the floor for the first time at 8 p.m. but team manager Hec McNeill and junior Shamrocks' coach Tom Collett will put team hopefuls through their paces at Memorial Arena and report back to Druce.

"I won't know until after Thursday night who is and who isn't going to play," said Druce. "I haven't heard a thing from any of the last year's players—just rumors."

Defenceman Billy Gray, now a commercial pilot, is one who will not be available.

"We plan to bring in top-flight juniors both from here and Nanaimo," said team president Keith Dorman, who concedes there "will be some vacancies."

First game on the Rocks' schedule is the opener of a three-game exhibition series on May 3 against New Westminster Salmonbellies in Surrey.

Shamrocks' first league game is on May 20.

Special High Performance Note. If you own a high performance car, be sure to mention that fact to your Esso dealer. Reason—your car should be shod with Atlas high performance tires for top operating performance. Choose between wide ovals, radials, bias belted and fibre glass tires—your Esso dealer will advise you firsthand.

Free Shock Test. Have your car's shock absorbers tested free of charge at your Esso station. If you need new shock absorbers you can take advantage of more sale prices—just $7.88* each, for all standard shocks. Remember, new shock absorbers do more than just improve your ride and stability. They also reduce wear on your tires and that can be a very important dollar saver!

See your Esso dealer as soon as possible for the tire and shock absorber values of the year. Remember, you can use cash or your Esso-Matic Credit card but you must act within the next 72 hours or you'll have to wait until 1970. That's when our annual sale blooms again.

Fast Climb In Salaries

West Coast's Top Executives Highest Paid, Survey Shows

TORONTO (CP)—Despite the frequent criticism by some executives of workers' wage increases and union demands, salaries of the men at the top have been rising faster in recent years.

The latest annual survey of senior management salaries by H. V. Chapman and Associates Ltd., a nationwide executive placement firm, shows they have gone up by an average of 60 per cent since 1961.

ROSE EIGHT PER CENT

The report says executive salaries rose by about eight per cent last year—compared with 7.3 per cent for hourly-rated workers in manufacturing—and should climb by another 8.7 per cent this year.

Executives on the West Coast received the highest average, $52,350 a year. Quebec executives got $47,800, Ontario $40,700, Prairie $38,300 and Maritimes $26,150.

Since 1961, salaries of Quebec executives have gone up by 73.3 per cent, compared with 60 per cent over-all.

The boss of a company with an annual sales volume of less than $3,000,000 averaged $26,200 last year.

In companies with sales of $3,000,000 to $10,000,000, salaries averaged $39,950. Sales over $50,000,000 meant an average salary of $58,750.

Canada-U.S. War Claimed Conceivable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Russell B. Long (Dem. La.) defending oil import quotas, said Tuesday it is conceivable the United States and Canada may some day be at war with each other.

Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) had just said that the national defence argument for the quota program left out of account Canadian oil that would be available to this country in case of war.

Long, in an exchange on the Senate floor, asked him how he knew the U.S. might not sometime be at war with Canada.

When Proxmire asked him if he were serious, Long replied that it is entirely conceivable to him that a U.S.-Canadian war could occur.

Long said that if anyone had said 20 years ago that war between the U.S. and Cuba was a possibility, he would have told him he was dreaming—but it no longer is inconceivable.

He also said the United States cannot rely on Canada for oil in case of war with Russia because Soviet leaders might threaten to destroy Canadian cities unless oil shipments were halted.

Union Head Quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Chemago resigned Monday as president of Local 170 of the Plumbers Union following rejection by plumbers Sunday of a new contract package endorsed by the union.

"REAL WILD, fantastic," is the description given Princess Anne's dancing on a London stage with the hippiecast of Hair. The teen-aged princess and three friends took in the performance and then, accepting an invitation, wound up dancing on stage with the cast. Company manager of the American musical show, Peter Kendal, said the princess "was fantastic, real wild." The royal group listened to the show's crop of four-letter words and watched the nude scene without batting an eye. Princess Anne was on stage for almost 10 minutes.

NEW CRISIS GRIPS CZECHS

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A new split between liberal and conservative elements in Czechoslovakia was hinted at today as a possible reason for the cancellation of a trip to Moscow by party leader Alexander Dubcek.

Reports from usually reliable sources in Moscow indicated the Czechoslovak leader was on his way to the Russian capital or had actually arrived there Tuesday. But Czechoslovak sources denied Dubcek was flying to Moscow and the Russian sources later admitted they had been misinformed.

Informed sources in Prague suggested the trip was cancelled because of sharp disagreement between liberal and conservative elements over a speech scheduled to be delivered Thursday by Dubcek at a crucial meeting of the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee.

The sources said the draft, prepared by pro-Moscow hardliners Pavel Auerberg and Jan Voitech, was unacceptable to the liberals and Dubcek thus postponed his Moscow trip to help forge a compromise.

The crucial meeting comes at a time of heavy Soviet pressure on Czechoslovakia to restore full Communist orthodoxy and the meeting is expected to rubberstamp tough new restrictions previously announced to curb the press and wayward liberals.

Former Queen Of Spain Dies at 81

The former queen, widow of Spain's last king, Alfonso XIII, and granddaughter of Britain's Queen Victoria, died at 11:18 p.m. She had been in a coma since Saturday. She had lived in exile since she fled from Spain 38 years ago Wednesday and had resided at her villa here since 1945.

A daughter of Prince Henri de Battenberg and Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, she married King Alfonso in May, 1906, at Madrid.

$500 Fine On Dangerous Driving Count

David Anderson, 805 Dereen Place, was fined $500 by Magistrate J. A. Byers. His driver's licence was suspended. A negligence charge was withdrawn.

Court was told his car was in collision with an oil truck at Moss and Rockland. Damage was $6,500 when the truck, which carried 1,500 gallons of oil, overturned.

Three youths in the car were injured.

Rites Friday For Holder Of OBE

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3:30 p.m. in St. Luke's Anglican Church, 3821 Cedar Hill Cross Road, for Dr. Edmund Godfrey Burr, a 20-year resident of Victoria and holder of the Order of the British Empire.

Born at Kent, England, 83-year-old Dr. Burr was a professor emeritus of electrical engineering at McGill University. He died Sunday at his home at 2930 Seaview Road.

He came to Canada in 1906. His scientific researches led him into secret defence work during the Second World War and his missions took him to the United States and Britain.

Dr. Burr's wife, Grace, died in 1967. His only relative in Canada is Dr. Alan Burr of Vancouver, a grand-nephew.

Lack of Canvassers Prolongs Annual Solarium Fund Drive

Members of the Junior League to the Queen Alexandra Solarium may be working on their annual residential drive until the end of the month.

Treasurer Mrs. J. M. Crockett said today: "The girls will be canvassing until the end of the week. Then we'll have to take an inventory and cover the spots that have been missed. This could take until the end of the month."

Mrs. Crockett attributed the extended campaign to a lack of volunteers but said that Monday's drive had been successful.

"By 11 p.m. Monday we had 12 reporting in and $5,200 collected. Most said they had covered only one-third of their area, some a half."

This year's target is $35,000.

Money raised in the fund drive will cover part of the Solarium's maintenance costs which Mrs. Ralph Nickels, the league's publicity representative, said amounts to more than $300,000.

SIDNEY LIKES HOVERCRAFT

If Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. applied for a permit to operate from Sidney, council would be inclined to grant it, Mayor Arthur Freeman said today.

About 160 persons were taken for a ride in a hovercraft demonstration Sunday.

Roof-Top Offices Proposed

The University of Victoria's campus planning committee has recommended construction of offices on the roof of the laboratory wing of the Elliott Building.

The committee, headed by Dr. John Dewey, associate professor of physics, suggested in a report to the senate the roof-top offices could be converted for use by the astronomy department when the campus gets new science facilities.

The Elliott Building now houses four natural science departments: physics, biology, chemistry and astronomy. The university plans separate buildings for each science as the campus expands.

Tenders have been called for a new biology building to be completed in July, 1970, beside the Elliott Building.

MPs Bitterly Hit Crusade For Seal Pups

By IAN TURNER

OTTAWA (CP)—Brian Davies, of the New Brunswick SPCA, ran into an unofficial Atlantic SPCE—society for the prevention of cruelty to the economy—in a Comomns committee Tuesday that assailed his campaign against seal hunters.

Mr. Davies, executive secretary of New Brunswick's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has led an international crusade against the annual hunt for seal-pup pelts off Canada's East Coast.

Towards the end of an often-bitter encounter with MPs through afternoon and evening sessions of the fisheries committee, Mr. Davies complained that he had been subjected to "villification and abuse that I didn't believe could happen in Canada."

Mr. Davies, invited as a witness, said the committee's investigation of the seal hunt had been "a charade of justice".

"I am ashamed to be a Canadian and ashamed of my government," he said.

He added he would continue his fight against the seal hunts "for the rest of my life if necessary."

Mr. Davies tangled verbally with Atlantic-region MPs and Douglas Hogarth (L—New Westminster).

Nova Scotian Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore) accused the witness of giving Canada a black eye throughout the world and "causing a loss of $500,000 in an area that can ill afford it."

MP Blasts 'Contemptuous Attitude'

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said it has been suggested Mr. Davies is involved in a business venture, with more than saving seals at stake.

"Your remarks are unworthy of you," responded Mr. Davies.

Mr. Lundrigan bristled, saying he would not accept "the contemptuous attitude of the witnesses."

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) called out to Mr. Davies that he was not addressing an annual meeting of the SPCA.

"That is quite evident," shot back the witness.

Mr. McGrath bridled in turn, and demanded without effect that the remark be struck from the record.

Mr. Hogarth, who addressed Mr. Davies as "Witness," asked if he knew he was setting out to destroy markets and make sealing unprofitable.

"That is correct, sir," Mr. Davies replied.

Later, he said he is "concerned very deeply at the loss of income to fishermen" but the federal government should find them employment other than clubbing seals to death.

Mr. Hogarth quoted Mr. Davies writing in a New Brunswick SPCA publication, describing "a mother seal crawling back to see what was once her baby with a love that lasts after death."

The MP quoted pathologists and veterinarians saying that, compared to most mammals, the female seal is a relatively disinterested mother who forgets quickly.

Mr. Davies said it was his experience that some mother seals did try to protect their pups from the hunters, and said other experts had noticed that same thing.

'Pup Wriggling in Pool of Blood'

New Brunswick SPCA for the World Federation for Protection of Animals, was screened at the evening session.

It showed hunters clubbing seal pups and some pups wriggling in pools of blood after they were hit. Mr. Davies said he did not claim that the pups were still alive. The motions could have been post-mortal reflex action.

He said killing methods are much improved from a few years ago.

In 1967 about 37 per cent of dead pups examined were judged to have died slowly because their skulls weren't crushed. The figure now is 3.3 per cent, he said.

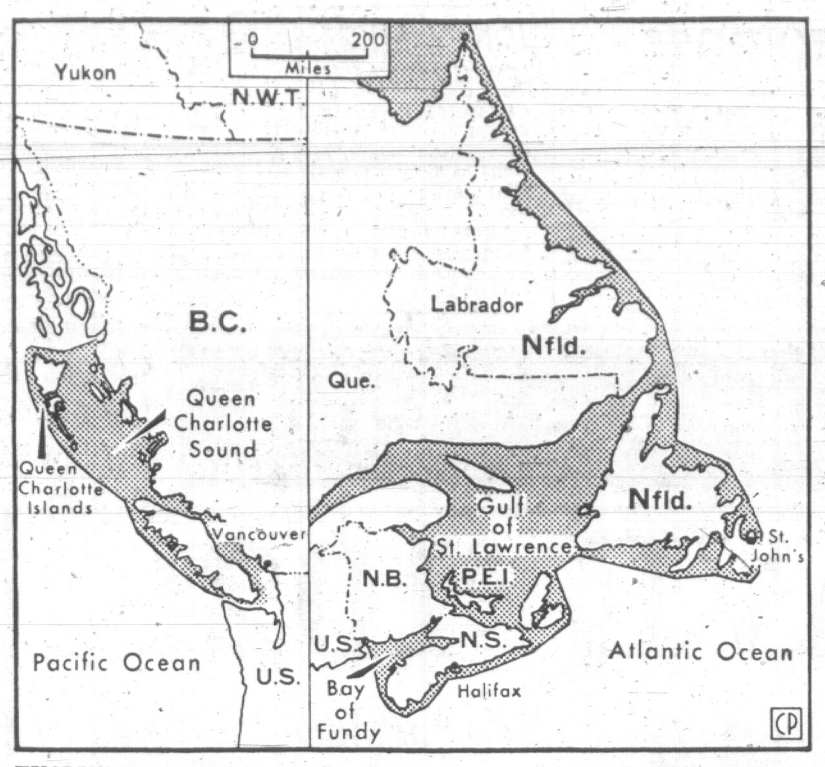
The seals were no longer in danger of extinction because of the federal government's quota system, he said. "If you have to kill seals," clubbing was probably the most humane way of doing it, he added.

When asked if he would prefer that the seals die from disease or predators rather than by human hands if the population became excessive, he said "yes."

He later qualified this by saying that if there were suffering caused by an excessive seal population he "would consider altering" his views.

Mr. Davies suggested that such a situation might be solved by controlling the population with drugs or selectively killing adult females.

He denied that any of the parts of his film had been faked. He had no way of knowing whether the hunters involved were inexperienced because his photographers were under orders not to talk to the hunters.



EXCLUSIVE fishing zones off both the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts planned by Canada are shown in map. Plan is to bar foreign fishermen from Queen Charlotte Sound and Gulf of St. Lawrence. Boundary would extend 12 miles out from baseline drawn from headland to headland along both coasts. Zones would prove blow to Russian and Japanese fishing fleets. Existing treaty covering fishermen from the United States will continue to be observed. (CP Photo.)

P.E.I. Hikes Sales Tax; $1 Million Deficit Likely

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — An increase to seven from five per cent in the provincial sales tax was the only tax boost included in the Prince Edward Island budget brought down Tuesday night by Provincial Treasurer T. Earl Hickey.

Mr. Hickey said the increase, effective immediately, will bring an additional $2,000,000 into the treasury.

The budget estimated a deficit of $1,275,965 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1970. Expenditures were expected to reach $69,678,632 and revenues $68,402,667.

Alban Farmer (PC—Queens 5th), finance minister in the Conservative administration of 1959-66, said the sales tax increase will cost P.E.I. families an additional $90 annually. He said provincial residents were already financially oppressed and this was not the time to increase taxes.

OTTAWA GIVES MORE

At eight per cent, Quebec and New Brunswick have the highest provincial sales taxes in Canada. It is seven per cent in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and now P.E.I. and five per cent in the other provinces, except Alberta, which has none.

Mr. Hickey said the province will get an additional $10,218,190 from Ottawa this year under the federal-provincial development plan, designed to improve the province's faltering economy.

The 15-year plan, signed here March 7 by Premier Alex Campbell and Federal Development Minister Jean Marchand, will bring $225,000,000 from Ottawa, while the province will add $500,000,000 of its own money.

George Key, Conservative party leader without a legislature seat, said outside the house the government did not seem to be attempting to reduce expenditures and government members seemed to be excited over the spending increase.

Mr. Hickey blamed the large increase in total expenditures on rising prices, increased salaries for teachers, nurses and civil servants and money to be spent on the development plan.

The sales tax increase is not as regressive as it might appear, he said. Exempt from the tax are food, children's clothing, heating fuel, electricity, drugs, farm machinery and fishing and manufacturing equipment.

Plumber Strike Idles Workers at Mines

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 200 plumbers were on strike and hundreds of allied construction workers idled Tuesday in the wake of Sunday's union rejection of a proposed contract.

About 400 construction men refused to cross picket lines of six plumbers at Kaiser Resources Ltd. coal mine construction site north of Fernie.

Another 425 men were idled when 20 plumbers went on strike at the Brenda Mines Ltd. construction site at Peachland in the Okanagan Valley.

The strike was expected to spread today as more 72-hour strike notices run out. About 2,800 plumbers could be involved.

Talks were to continue today, between the Plumbers Union and the Mechanical Industrial Relations Association.

CCC President Raps Ottawa

NANAIMO—Both the federal government and the Opposition are failing to show responsibility, A. Searle Leach, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said here Tuesday.

Liberals and Conservatives are demonstrating "picayune gamesmanship" at a time when responsible government and opposition is needed, he told the chamber.

"The time has come for the government and the opposition to behave as they have the power to."

Leach said nothing seems to have been done in Ottawa since Prime Minister Trudeau's government came to power.

The promised tax reforms, balanced budget, price and income commission and regional development had not yet appeared.

"Time is beginning to run out and they must begin to produce," he said.

NEVER SPANNED

The 2,600-mile-long Mekong River has never been spanned by a bridge or slowed by a dam.

THREE ABOARD MISSING AIRCRAFT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Search was resumed today for three men missing on a three-day return flight between Fort Simpson and Virginia Falls, N.W.T., in a wheel-equipped light aircraft.

The aircraft, owned by Gateway Aviation of Edmonton, left Fort Simpson, 150 miles east of Virginia Falls and 650 miles northwest of Edmonton, Saturday, carrying a pilot and two federal government employees conducting water resources investigation. They were to return Monday.

Names of the three men have not been released.

Long Road To Peking —Sharp

TOKYO (Reuters) — Canada expects its negotiations for recognition of Communist China to be long but ultimately successful, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

He said a precise date for the talks to start in Stockholm is not set yet, but latest word from Peking gives reason to expect they will get under way in the Swedish capital next month.

Canada can understand why China will want to be careful and go slowly, he commented. It was probable the Canada-Peking negotiations would pave the way for Chinese negotiations with other countries so China would want to take care.

Sharp, here for a regular ministerial conference with Japan, said his government will press on with efforts to exchange diplomats with Peking although the United States and Japan "would prefer we do not do it."

SETTING NO CONDITIONS

He told foreign correspondents that Canada will set no prior conditions.

"But we are not going to China cap in hand and saying this matter is so important to us we will accept any conditions whatever."

"We are not pursuing a two-China policy," he said. "Our aim at the moment is to recognize the Peking regime rather than the Taiwan regime as the government of China.

"We couldn't recognize two China's at the same time."

While efforts at establishing diplomatic relations with Peking are popular among Canadians, Prime Minister Trudeau is not pushing the step for this reason alone, he said in reply to questions.

"Canadians have for some time been interested in bringing about contacts with Peking. Canadians have been critical of their government because they haven't done so sooner."

TRADE NOT THE BAIT

He said improved trade relations with mainland China is not the bait in seeking contacts with Peking.

He noted that Canada already has substantil trade with China and this is governed by an agreement that goes back well before the Communist revolution and the division of the mainland and Nationalist China.

Canada is seeking the tie as a contribution toward world peace, he said.

Laymen May Help Choose RC Bishops

OTTAWA (CP) — Roman Catholic bishops in Canada plan to ask the Vatican to give them a collective voice in the nomination of future bishops in this country, it was reported Tuesday.

If the Vatican approves the formula they are working out, laymen will win a modest, indirect role in the selection of their bishops as well.

Details of the formula were given at a press briefing here by Msgr. Gerard-Marie Coderre, Bishop of St. Johns, Que., and Most Rev. Norman Gallagher, Auxiliary Bishop of Montreal. The formula is under discussion at the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian hierarchy this week and will be put to a vote Thursday.

Under the formula, a bishops' committee would be set up at the national level to receive and consider names of priests who might become bishops. Whenever a vacant see occurred, the committee, acting jointly with the apostolic delegate, the Vatican's representative in Canada, would submit names of three candidates from which the Vatican would make its choice.

The priest finally approached by the Vatican would be allowed "to consult discreetly with responsible people" before giving his answer—a radical departure from the current rule, which requires him to keep his secret from all other mortals unless and until he has accepted his higher status.

NO RIGHT

At present, the apolostolic delegate has exclusive authority to submit the traditional three names to Rome. He does so usually after consultation with individual bishops in the region concerned.

But ordinary priests, from whose ranks bishops are chosen, and laymen have no right of consultation.

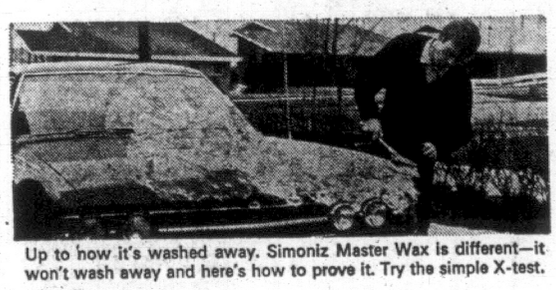
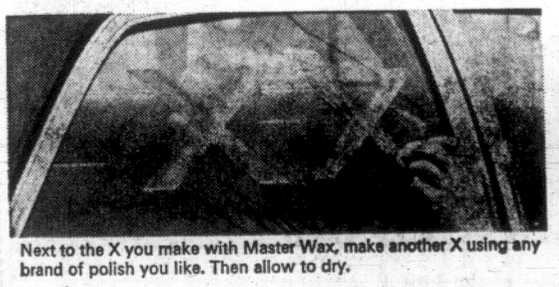
Ever wondered where the wax goes?

When you wash your car with soap and detergent?



Up to how it's washed away. Simoniz Master Wax is different—it won't wash away and here's how to prove it. Try the simple X-test.

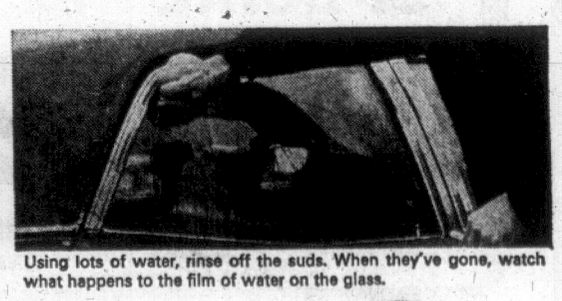
On one of the side windows, wipe a large letter X with Simoniz Master Wax. (The test shows up best on glass, but the effect is exactly the same on car finish.)



Next to the X you make with Master Wax, make another X using any brand of polish you like. Then allow to dry.

Now carefully polish up the Xs only, using cheesecloth or a soft linen rag—don't spread the wax around. (Notice how easy Master Wax is to apply and to buff up!)

Then wash down the window with the two Xs, using a car washing product, undiluted if you wish, or any household detergent you care to choose.



Using lots of water, rinse off the suds. When they've gone, watch what happens to the film of water on the glass.

There will be no trace of the X made by the other brand of wax. But the X you made with Simoniz Master Wax will still be there, actually pushing the water away from it. Breathe on the window, and you will find that it is clearly visible. This shows how new Simoniz Master Wax goes on protecting the finish long after other waxes have gone. Wash time and time again: it won't wash off because it's detergent resistant. (If you really want to remove the Master Wax 'X', a little Simoniz Liquid Kleener will do it.)

Available in liquid, pre-softened paste and aerosol.

FASHIONS AROUND THE WORLD

When the YM-YWCA World Service Committee holds its fashion show and tea Saturday all the fashions will be contemporary Canadian, provided by Roma's. The proceeds from the event, however, will help with "Y" projects in underprivileged countries, such as the three whose costumes are shown above. Miss Mokhi Pageley, left, models a contemporary silk outfit from the Punjab district of India while next to her, Mrs. P. R. McNelly wears a modern Mexican wedding dress, hand-made and hand-embroidered. Miss Wendy Bjur wears a contemporary Zambian costume loaned for the picture by Mrs. G. G. Smith. The portrait on the dress is of Kenneth Kaunda, the first and present president of that African country. The fashion show will be held at the YM-YWCA Building on Courtney Street. Tea will be served at 2:30 p.m. and the fashion show will begin at 3:15. There will be a home-baking stall.

Boomerang Curtain Must Come Down

By VINCENT MATTHEWS

CANBERRA (CP) —She is a tiny, thin woman, with a shock of wiry, dark hair. Her eyes are fiery and her hands expressive. She is 46, the mother of two boys. And already she is being talked about as the female Martin Luther King of Australia.

She is Kath Walker, Australian aboriginal, poet and parliamentary candidate, who had 350 delegates to Australia's "black parliament" on their feet cheering in Canberra.

The "parliament" was the annual conference of the Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders.

For the first time, it was an all-black affair. Whites were barred from the conference room as the aboriginals talked about their destiny in this continent, a continent they are estimated to have inhabited as long ago as 20,000 years.

Next year, Australians will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the arrival in this land of founder Captain Cook. The Queen will pay a visit to join in the celebrations. But aboriginals at the conference talked of holding their own ceremony—as far away as possible from Botany Bay, where Cook landed, because to the blacks of Australia it was a sad day when the white men came.

Kath Walker set the theme for the new militancy developing among Australia's aboriginals. She told the delegates that if they were to get a better life they had to enter politics.

And by politics, she meant "all the dirt and filthy muck that goes with it."

She attacked the "paternalistic, misguided, great white father" politics of the government. She said there was a "boomerang curtain" between whites and blacks in Australia and it had to be torn down.

Kath Walker will be the only aboriginal candidate in May's state parliament elections in her native Queensland. After that she will go to London as a guest of the World Council of Churches conference on racism.

While in London she intends to confront Lord Vestey, owner of a company which is using former aboriginal land in the Northern Territory as a cattle station. She will demand that the Vestey company give back the aboriginals' land.

Retreat for Brides-to-Be Offered by Vancouver Nuns

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chaotic flurry of wedding preparations can drive many brides-to-be around the bend, but the sisters at Cenacle Retreat House say they have the answer.

For a $20 fee they provide an organized "retreat" where the girls can take part in a weekend of discussion that will prepare them for marriage or just "get away from it for a while" and have a few minutes to themselves.

"So often girls need the time, peace and quiet to find themselves and prepare for their future," says Sister Gartland, who conducts the retreats.

"We try to prepare young women for marriage and the problems they will face in everyday life. We hope to give them the knowledge and inspiration to cope."

The Cenacle Retreat House is an ideal place for the program. It's a serene, tranquil old mansion surrounded by gardens and set back from the road.

Sister Gartland says the retreat is not designed for religious instruction or indoctrination. It is an interdenominational operation that offers films, group discussions and lectures aimed at opening the paths of communication and understanding.

"So often you can't really understand your problems or fears until they've been discussed with someone else. Then you understand yourself."

The retreat, which can accommodate up to 30 brides-to-be, also offers individual counselling for the girls.

Ambassador to Pay Visit

His Excellency Harold Francis Linder, ambassador for the United States, and Mrs. Linder will pay an official visit Friday to Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson.

Later that day the lieutenant-governor will travel to Vancouver where he will attend the annual mess dinner of the B.C. Regiment (DCO).

Annual Firemen's Ball

Invitations have been sent for the 54th annual ball sponsored by the Victoria Firemen's Mutual Benefit Society, to be held Friday April 25 in the crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel. Special guests invited to attend include Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. John R. Nicholson, and Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett.

Bachelor Father Ten Times Under Foster Parent Plan

TORONTO (CP) — A bachelor who likes children, Paul Lindsay has "adopted" 10 of them through the Foster Parents Plan.

When 35 such parents met here recently for a social evening the Montreal investment counsellor was found to be one who had adopted the most kids. Mr. Lindsay has so many pictures of the children he is supporting in foreign countries that he carries them in a big binder.

The five boys and five girls range in age from four to 14 and live in 10 different countries.

They cost him about $2,500 a year to support, counting gifts. To provide the necessities of life for one child under the plan costs $17 a month or $204 a year.

"I live in a home with my folks," the 45-year-old bachelor said in an interview. "So really the money I spend on the children is money I would have to spend on rent if I were in an apartment."

His interest doesn't stop with the financial support and a monthly letter to each of the children, who either live in a slum with poverty-stricken parents or are orphans.

He visits them. So far he has seen five of the 13 he has supported since becoming a foster parent in 1964.

Three no longer qualify. The real parents of two improved their situation so they can manage financially themselves. The third is a boy in South Vietnam who hasn't been heard from for a year.

He has seen children in Italy, Greece and Brazil—"a good way to see the world." This year he plans to see them in Korea, Hong Kong and the Philippines.

In November, 1966, he was asked to serve as a director of Foster Parents Plan Inc., and he accepted the job, which meant attending at least nine meetings of the board in New York each year.

However, recently the branch in Canada has been incorporated and Mr. Lindsay serves as its secretary-treasurer.

About 50,000 children are being helped through the plan and there are about 1,500 foster parents in the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Don't Let Fads Over-Rule Fashion

By PETER KIERNAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — You may be as young as you think you are, but don't let your zest interfere with your choice of hair styling or clothing.

That's the message from the West Coast and one of its leading exponents of fashion and haute coiffure, Richard Geha, a 28-year-old Canadian of Lebanese birth who feels there is an end to the production-line approach to life chosen by North Americans.

The end arrives at the point where fashion begins.

Mr. Geha, who now is expanding his hairdressing shop, complete with resident fashion designer, feels the production-line approach, with its attendant "fad-for-a-day" theme, is one of the perils of our fast-paced society.

"About 25 per cent of Canadian women know how to dress and have the stubborness to stick with what they know they look good in," he said in an interview.

Another 25 per cent suddenly respond to all of the pressures of current fashions "and go out and buy clothes and get their hair done in styles that are entirely unsuitable."

That leaves 50 per cent unaccounted for. He feels their exposure to fashions, as depicted through the various advertising methods, is a slower process that may result eventually in every man's dream: Better-looking women.

"When a woman comes into my shop and asks, 'What is the latest style?' I feel free to tell her that the latest style—whatever it is—is not for her."

Instead, Mr. Geha tells her what suits her face, her figure and her age. "After all, I am the expert, and that is—or should be—why women come to me."

EVEN MODELS CHANGE

"When hair or clothing styles are presented in magazines or on television, the models are always young women. There is nothing wrong with that, but on the other hand women are not all models—and even models change their hair and clothing styles."

His comments explain why he speaks of "training clients" rather than merely cutting their hair or designing their clothes.

He wants to "train" women to resist the pressures of fads and "the latest hairdo" and become their own masters.

An expert skier and a lover of fast automobiles, he wants individuality and is cultivating a clientele that wants the same thing.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lovely Springtime Means Cycling for Young and Old

Spring is the time for romance, flowers, and cycling! The countryside is beautiful and we long to get outdoors. Bicycling is an excellent and pleasant form of exercise and is becoming more and more popular, especially among adults. Not so long ago many women would have felt conspicuous and embarrassed to wheel along on their bikes. Today more and more men and women are enjoying this sport. Bicycle clubs are springing up everywhere and it is not unusual to see groups of men or women, or mixed groups, riding along together.

Lowman

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous heart specialist for President Eisenhower, is a great enthusiast. He said, "Let me insist over and over again that the bicycle should not be thought of simply as a child's toy but rather as an instrument for daily use, not only for teen-agers but for adults of all ages!"

CYCLING FOR CIRCULATION

Dr. White has been recommending cycling to his patients for years. It increases muscle tone and improves circulation. It aids the lungs and increases oxygen intake. It helps keep the arteries young. It aids the nerves by improving the quality of sleep and banishing tensions. Dr. White says that it may even aid digestion if we do not try to establish a speed record every day. This form of exercise also burns up calories for weight loss.

More and more communities and cities are preparing bike paths or bikeways, so that one can ride in safety. Some cities now construct a bicycle path on one side of every new road that is built. Why not stir up some interest in bikeways in your town?

Cycling is being introduced into school programs as a matter of utility as well as health. Many young folks are almost as remiss about regular exercise as their parents are, sometimes more so.

PLEASANT WAY

This is the nicest time of year, and bicycle riding with companionship and in lovely surroundings, is one of the most pleasant ways in which to obtain that vital exercise.

Do the following exercise to limber up for the rides. Lie on the floor on your back with your back with your arms resting on the floor at your sides. Bend your left knee up to your abdomen. Straighten your left leg as you bend your right knee up. One leg straightens as the other bends. Bring the heels as close to the floor as you can without touching it. This is slimming to the tummy.

For a third wheel to help slim that tummy try Mrs. Lowman's new diet booklet, "Dial-A-Figure." Send one dollar and your name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Increased Awareness Key to Old Adage

By PENNY SAVER

When I was young my mother always used to tell me that if I heard a name for the first time I was bound to hear it again the same day. I wasn't too sure what this was supposed to prove, but it certainly seemed true at the time and I was quite in awe of her wisdom on this matter. Now I am convinced that it is merely a matter of awareness. For example, I have known about the Maltese Falcon and the Thin Man for many, many years, but the name of the man who wrote them, Dashiell Hammett, has only recently intruded upon my consciousness. For the first time I am looking for the name Dashiell Hammett and suddenly I'm in the middle of a Dashiell Hammett revival.

All very interesting, you may say, but what has a mystery writer got to do with shopping? Not much, I admit, but Dashiell Hammett presents me with a good example of what happens to me when I shop. Interesting products can be all over but until I actually notice them they are nowhere. When I do finally notice them—well, I see them in so many places I am amazed.

Take pots for example. A few days ago I found an interesting display of pottery items, including a lovely teapot that I bought for some friends on their anniversary. Feasting my eyes upon the variety of pottery items heightened my awareness of pottery and—presto—I found some more.

A Covey of Ceramic Owls

Among the items I found are pottery owls. These little ornaments are very squat and spikey and come in a variety of un-owlish colors. They begin at 50 cents and go as high as $4 for the largest owl which is also a small coin bank. Also in the coin bank line are small pottery blow-fish (the kind that puff themselves out until they are nothing but balls with spines) that sell for $3 or $4 depending on the size. These and the owl banks have corks in the bottom to let one retrieve the coins. Flat owls for $5 and $7 are pure decoration. These tall green owls have a very military bearing—chest out, back curved—and look as if they got caught in a wringer. But they are very decorative, as are the funny little statuettes at $2.50. I couldn't decide whether these were mice or pigs, or piggy mice, or even mousey pigs. They combine the attributes of both to a confusing degree.

Earrings are also among the ceramic items I found. These are $2.50 a pair and are clip style. I hope the clips are strong, because if one slipped off,—bye, bye, earring. Seriously they are button-shaped and come in attractive colors. Definitely worth a peek if you are looking for something subdued but unusual to go with that new dress.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where I found this selection of ceramic items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Marriage Plans Hard to Tell

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a man on the beach. It was early in the morning and we were the only two around so we struck up a conversation. He told me he had lost his wife 3 months before. (I've been a widow for three years.)

We hit it off immediately and had so much in common. It was wonderful! We had lunch together that day, and dinner that evening. And for the next two weeks we spent all our time together. He asked me if I would marry him when a year has passed since his wife's death. I accepted.

We flew north together and he came to my home town to meet my married children. They adored him.

My problem: He also has married children, but he doesn't want to tell them about me yet. He says it's "too soon." I don't mind waiting a year to be married, but I think the longer he waits to tell his children about me, the harder it will be.

I love him very much, Abby, and will wait if I have to, but it doesn't seem fair to me. Please advise me. HURT.

DEAR HURT: Don't be hurt. He knows his children better than you do. But tell him that if he holds off telling them too long they might think he's marrying a woman he hardly knows.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and I have a crush on a guy for the first time in my life. We are only on a hello and good-bye basis.

I see him about once a week and I say "Hi." Then he says, "Hi." Then I say, "Bye" and he says, "Bye."

How can I get on friendlier terms with him? Please don't tell me to call him up and invite him to something. I don't know him well enough for that. GOT A CRUSH.

DEAR GOT: Use a little imagination. Wear something (like a Rockefeller for President button) or carry a pair of ice skates — anything to give him a chance to say something more than Hi and Bye. If YOU can't think of something to catch his eye and he can't think of anything for openers, you'd better forget him. Neither of you is ready yet.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, Jenny, is being married in July. She has asked her fiance's two sisters to be bridesmaids. These girls are going to be bridesmaids at another wedding in June.

The gowns for Jenny's wedding have already been selected and will be here soon.

Now Jenny has heard that her future mother-in-law wants her daughters to wear the gowns for the June wedding that my daughter selected for her wedding.

Jenny says absolutely not. What do you say? FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: If the June wedding is "local," and will be attended by many of the same people who will attend Jenny's wedding, I'd be inclined to vote with Jenny.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Lonesome and Blue," whose husband was in Europe for a "sales meeting," while his wife was home with four kids. I am in exactly the same position, only I'm home with 4½ kids!

My husband is a salesman, and has won all sorts of trips as prizes — but he goes with other prize-winners from different parts of the country. His company has never offered him a trip with his wife and family. Their conventions and meetings are held all over the world, which I resent, as his regular sales job takes him away enough as it is.

Right now I'm going to the supermarket. That friendly, good-looking man in the produce department is looking better all the time. DOTTIE IN DIXIE.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Researchers Link Cancer To Viruses

By BARBARA J. CULLITON
Science Service Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Evidence that at least some human cancers may be caused by viruses is mounting so rapidly that researchers in the field predict that a vaccine to prevent them might be produced within a year. It would be many years after that, however, before such a vaccine could be in widespread use.

Circumstantial evidence shows that viruses clearly cause cancers in mice and other animals and they are associated with some human cancers.

But proof of a causative role in human malignancies has eluded the most careful researchers, partly because they cannot inject a suspect virus into a patient and wait to see whether or not he develops a lethal disease, as they can with white rats.

Nevertheless, in at least one type of human cancer, the circumstantial evidence is rising fast. The cancers are leukemia-like malignancies of the lymph system; the suspect is the EB or Epstein-Barr virus. "If we had the money," says Dr. James T. Grace, director of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, "we could develop a vaccine within a year."

The first bit of evidence of an EB virus-cancer tie came from Africa when Dr. Dennis Burkitt of the Medical Research Council of London isolated the virus from cells of children with lymphoma, a relatively common form of lymph cancer in that country.

Later, Dr. Grace and coworkers at Roswell Park looked for it in healthy volunteers and cancer patients, finding antibodies to EB virus in 99 per cent of their volunteers and, in high amounts, in 98 per cent of patients with lymphomas, leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and other cancers.

Thinking back to the African findings, scientists reasoned that the high incidence of malaria there could throw light on the question. Dr. Grace speculates that "disease is a rare consequence of EB virus infection," and that infection by malaria bacteria could alter the body's immune response and lay it open to attack by EB viruses already present.

Shortly afterwards, work by virologists Werner and Gertrude Henle of the University of Pennsylvania again pointed the finger of suspicion at the virus. They isolated it from patients with infectious mononucleosis and researchers now believe that it actually causes that disease. "In fact," Dr. Grace says, "infectious mononucleosis may be a self-limiting form of leukemia." That is, it causes alterations in the lymph system that are reversible, while the changes seen in leukemia are no longer reversible.

It is possible, he believes, that mononucleosis may actually confer an immunity to leukemia. At Roswell Park, a leukemia patient infected with the virus developed infectious mononucleosis and experienced temporary remission of his disease. One man who developed mononucleosis while he had leukemia was ostensibly free of cancer for two years. Other cases of remission associated with mononucleosis have been reported. The evidence remains circumstantial, partly because temporary remission of leukemia is not uncommon.

However, as more and more links between the two diseases and the virus turn up, Dr. Grace becomes more and more optimistic. Human mononucleosis cells induce lymphomas in hamsters.

In microscopic studies of liver and spleen tissues from leukemia and monoucleosis patients, pathologists are unable to distinguish the histological findings in one case from those in the other. Lymph-node tissues from both types of patients also appear to be pathologically identical.

"What I would like to do," the Buffalo researcher says, "is conduct a long-range study with EB virus vaccine in military men. If a vaccine can be developed, it might be useful in the armed forces where considerable man-hours are lost among young men because of infectious mononucleosis." Whether or not a vaccine would ultimately be useful in treatment of patients with clear cases of cancer is a moot point. Some researchers feel that by then it may be too late to change cell behavior, but it would almost certainly be a prophylactic agent.

Even if the Roswell Park attempts to develop the anti-cancer vaccine proceed without unexpected stumbling blocks, the beginning of long-range observations of its effectiveness and toxicity required before the government approves its experimental use, Dr. Grace points out. And then it would be a matter of 15 years before the data could be fully evaluated.

Ottawa Taking 'Passive Role' In Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government was accused Tuesday of taking a casual approach to the problems of air and water pollution as MPs tried to get acting energy minister Otto Lang to give more information on future plans.

Mr. Lang, appearing before the Commons resources committee, promised water legislation that will provide new ways of resolving major problems involving federal and provincial jurisdiction.

He agreed with one critic that a comprehensive review should be made of major projects involving water or other resources to examine their effects on surrounding environment.

John Bilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said he has the feeling Mr. Lang is taking a passive role in preparations to deal with pollution.

Mr. Lang retorted that the federal government is concerned to exercise leadership while keeping in mind provincial concern."

BILL BEFORE SUMMER

He said a water act would be introduced in Parliament before the summer adjournment, and proceeded with at a later session.

K. R. Hymmen (L—Kitchener) suggested that water and air pollution should be placed "under one roof," instead of being divided between the energy department responsible for water and national health and welfare responsible for air.

Mr. Lang replied that he would not express a view since this involved a policy matter. Such a step would provide a "nice cohesion" on environmental pollution but would still require considerable inter-departmental effort.

Kierans Rules Out Any Change In Sorting, Delivery of Mail

OTTAWA (CP) — No changes are planned in the five-day week for mail delivery or in the once-a-day sorting of mail, Communications Minister Eric Kierans told the Commons Tuesday.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said complaints about deterioration of postal service seemed to coincide with the implementation of the new mail regulations.

He asked whether the minister is reviewing the changes and planning any revisions.

Mr. Kierans, also postmaster-general, said adjudication of employees' complaints is proceeding which "will clarify many points."

Mr. Douglas said a letter mailed in Toronto April 1 was delivered in Montreal April 10. That hardly seemed to constitute five-day service.

Replying to Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), the minister said a report that overtime charges are increasing is "erroneous."

He said overtime charges were on the increase prior to the five-day week, but now they were decreasing.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) suggested overtime charges were down because of an increase in the employment of casual workers.

Mayor to Speak

DUNCAN—Mayor Jim Quaife is to speak April 19 on "Youth and the Community" to a group of about 300 counsellors and aides at the Kiwanis camp for retarded children on the south shore of Mesachie Lake.

'Mole' Uncovers Hanoi Trip

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — An "underground" Harvard University newspaper reported Sunday that Harvard Prof. Henry A. Kissinger, former president Johnson's adviser on national security affairs, paid a visit to North Vietnam in 1966.

The publication, called The Mole, printed what purported to be a telegram stolen from university files while the administration building was occupied last week by members of the radical Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

A university official said Kissinger went to Vietnam on a peace mission for Johnson, but the White House denied the report.

"What SDS could not know, I suppose, is that Professor Kissinger's trip took him to North Vietnam in efforts toward promoting peace negotiations," said Verna Johnson, administrative assistant to Dean Franklin L. Ford.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Tulipmania Had Holland In a Frenzy

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Pierre and Grace Timp have a delightful surprise in store for spring flower lovers this year.

In their Dutch bulb gardens on Fowler Road near Elk Lake, there's a display of tulips coming into bloom that were propagated from the first of the species, dating back more than three hundred years.

Forbes

Already four varieties are in bloom. By the weekend all 19 should be in full flower.

"It will not only be a wonderful sight," Pierre Timp assured me, "it will be an educational experience as well."

There is more than a little pride in his voice when he adds that having these bulbs on loan for a year, is "very exciting and at the same time a distinctive honor."

They come from a cultural museum in Holland where during the past 25 years, a small group of bulb growers has been sponsoring research into tulip growing in that country.

Old records have been checked for exact data. Old varieties have been traced down and many neglected and almost forgotten ones have been pampered and coaxed back to their former beauty.

Priceless

Naturally bulbs from such a source are priceless. They have never been allowed out of the country before. So you can understand how the Timps feel when they tell you this is a great honor not only for them but for Victoria and for Canada.

The bulbs are not for sale. This collection will be returned to Holland once the season is over.

In the meantime tulip lovers who visit the Timp gardens will be able to compare old time favorites with present day beauties.

"The old ones have shorter stems," Pierre Timp points out. "The flowers are smaller but there are singles and doubles amongst them. The colors are beautiful and a few of the flowers have a really exotic fragrance. That's something present day varieties still lack."

Names, Dates

In the triangular bed where the bulbs are on display, names and dates are clearly written. Oldest in the collection is Lac van Rijn dating back to 1620. Next comes Ziferen Standard, 1631, and Spaendonck, 1650. Baby of the group is Joost van den Vondel with a birth date of 1840.

The Timps believe that many people will be surprised to know that while tulips have been grown in the Netherlands for the last four centuries, there was not a bulb to be seen there before 1550.

First ones came from Adrianople and Constanople to Vienna and from there into western Europe.

While a few bulbs reached Holland at that time, it wasn't until the early 1600's that the tulip craze spread and rich merchants began spending great sums of money for single bulbs.

Soon everyone, including many who had never grown plants before, became obsessed with a desire to own tulips.

By 1634, tulipmania and its accompanying speculation had increased until it had become a form of gambling.

Holland was in a frenzy. Most of the speculators were weavers, tailors, craftsmen and merchants of every kind, with a few professional bulb growers.

Tulip exchanges were set up. Here bulbs often existed only on paper and the same bulb might change hands several times in a day.

Many Ruined

Finally a slump came. Thousands were ruined. A year later the government stepped in and from then on tulip cultivation and the tulip trade were organized on saner lines.

During the slump many of the bulbs owned by individuals and growers were tossed aside and forgotten.

Today some 800 varieties from tulipmania days have been rediscoveted (some in deserted sheds, old barns, stone cellars and overgrown fields).

In Holland this collection is now "important cultural property." It is shown as an historical display that tells the story of tulip culture over there.

Here, on the other side of the world, the Timps take pride in presenting a bit of that story.

Primulas Worth Expense

By HILDA BEASTALL

The seed of all primulas is reasonably easy to handle since it is not so tiny and dust-like as, say, begonia seed. Fresh, viable, hand-pollinated primula seeds are higher in price than open pollinated seeds. They can cost as much as five cents each, so warrant care in sowing. The results will be gratifying and well worth the time and money.

Hilda

The word primula covers a genus, including auriculas, cowslips and the whole range of candelabra types.

In fact there are so many kinds of primula that it is, under favorable conditions, possible to have some in bloom all the year around.

To get back to seed sowing. It is advisable to use sterilized soil, which when moderately damp will be rather loose and friable yet retentive of sufficient moisture not to dry out rapidly.

According to the number of seeds, use a low pot or pan, or a flat. Put in an inch or two of coarse rubble screenings from the soil mixture, small stones and coarse moss for drainage.

Over this, fill in with the cooled, sterilized and partially dried soil mixture. When pressed lightly down with a flat piece of wood, the level should be one quarter-inch below the rim.

Sprinkle the seeds evenly over the surface; in rows if using a flat. Space a little if possible, so the seedlings may remain until true leaves expand.

Cover thinly with sterilized sand and press gently with the flat wood. If soil mixture is moderately damp, no soaking of container is advisable at this time.

A temperature of 60 to 65 degrees is recommended for germination. Cover with a sheet of glass, turned twice daily to prevent dripping, removing it promptly as the seeds sprout.

Brown Spots Only Cause Red Faces

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many letter writers, practically all of them women, want to know why they have brown spots on their cheeks, and on the backs of their hands; also they want to know how to get rid of the spots.

Alvarez

The best answer I know to the first question is that as we men and women grow old, a brown pigment accumulates in some of the tissues—even in the brain. In our youth the brown pigment is probably thrown out of the body through the bowel or the kidneys.

For years, my dear friend the late Dr. Fred Schwartz, expert skin specialist of Chicago, used to tell me that he could sometimes get rid of the brown pigment of the skin by repeatedly, in his office, applying a little poultice made of dry ice. This causes the skin to peel a bit, and with this peeling, the pigment may go.

There is nothing to be feared from the brown spots—they are not dangerous, merely embarrassing to some women.

Physicians through the ages have followed curious fads. For instance, for many centuries, whenever a physician was called to see a patient, about all he did to make a diagnosis was to feel the pulse. Today we know that only a few diseases—usually of the heart—can be diagnosed just from feeling the pulse. But still in places like China, a physician may think he can tell all he needs to know about disease by feeling the patient's pulse.

When I was a child, if a person went to a physician, the first thing, and perhaps about the only thing the doctor did was to say, "stick out your tongue." The doctor looked to see if the tongue was "coated." Sometimes he saw a fissured tongue, or a tongue that was too red, or a "geographic tongue" (one that had a patch on it that looked a bit like the map of a continent). But this was rare, and gradually physicians came to realize that when they saw a coated tongue, they seldom were any wiser than they were before, and hence many stopped looking.

In my youth, I read widely to see if a coated tongue meant anything wrong with the lining of the stomach, and I failed to learn anything. What interested me was some work done by my old friend, the late Dr. Ludwig Kast of New York City. He gave to patients capsules containing lycopodium powder (he used this type of powder because it could be easily recognized with the help of a microscope), and later found the typical spores in the white coat on the patients' tongues. I confirmed this finding, and it was confirmed by several other men. Also, several men showed that lycopodium powder injected into the rectum could, in certain people, later be found on the tongue. One of my students confirmed this for me.

★ ★ ★

Naturally, then, a coated tongue is more likely to be found when a person is suffering from nausea, regurgitation and belching, all of which show that there is a greater than normal tendency for reverse waves, travelling up the digestive tract, to carry a bit of mucus or pehaps half-digested food, up on to the tongue. In some people who haven't a tight valve (cardia) at the upper end of the stomach, when they lie down to sleep, a little food runs back up the gullet and whitens the tongue.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

After a Shaky Start Railways Flourished

By BOB BOWMAN

In 1850 there were 9,000 miles of railways in the U.S. but only 66 miles in Canada. The government decided to do something about it and guaranteed the interest on bonds for half the cost of any railway more than 75 miles long. This had the desired effect and there was a boom in railway construction. It was more than coincidence that some leading members of Parliament made a great deal of money about the same time.

Bowman

The first locomotives were imported, and the Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway obtained the Lady Elgin in October, 1852. As the initials of the railway were O, S, and H most people called it the "Oats, Straw and Hay Railway."

The Lady Elgin burned wood for fuel, and got its first test run along the Toronto waterfront. When the warning bell rang, people shouted "she stirs," and the engine gradually picked up speed, while its steam whistle made echoes across Toronto Bay.

WOODEN RAILS

The first Canadian-built engine appeared April 16, 1853. It was a product of the James Good foundry on Queen Street, Toronto, and took five days to get down Yonge Street to the waterfront, using temporary wooden rails. Service to Aurora, Ont. began May 16, and church ministers were allowed to travel at half-fare. This may have been because divine protection was needed. A railway car had rolled down a bank during a trial run.

Actually Canadian railways became very effective. The Great Western Railway in Hamilton built the first sleeping cars in any part of the world, and the company also pioneered the use of coal rather than wood for fuel.

Other events April 16:

1874—Louis Riel was expelled from House of Commons without having appeared.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Daphne LovePette, age 12, of Costa Mesa, California, for her question:

How did smallpox vaccination first come about?

People usually give the credit to Dr. Edward Jenner of England. It is true that in the year 1796 he gave the sort of smallpox vaccination we get today. And it was the first of its kind, but the idea was not brand new. Many people had been thinking about it and even giving anti-smallpox inoculations for at least a century before Dr. Jenner gave his first shot in the arm.

No one knows who first thought of the idea, but the people of Turkey were using rather crude inoculations against smallpox early in the 1700s. We know about this from the writings of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, who was the wife of the British ambassador to Turkey. Like everyone else, Lady Mary lived in horror of smallpox. When she learned that the people of Turkey did something to protect themselves from the dreaded scourge, she made careful observations and wrote detailed letters home to England. This was around 1718 and may people, including some influential doctors, began following Lady Mary's advice.

Throughout history, smallpox epidemics had taken a tremendous toll of life throughout the world. In the early 1700s, the population of London was about half a million and the death rate from smallpox averaged about 1,000 a year. Those that survived infection were scarred and pitted by the blistering spots. It was said that any woman who was not pock-marked was considered a beauty on the basis of her unblemished skin alone. No wonder Lady Mary, and every other lady, was very interested in any sort of remedy for the dangerous and disfiguring disease.

Vaccinated Boy

According to her letters, the Turkish people infected themselves with smallpox, hoping to get a mild attack that would make them immune. The inoculation was done in September, after the heat of summer, and all the community was invited to participate. The "doctor" was an old woman with a nutshell of liquid taken from the fever blisters of a smallpox patient. Each person was allowed to select a vein—and into it the old lady drove her needle with a smidgen of germ-filled liquid. After a few days, most of the group came down with a mild attack of smallpox. Later, they were immune from the serious epidemics.

Meantime, for centuries, the dairy maids of England had been catching cowpox from their cattle. This junior type smallpox caused a few feverish blisters on their hands and was too mild to be serious. One of these girls told Dr. Jenner that she could never be marred by smallpox because she had had cowpox. It was known that one attack of smallpox made a person immune, not it seemed that an atttack of very mild cowpox would do the job just as well. In 1796, Dr. Jenner decided to put this theory to the test. He vaccinated the arm of eight-year-old Jimmy Phipps with germy liquid from a cowpox blister on the hand of a dairy maid, Sarah Nelmes. After three months, the doctor took young Jimmy to visit smallpox patients where normally he would have been almost certain to catch the dread disease. But he did not. His vaccination had made him immune to smallpox.

Nowadays, of course, no doctor would dream of testing his theory on a child. But in those days, adults were more callous about using children to do their dirty work and solve their problems. Even in the last years of the 18th century, many people were critical of Dr. Jenner. However, most of them were concerned not about the risk to young Jimmy, but whether cowpox vaccinations would make them grow horns or turn into cows. Around 1800, these superstitions had abated and everybody was clamoring to be vaccinated.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Cindy Kendrick, age 9, of Bossie City, Louisiana, for her question:

Why is Africa called the Dark Continent?

Several hundred years ago, Africa was called the Dark Continent. There may have been several reasons for this—but certainly Africa is not hidden in eternal night. It happens to be one of the sunniest places in the world. But few people had traveled all through its vast deserts and many of its vast jungles were unexplored. These places were mysteries, dark and unsolved mysteries. This may be one reason why Africa was called the Dark Continent. Another reason may be that most Africans have dark skins, ranging from coppery brown to black.

"You put a quarter into your piggy bank just now," said Uncle Tom. "Are you saving?"

"Sure. But only one quarter every Sunday, like today," replied Peter. "It's nearly full so I'll have to break it soon."

His uncle smiled. "How much is there?"

The boy thought a moment. "A year ago today, after my quarter was in, there were as many quarters as the square of Ann's age then. Now as many as the square of my age."

How old was he?

Deported Man Renews Fight

MONTREAL (CP) — George Ben Edmondson, cleared of a Missouri prison sentence and once deported from Canada, has begun a second fight to remain here with his wife and child.

Edmondson, better known as Alex Borman, former chief engineer of Expo 67's German pavilion, begins the new battle from a stronger position, his lawyer, Max Teitelbaum, said Tuesday.

The 31-year-old Edmondson was arrested last Friday by RCMP on a charge that he illegally entered Canada and he was released on $500 bail Monday.

Mr. Teitelbaum said in an interview an immigration hearing will be held May 5 to determine whether Edmondson will be ordered deported for the second time.

The lawyer said he had received requested approval Monday morning for Edmondson's hearing. There was no question of Edmondson seeking landed immigrant's status.

Because Edmondson had been acquitted of the Missouri charge against him, he had come to Canada March 29 fully convinced he had every right to do so.

NOTIFIED POLICE

Mr. Teitelbaum said Edmondson had notified the RCMP and the FBI in advance.

Edmondson had served 1½ to two years of a 10-year sentence on a charge of conspiracy to commit armed robbery after his 1967 deportation from Canada.

But the charges were dismissed in a rehearing of the case.

Edmondson allegedly escaped from a Missouri prison while serving the sentence in 1965 and came to Canada where he was hired by a Montreal firm.

SUNDAY DRINK SOON LEGAL IN ALBERTA

EDMONTON (CP) — Liquor with meals on Sundays in licensed dining rooms is provided under legislation introduced Tuesday in the Alberta legislature.

The amendment to the Liquor Licensing Act will allow the liquor control board, at its discretion, to have part of any such dining room arranged so that part of the area will be apart from that in which liquor is served on Sundays.

The amendment also provides that liquor can be served on trains on Sunday and on commercial passenger aircraft.

Sale on Sundays will be allowed from 1 p.m. until the time of closing prescribed by regulations. Some outlets close weekdays at 11:30 p.m. and some at 1:30 a.m.

Liberal Absenteeism Roasted; Rule by Divine Right Charged

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said 18 ministers were supposed to be present for question period. Only seven were present when the Commons met, he said, and three others straggled in later.

Under the roster system, 18 cabinet ministers were scheduled to be in the Commons for Tuesday's question period. Of those 18, eight were absent. They were: External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, all in Japan on government business; Energy Minister J. J. Greene, who is recovering from a heart attack; Treasury Board President C. M. Drury and Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

Latecomers were Supply Minister Don Jamieson, Robert Andras and James Richardson, minister without portfolio.

Mr. Lambert said the Liberals don't rule by divine right, though Prime Minister Trudeau may have elevated himself to god.

Thomas Bell, Conservative whip, said ministers have been absent 83 times in the 49 sitting days since January.

Guaranteed Income Under Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government is "looking at" proposals for guaranteed minimum incomes but any action will have to be on the national level, Phil Gaglardi said Tuesday.

The minister without portfolio said a full welfare system would mean "all would be treated equally." But if B.C. instituted it alone, everybody would move to the province.

In an address and question period at a Vancouver Board of Trade committee meeting, Mr. Gaglardi said that of 41,000 heads of families on welfare, about 20,000 could be rehabilitated.

He termed them "problem guys" but said they are not to be confused with the 30,000-35,000 persons who are unemployed but could hold down jobs.

Small Firm Owners Strike Across France

PARIS (CP) — France, buffeted by a variety of social and economic problems during the last year, was hit today by a strike of small-business proprietors across the country.

Up to 95 per cent of such businessmen shut down their shops, bars, restaurants and other enterprises in protest against taxes that they say are crushing them.

In Paris, department stores remained open and big restaurants had a rush of customers who were unable to eat in the thousands of small cafes.

The government decided today to go part way in meeting the shopkeepers' demands. Information Minister Joel Le Theule said several measures will be submitted to parliament, including simplification of the tax system and smaller contributions, with increased benefits, in the social security plan.

Though complaining about what they term excessively high taxes, government-imposed paper work, price controls and unsatisfactory social-welfare arrangements, aggrieved businessmen are not all behind the protest shutdown.

Last week, militant businessmen in southeastern France, fed up with the present tax system, sacked a government office full of fiscal records.

Their leader, Gerard Nicoud, 23, was arrested and the result was a weekend night wreathed in tear gas and riots in the area known as Isere.

Leading the demands for Nicoud's release was the 27-year-old idea man of the Isere movement, bearded Maurice Mesny.

SEEKS REFERENDUM

The new upsurge of discontent coincides with the critical days of campaigning for the April 27 referendum on President de Gaulle's plans for greater regional powers and a reorganized Senate.

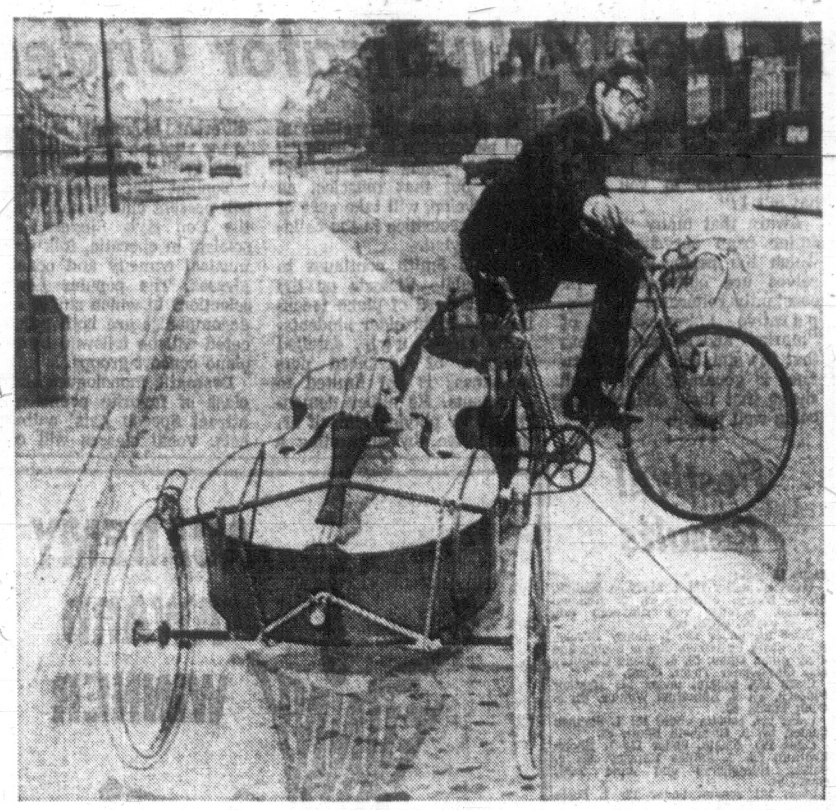
The Gaullist government, therefore, has to exert the greatest care in its handling of the protesters for fear of losing thousands of votes in what could prove to be a close contest in the referendum.

Some protest spokesmen are proclaiming their firm intention to keep the movement free of embroilment in the referendum campaign or any other form of politics.

But earlier this week, rebel shopkeepers in the northern city of Lille, de Gaulle's birthplace, noisily blocked off the main square shortly before a scheduled speaking engagement by Premier Maurice Couve de Murville.

There has been talk in some quarters of more deliberate resorts to violence of the kind that left many injured in the Isere outbreaks.

Observers are watching to see how much support the moderate protests can marshal for their peace shutdown today among businessmen across the country. A similar demonstration was held on March 5.



DOUBLE BASS dilemma was solved by Roy Dalpra, 17, of Orpington, England, with this musical trailer. He has been turned away by bus conductors whenever he wanted to take his big instrument aboard. So, using a little initiative, he hooked a set of wheels to two pieces of aluminum tubing and mounted the affair behind his bicycle. Now he has no trouble getting to performances of youth orchestra. 'We're Not Yet Morally Dead'

PRAGUE (CP) — Agricultural students boycotted classes today to protest renewed censorship, official interference in sport and "strengthening of Soviet military forces in Czechoslovakia."

A strike proclamation also protested "the demonstration of military strength before an important party session." The strike was scheduled to run through Thursday, when the 190-member central committee of the Communist party holds a crisis session.

The proclamation was posted briefly in Prague's central Wenceslas Square, but a policeman tore it down. Scores of passersby read the statement and one man pencilled in a line demanding an election, postponed by the Soviet invasion last August.

No classes were meeting at the agricultural college outside Prague. About 300 students were printing posters and leaflets or holding meetings.

The strikers said they wanted "to prove to ourselves and the public that we are not yet morally dead."

U.S. PLANE ATTACKS FRIENDLY VIETNAMESE

SAIGON (AP)—A United States Army spotter plane made a rocket attack on a sampan water taxi close to the Cambodian border Tuesday. U.S. military spokesmen said eight South Vietnamese civilians were killed and 11 wounded.

The U.S. command said the presumably accidental attack was under investigation.

The crowded sampan was moving along a canal just off the Mekong River near Hong Ngu, about 90 miles west of Saigon and two to three miles from the Cambodian border. Officials said it was attacked by a single-engined army Bird-dog, a spotter plane used for aerial observation and forward artillery control.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Chatterers, Jittery Mothers Given Adjudicator Understanding

By BERYL PROUDMAN

In its third day, the Greater Victoria Music Festival has really swung into its stride.

Piano sight-reading classes have been despatched, many large classes of young pianists have been adjudicated and vocal classes are well under way. Meanwhile, at Blanshard Street school Speech Arts' students continue to be heard.

More than 400 piano entries necessitated the using of two piano adjudicators. While Ronald Smith deals with the more experienced players John Churchill adjudicates young performers in a practical but kindly way that could hardly be improved upon.

A father of three, Churchill understands the need of youngsters to wriggle and giggle, particularly when excited. Determined that they should, nevertheless, benefit from his remarks he silenced one young chattered with "Don't talk when I'm speaking, young lady," but relented enough to add, "After all, it's only fair that you should listen to me speak . . . I've had to listen to you play, haven't I?"

Aware that many "Moms" suffer from nervous tension which the performers themselves are oblivious of, he constantly reiterates the comparative unimportance of "marks" and reassures them that the standard of performance is generally high which shows that their children are being well taught.

He feels that just getting up and performing is a challenge to such young players and points out that muscles, as they develop, will take care of many insecurities in the children's playing.

His thorough, detailed analyses of advanced performances is not limited to comments. He either demonstrates by playing himself or, more often, by suggesting a different technical approach to the student, guides her into making the change.

Tonight the vocal section will present church choirs and the Don Kyle Singers, and soloists in operatic, folk song, musical comedy and concert classes. The popular Lieder selections in which singer and accompanist are both adjudicated will be followed by two piano concert groups.

Dramatic monologues and a class of favorite poems will attract Speech Arts' enthusiasts. Vocal classes will continue through Thursday and Friday and, after the Speech Arts honor performance Thursday night, piano accordion classes will take over the Blanshard Street school auditorium.

McGILL MAVERICK MAY SPURN GRANT

MONTREAL (CP) — Stanley Gray, 24, a McGill University lecturer who helped organize a student march on the university last month, has not yet decided whether to accept a $5,500 Canada Council grant to study in England.

The grant, announced in Ottawa Tuesday, would enable Mr. Gray to continue his political science studies at Oxford University.

"It is unclear now whether I will accept the grant," said the lecturer, who currently is fighting a university decision to let him go at the end of the term because of his "disruptive" activity.

"I applied before Christmas, but at that point I didn't know if McGill would renew my contract."

The university announced this spring that Mr. Gray's contract would not be renewed because he had taken part in the disruption of three administrative meetings in his quest for academic reform.

He contested the decision, and succeeded in having the case put before an arbitration board of three non-McGill professors.

CBC DROPPING DON MESSER

TORONTO (CP) — Don Messer's Jubilee will be dropped this fall after 10 years on CBC television, the network announced Monday.

The show will be replaced by Singalong Jubilee, the Messer show's summer replacement since 1961.

Doug Nixon, director of entertainment programming for the CBC English-language network, said the change is intended "to provide a program with a younger look and younger orientation."

MARY MATHERS

Job Abroad To Fill Her Summer

Mary Mathers, 20, of 20 Sylvan Lane has been accepted as a participant in the Jobs Abroad program for this summer.

She is one of 1,500 students who join the international work corps each year to work and live alongside Europeans. Some do farm work in Switzerland or wait tables at resorts in England or France. Others might find themselves packaging cigarettes in a Belgian factory.

Sponsored by the non-profit International Society for Training and Culture based in New York, the program has drawn 3,200 young people in the past five years.

Mary, who has been studying in France for the past year, will be working as a general assistant in a French hotel this summer. She returns to complete her studies at the University of Victoria this fall.

Trapping Licence Protested

A well known naturalist complained to North Saanich council Monday of a trapper's licence being issued by the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Service to John Hamilton, 406 Simcoe.

The licence permits Hamilton to trap otter, mink, raccoon and other animals on the northern peninsula.

Albert R. Davidson, a member of the Victoria Natural History Society, said the municipality should take steps to protect the animals in view of the rapidly decline of wildlife in the province.

North Saanich has no bylaw prohibiting the trapping of animals.

"Surely animals like otter and mink would be an added attraction to tourists and people who use marinas," he said. "They are an asset to a community."

A wildlife official said Hamilton can only trap animals during season and with the permission of property owners.

"Off season he can only trap animals which are a nuisance to residents," he said, "for example, a mink which destroys gold fish in a pool."

He said there were certain areas on the peninsula where wildlife was fully protected. Elk Lake was one of these.

SUDSY TOWER SCORNED

It's doubtful if Mrs. J. C. Cox will get far with her Tuesday protest to city council on the proposed Wharf Street development.

But she at least provided a bright spot in a routine business morning for the public works committee.

Mrs. Cox based her protest on the proposed circular design of three high-rise buildings forming the heart of the Reid Centre development for Wharf Street.

But if architects across the country think the CNR and other circular designs the "in thing," Mrs. Cox has a different point of view.

"It (the Edmonton tower) looks very like a bottle of cologne or after-shave lotion," she told the committee in a letter. "In the newness of Edmonton it did not look out of place, but one of the round towers was being built nearby and it looked for all the world like a detergent bottle—it only needed to be revolving slowly on a turntable with 'Sudsy' flashing on and off on its side.

"Im sure the architects involved could come up with something better than three detergent bottles between the Empress Hotel and Bastion Square."

After a chuckle the letter was received and filed.

Again.

MAVERICK

We started changing people's driving habits back in 1908 with the Model T, and we've kept it up with such Better Ideas as the V-8 engine, the first personal car – T'Bird and the sports car for everybody – Mustang. And now Ford introduces the first car of the 70's at 1960 prices – Maverick.

Lowest priced North American car
Maverick, the lowest priced North American car, plugs the gap between compacts and imports with a wheelbase 8" shorter than the Falcon and 8" longer than ordinary imports. There is nothing else like it! Maverick gives you North American style, safety and power, along with handling, parking ease and economy.

Maverick pinches pennies, not people
Maverick offers you nine inches more shoulder room in the front seat than an ordinary import. And Maverick's hungry trunk swallows 10.4 cubic feet of luggage – in one place. You can handle family luggage including your golf clubs. And you won't be trailing laundry from your roof. Or going off half-packed either.

A long time between drinks
Even with its extra power, Maverick gives you great gas mileage. In tests by professional drivers at our tracks, where we do our best to duplicate actual driving conditions, Maverick averaged 27 mpg. Drivers didn't nurse the car. It was stop and go, uphill and down, over pavement, dirt and gravel. And 27 was their average.

About handling and parking
Maverick can turn on a dime and give you nine cents change. And if you've been driving any other North American car, you'll find Maverick's neat size adds 18 inches to any parking space. Maverick is Canada's smallest national park.

Maverick's wider tread and other safety secrets
Maverick incorporates the latest engineering advances. Maverick's tread is wider than the car is high. It's designed to give you better balance and greater stability when big winds blow and the going gets rough. Maverick brakes are as big as a standard compact's – designed to stop cars weighing hundreds of pounds more. And every Maverick has all of Ford Motor Company's Lifeguard Design Safety features as standard equipment.

Crack the whip on 105 horses
Maverick's dependable, proven Six that lets loose 105 galloping horses . . . almost twice what you get from an ordinary import. It covers 417 feet in ten seconds from a standing start, gets you up to highway speeds in a hurry. When you enter a 70 mph turnpike, you won't feel like a retired player in a pro-hockey play-off.

Quick-on-the-draw parts and service
Bolt-on front fenders are less expensive to replace. Printed electrical circuits last longer. The one-piece grille can be removed in just seven minutes. Fast repairs and easy replacements mean savings.

Today's kind of car . . . for today's kind of driving
Maverick is designed for the 70's in more ways than one! Take a look at its racy, on-the-move lines. Its perky rear-end spoiler. Smooth Sports Roof styling. Get a load of Maverick's with-it colours like Freudian Gilt, or Thanks Vermillion. And colour-keyed interiors with unique tartan plaid seat inserts are standard.
Maverick's designed for today's on-the-go drivers. It's a great city car. Country car. Suburban car. A great car for newlyweds. Business girls. College kids. Come take a look at this one! At Ford and Mercury Dealers.

THE NEWEST SMALL FORD.

BROADCAST HEARING

Famous Players Lectured With War Poem

OTTAWA (CP) — A public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission seemed an odd place for a reading for the poem In Flanders Fields.

But that's where it happened Tuesday, as the CRTC heard an application by Famous Players Canadian Corp. for a structural reorganization that would make this American-owned company fit the latest government regulations on foreign ownership of broadcasting interests.

Commissioner Gordon Hughes read the First World War poem into the record to point up the fact that, during the Second World War and for some time after, he had found only scant references to Canada's war participation in American-made movies.

"I used to go and hope to see a Canadian war film," Mr. Hughes said. "I sort of gave up after 15 years."

The poem by Canada's John McRae illustrated Canada's involvement in both world wars, Mr. Hughes said. He wondered why Paramount Pictures, the American parent company for Famous Players, had not seen fit to make some films about Canada when the organization was taking money from Canadian motion picture audiences.

George Destounis, Famous Players president, agreed with Mr. Hughes that it would have been nice if Paramount had made a picture about Canada—either her war effort or some other aspect of Canadian life.

DOESN'T DISTRIBUTE

But he also said that Famous Players, which has operated a string of theatres in Canada, some of them established as long as 50 years ago, is an exhibitor, not a distributor, of films.

And he added that earnings from a Paramount-distributed film in Canada probably amounted to about six per cent of Paramount's total revenue from the American market.

Paramount Pictures controls about 51 per cent of Famous Players Canadian Corp. Paramount in turn is owned by Gulf and Western Industries Ltd., another United States firm.

A recent government order requires that foreign ownership from 1970 on shall be limited to 20 per cent of the voting shares in any broadcasting operation.

Famous Players came up with a corporate revamping to enable it and its Canadian partners to meet this regulation and presented it to the CRTC Tuesday.

At the heart of the proposal is creation of Teltron Communications Ltd.

ISSUE VOTING SHARES

All those partners with Famous Players in its present broadcasting undertakings would be issued voting shares of Teltron. A public issue for sale on Canadian stock exchanges would be made—some 808,000 shares representing about $8,000,000.

The outcome would be that Famous Players would hold just under 20 per cent of the voting stock, its partner companies would have just over 55 per cent and the public offering would amount to about 25 per cent.

But 100 per cent of the preferred non-voting shares would rest with Famous Players, giving this company close to 60 per cent of the total outstanding shares.

Mr. Destounis told the hearing that Gulf and Western has made a public commitment to whittle down the Famous Players participation in the whole operation over the next five years.

Vote Favors Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil, Chemical and Atomic Union members in the B.C. lower mainland have voted 87 per cent in favor of a strike, it was announced Tuesday. Total of 550 men seek a pay increase of $1 an hour over two years on a base rate of $2.90 an hour. Companies involved are Imperial, Standard, Gulf, Home, Shell and Texaco.

Developers Warned On Swimming Pools

Developers should check B.C. health and building regulations before drawing up plans for swimming pools, a health department spokesman said today.

"They would save themselves time and unnecessary expenses," he said.

Developers had planned a $60,000 public swimming pool on Resthaven Drive at Mills Road, but the plan was not acceptable to the Metropolitan Board of Health because it failed to meet standards.

The project has been dropped, Sidney council was informed Monday.

The normal procedure for constructing a pool is to submit plans to the board of health which hands them over to provincial health department engineers.

The engineers are consultants to the board.

The standard for pools are governed by regulations approved by the government in 1967 to safeguard health and prevent accidents.

"At this time of the year we are deluged with pool plans for motels and hotels," said one engineer. "We have five men working on them."

He said civic swimming pools rarely give the department any trouble because officials are aware of the regulations.

But plans for privately-financed pools for motels and hotels often fell short.

Pools must not only conform to health regulations but safety standards, he said.

For example, a pool must be light in color so that the bottom can be seen; all floors must be of durable material, impervious to moisture and non-slip, and junctions between walls must be curved not sharp.

"There are many more regulations—all necessary to prevent accidents and to safeguard public health," he said.

Less Than One Per Cent Show Candidate Interest

By MARJORIE PARKER

More than 3,000 people voted down incorporation in Colwood, Langford, Metchosin last February — and forced their regional representatives out of office . . .

The 29 who did appear to hear candidates for seats on the regional board, included six members of the Association of Women Electors.

The meeting was held in Colwood Community Hall.

Organizer and chairman of the meeting, Fred Boulter, said Colwood candidate James Buchanan, presently in hospital, favored planning.

Richard Emery, Colwood, promised to work for an extended-care hospital for the area. He urged a regional vote on Sunday sports.

Mrs. Bessie Smith, Colwood, outline the structure and jurisdiction of the regional board. She hoped the board would assign extended care beds to St. Mary's Priory.

Fourth Colwood candidate, Herman Williams, promised that he would "not represent the board to the people, but the people to the board."

Charles P. Cue, Langford, opposed dumping raw sewage into open coastal waters.

The voting structure of the regional board was criticized by Earl Pallister, Langford, who believes that "we should have equal say with the people of other municipalities."

William Temple, Langford, also criticized the voting setup of the board. He suggested that regional government will eventually replace municipal government which he said, are both clumsy and awkward.

Ken Rainey, Metchosin, said the people are uninformed and the regional board's method of parkland acquisition is "throwing away the people's money."

Donald Stansall, Metchosin, said the regional board "seems to bungle through everything."

Mac Tipton, former Metchosin director, explained that metro government does not do away with municipal government, but merely does away with duplication. He advocated an acute care hospital unit to augment the proposed extended care facilities for St. Mary's Priory.

Election takes place Saturday.

SFU to Laud Prominent Canadians

SFU chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum will confer honorary degrees on Dr. Har Gobind Khorana, a former B.C. Research Council Scientist who was co-winner of the 1968 Nobel Prize for medicine; Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat and specialist on Far East affairs; H. H. Stevens, former MP and minister of trade and commerce in the Bennett cabinet; and Professor Robert McKenzie, political commentator and analyst in the United Kingdom.

The honorary degree recipients have all made outstanding contributions to the Canadian scene. Prof. McKenzie will give the convocation address to the 650 graduating students.

Transplants Contrary To Jewish Law

BOSTON (AP) — A rabbi says he believes heart transplants at the present stage of development are contrary to Jewish law and constitute "double murder" of recipient and donor.

Rabbi Maurice Beknitsky, vice-president of the Rabbinical Council of Massachusetts, expressed his views Tuesday at a symposium at Berth Israel Hospital.

He said such transplants might be "permissible" later. He said that donors still "lived" at the time of transplants and that recipients sometimes died immediately after surgery.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts this week to:

Kathleen Oliver, 2519 Scott Street from Frank Oliver, 812 Daffodil Ave. They were married at Victoria in 1948.

Marion A. Haliday, 1847 Crescent Road, Victoria, from Peter J. Haliday, Kinnaird, B.C. They were married at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, in 1960.

QUICK

Ask Him Where Salmon Are

Would you like some herring?

"A phewww," replied the whale.

It may not come to that for a while, but by golly, they're working on it with Junior, the killer whale.

Poolside psychologist, Dr. Paul Spong, who chats with other mammals at University of B.C. and the Vancouver Aquarium, is on the job.

Soon after the 3,500 pound whale was brought to Oak Bay Marina's Sealand, Dr. Spong began a vigil with a tape recorder.

Already he has filed away a variety of squeals. And every little squeal has a meaning of its own.

"Junior has a well-balanced mind.

"He has a tremendous versatility of language."

Pretty good for a kid of two.

DO TRICKS

Graham Ellis, formerly of the Vancouver Aquarium, says Junior can already, on instruction, open his mouth, roll over, shake a flipper, or jump eight feet.

He has four hour-long training sessions daily.

STUDENT ART SHOW OPENS

An exhibition of student art from the University of Victoria was opened Tuesday by Vancouver artist Jack Shadbolt at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

The show by students of the School of Fine Arts includes paintings, sculpture, pottery, graphics and glass, and will continue until the end of the month. Some of the work is for sale.

"What I like about this show is the element of risk.

"It looks to an outside observer as if there are a great number of switched-on people here, and there is also the impression that there is a tremendous rapport between the students and their instructors."

Spring Festival Celebrated

The spring religious festival of Baisakhi — meaning the New Year — was celebrated over the weekend by more than 1,000 Sikhs at the East Indian temple on Topaze Avenue.

The majority of worshippers were from Victoria and other major Vancouver Island centres.

In accordance with custom, the 1,400-page Sikh bible was read from cover to cover during the three-day celebrations. Six men took part in the reading which started at 10 a.m. Friday, and ended at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Couple Safe

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Two persons who were missing Saturday on a flight from Vancouver to Harrison Lake in the Fraser Valley were flown to Abbotsford Sunday after they walked 28 miles to a logging camp near Stave Lake. Roland Cartledge of Vancouver was the pilot of a float-equipped Piper Apache forced down on a glacier in mountains north of the Fraseer Valley. He and a passenger, Penny Nelson of Surrey, walked through deep snow to Stave Lake Division of Whonnock Lumber Co.

B.C. BANK WORKING ON NANAIMO BRANCH

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Bank of British Columbia will open a branch in Nanaimo, Albert E. Hall, the bank's chairman and president, announced today.

Hall said the branch will open in late summer. He said renovations on the building, now occupied by Nanaimo Pharmacy, will begin as soon as plans are completed.

The bank now has four offices: two in Vancouver, one in New Westminster and one in Victoria.

Several other branches are expected to be opened throughout the province before the end of the year, said Mr. Hall.

Duncan Dust Irks Residents Of Dry Road

DUNCAN — Not all the dust bowls are on the prairies according to the residents of the unpaved part of Day Road that lies between Marchmount and Trunk Road.

The residents of two dozen homes along the strip are furious at the city for ignoring requests to improve the street and their lawns have broken out in a rash of protest signs:

"Duncan's Dust Bowl." "We Came From the Prairies To Get Away from Dust." "Hey Guy, Cool It—No Pavement."

Larry Zaluski, spokesman for the homeowners, said attempts over three years to get city hall to do anything about improvement have fizzled.

"We even went up together to try to get lowered assessments and were told the matter would get looked into."

OVERLOOKED?

He pointed at the rutted, gravel street: "You can see how much looking they did."

Zaluski was also concerned for senior citizens from Kiwanis Village on Day Road who walk along the street, "choking in the dust and afraid they'll twist an ankle or break a leg in the potholes."

He pointed out that Day Road south of Larchmount is widened, paved and curbed while, "our end is a cowpath. This is no slum. They are all nice homes along here and with the taxes we pay, we are entitled to better than this."

He said the city had appropriated part of his property for widening. A dead end sign at Larchmount is another source or irritation.

FAST TRAFFIC

"We moved here because we were assured it would be a quiet dead end street," Zaluski said. "Now they've opened up that other end because of a real estate firm farther along and the traffic barrels right through."

Mayor Jim Quaife said he was not aware of the situation until Monday but had taken a look at it and would report at the next meeting of council.

FALL FAIR FLAGGING

Comox Valley Exhibition Association directors say so few interested people have offered help that this year's fair might be cancelled.

In two recent meetings only a dozen supporters have come forward. President William Finlayson said another meeting will be called soon in an effort to find a fair manager.

Inlet Ferry Takes a Rest

The ferry service between Mill Bay and Brentwood will be discontinued from Monday to Thursday next week.

Coast Ferries Ltd. said the ferry will be withdrawn for annual inspection and overhaul. Regular service across Saanich Inlet will be resumed on Friday, April 25.

Man Admits Possession

DUNCAN — John David Kerr of Victoria pleaded guilty Monday to possession of a stolen automatic transmission valued at over $500.

He was remanded to May 2 for sentence.

Court was told the transmission was stolen from the English Car Centre in Victoria and had been purchased by a Duncan resident from Kerr for $210.

Kerr said he had received a telephone call from an unknown party telling him where the transmission could be picked up. He was allowed bail.

The remand was given to allow Magistrate Lance Heard time to study a pre-sentence report.

TWO RUNNING FOR COUNCIL

DUNCAN — Ronald Hill and Harold Allman said Monday they will run for the vacancy left on city council by the death of Ald. Robert Mason.

New Ferry in June For Quadra Island

CAMPBELL RIVER — A million-dollar car ferry, double the size of the ferry now running between here and Quadra Island, will be launched at Vancouver May 10 and in service in June, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Tuesday.

It will be christened "Quadra Queen" by Mrs. William Law, a Quadra Island pioneer.

Replacing the present 16-car Quadra Queen, the new vessel will carry more than 30 cars and 200 passengers between here at Quathiaski Cove. New terminal facilities at each end are nearing completion at a $250,000 cost.

★ ★ ★

CAMPBELL RIVER — The school board here confirmed Tuesday it will not be a partner in Malaspina regional college, opening at Nanaimo in September.

Secretary Philip Sampson said the view expressed by Cowichan school trustees Monday that Campbell River should remain in the scheme, is "irrelevant."

Objections here to the college plan centre around the legality of the decision to open the college in temporary quarters without a public referendum being held.

★ ★ ★

DUNCAN — The Cowichan District Teachers' Association has requested a joint committee be formed with the school board to "achieve the mutual goals of a good program through a new budget."

CDTA public relations officer Bill Murray asked at a meeting following the budget bylaw failure that the teachers would like to be kept informed of the steps whereby the budget would be "realigned."

Trustee Terry Taylor, a school principal, reported on that meeting to the school board Monday night. He said he could see nothing but good come of such a request."

★ ★ ★

DUNCAN — The city is taking its first step towards a full-time fire department by seeking a permanent fire chief for its volunteer brigade, Mayor Jim Quaife said Monday.

Quaife said "about a dozen" applications already had been received for the job currently held by volunteer Vern Jones.

"It's not that we are not satisfied with the present volunteer squad," Quaife said in an interview, "but we are a city with a good-sized assessment and we can afford a full-time chief.

He said there is "every possibility of amalgamation with North Cowichan at some time" and plans should begin now for a full-time squad.

Stop reading as they did 100 years ago!

THE WAY IT WAS—1868
100 years ago, people read the way you're reading right now. Word by word. About 250 - 350 words per minute.
100 years ago, that kind of reading was okay. You could keep up with what was happening fairly well.

THE WAY IT IS—1968
Today, it doesn't work. There's simply too much to read. Too much correspondence. Too many magazines. Too many books. Too many journals. Too many reports and memos. Too much homework. Things are happening so fast, changing so fast, that even the people who try to keep up are falling behind.

WHAT'S THE SOLUTION?
Learn to read faster and better.

IS IT POSSIBLE?
Yes, in Vancouver this month over 150 people will do it. Over 400,000 people have graduated so far.
People with different jobs, different IQs, different educations and backgrounds. Business people, professional people, students and housewives.

SO?
So, think for a moment what that means. All of them—even the slowest—now read newspaper pages in under 2 minutes. An average novel in less than 2 hours. Time Magazine in 25 minutes. College texts 50 - 75 pages an hour.

No skipping. No skimming. They read every single word. And, they use no machines. The material they're reading determines their speed.

WELL, HOW ABOUT . . .
Comprehension? They actually understand more and more and remember more and enjoy more than when they read the way you do.

BUT . . .
No buts. In fact, we guarantee to refund the entire tuition fee to any student who fails to at least triple his reading efficiency.

COULD THIS BE . . .
Yes. The same one. The late President Kennedy invited Evelyn Wood to the White House to teach Dynamic Reading to his Joint Chiefs of Staff.
It's the same course Congressmen and Canadian MPs have taken.

NOW.
Shouldn't you find out more about it? You can, simply by phoning 384-8121 or calling to 1012 Douglas St.
We'll tell you why you read so slowly. Show you a film. Explain the course more fully. Answer any questions you may have.
You'll be under no pressure to enroll. If you want to, fine. If not, okay. But do call. It could change your life.

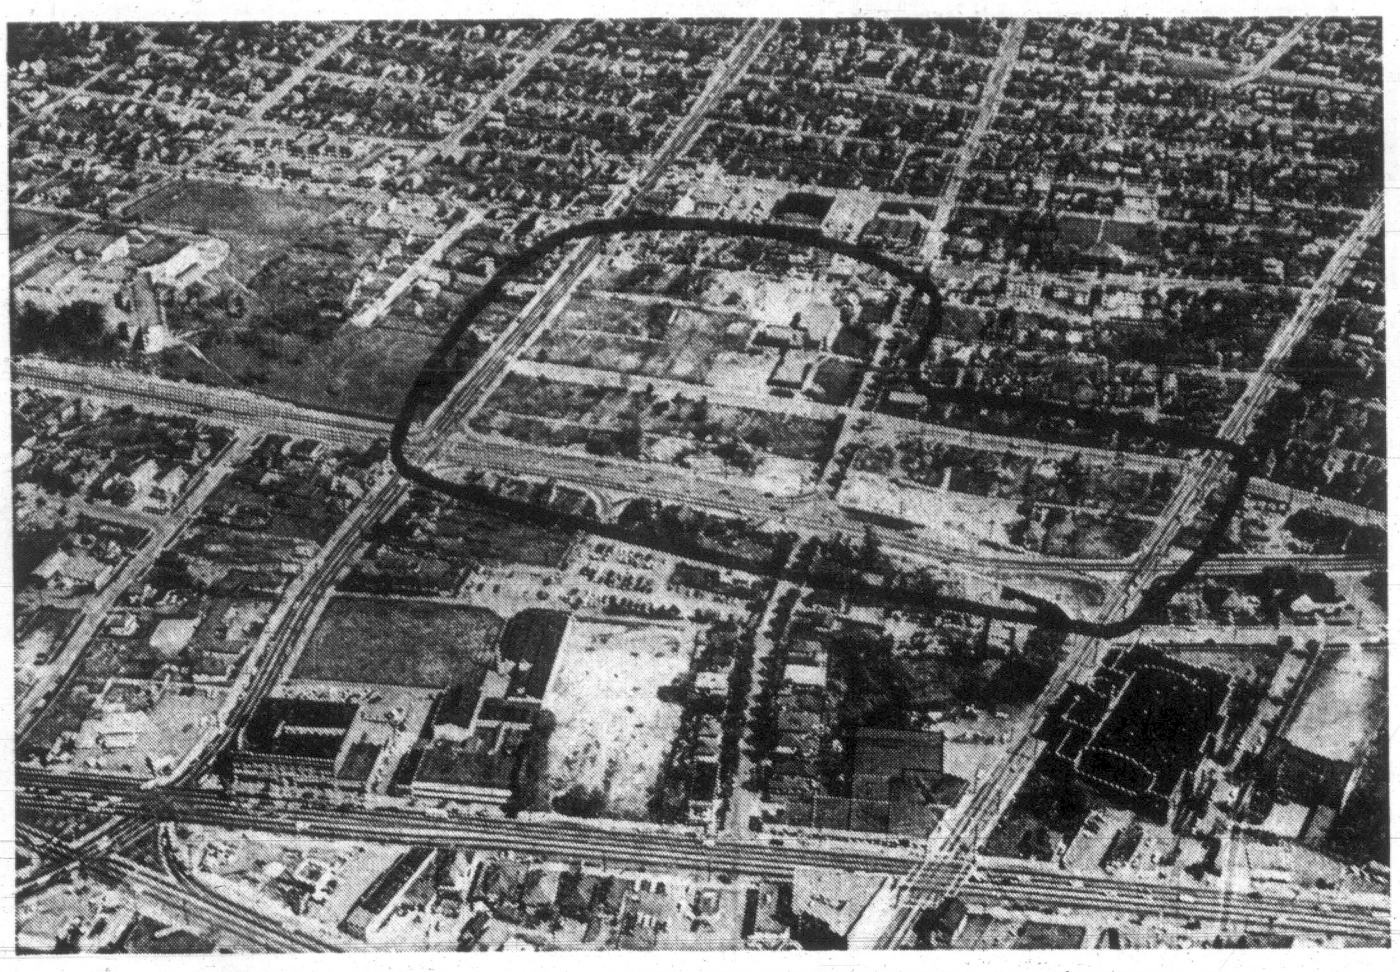
PRICE: 10 CENTS WEEKEND 15 CENTS



MORE THAN THREE YEARS AGO Victoria city council unveiled its great scheme to transform a section of the Rose-Blanshard area from a semi-slum to a modern housing development. The area, outlined in symbolic black, has been plagued with delays since its inception. The latest delay comes from Minister of Transport Paul Hellyer, who is finding it difficult to place his required signature on contract papers. The old houses have gone, some with a great deal of heartache, and the Rose-Blanshard area stands vacant waiting, hopefully, for the scratch of a pen. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

City Housing Plan Facing Roadblock

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

As a result the $2.4-million scheme which should have seen the construction of 180 housing units start last fall could now be delayed indefinitely.

Interviewed by telephone from Ottawa this morning, Hellyer agreed he had not yet signed the documents required before local contractor George Wheaton can start construction.

And he indicated it might be some time before he did sign.

"The head office (of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation) and myself are now trying to satisfy ourselves that this is in the best interests of the public taxpayer."

Due in Vancouver to inspect another urban renewal site Thursday, Hellyer was asked if city authorities and the contractor could expect a statement at that time.

"I had not planned to make a statement in Vancouver," Hellyer answered. "We shall be discussing the problem on the way out, but at this time I don't expect to make any announcement."

BID ACCEPTED

Asked if he would be visiting Victoria to discuss the situation with local officials Hellyer answered "no."

The Hellyer stall has thrown city officials and the Wheaton contracting firm into a state of bewildered anxiety.

Wheaton's bid has been accepted by provincial and municipal elected officials and by the technical experts at provincial, municipal and federal levels.

While the delay causes city officials planning concern it could cost Wheaton a severe cash loss unless a decision is made to go ahead within the next few days.

When the proposals for the housing units were submitted CMHC inserted a clause stating that the bid prices must be good for 60 days.

That 60-day time limit expired 10 days ago.

In the contracting business that means that every price increase in materials or labor

RIVER DIPS, HOPES RISE IN LUMSDEN

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — The Qu'Appelle River dropped slightly here today and there was hope in this town of about 875 residents that the worst danger from flooding has passed.

About 350 flood fighters working through the night kept sandbag dikes at least a foot above the swollen river that has been menacing the valley town for more than a week.

Today the complement of flood fighters, which has risen at times above the 1,000-mark, was reduced to 100, with another 100 standing by in case of need.

The beleaguered community 17 miles northwest of Regina was not, however, completely out of the woods.

DANGER NOT GONE

"While things look bright and rosy, we still have about three or four days when we will be very vulnerable."

Stan Blackwell of the Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission said it appeared that the peak flow was reached last night at Lumsden.

"Today," he said, "There has been a drop of about a third of an inch."

The higher flows are moving downstream from Lumsden to a point where the spring runoff is expected to split and lose much of its impact.

EXODUS CONTINUES

Spring floods have caused eight deaths in Minnesota and damage was more than $5,000,000 in five states.

South Korea Urges Retaliatory Action

Nixon Meets Advisers On Spy-Plane Crisis

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

President Nixon conferred today with his top advisers to discuss what action, if any, can be taken against Communist North Korea for shooting down an unarmed United States reconnaissance plane—an incident described by one official as "deliberate murder".

The national security council has convened at the White House.

Meanwhile, in Seoul, South Korea Defence Minister Chung Sik Yim met Tuesday with top military officials and issued a statement denouncing "this barbarous act committed by North Korea in defiance of international law."

Both the ruling Democratic Party and opposition groups in South Korea demanded immediate retaliatory action by the U.S. A spokesman for the Democratic Republic Party said that "immediate and resolute retaliatory action would prevent a recurrence of a third, fourth or fifth incident of such gravity."

"We will closely watch what the Nixon administration is going to do about this preposterous act of provocation."

The opposition New Democratic Party urged the U.S. to "do away with its past lukewarm attitude to put an end to North Korean impudence once and for all."

'CONCERTED' ACTION

Foreign ministry sources in Seoul reportedly said that South Korea may ask the U.S. for "concerted" retaliatory action.

These sources said that the latest incident is more serious than the Pueblo because it represents "a deliberate and explicit act of provocation" indicating a possible larger Communist shift of emphasis from Vietnam to the Korean Peninsula.

Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi told a Socialist questioner in the Diet that the North Korean action in shooting down the plane "goes beyond defensive measures."

A U.S. embassy spokesman said that the U.S. will give a "categorical" assurance to the Japanese government that the plane did not go closer than 40 nautical miles to "North Korean territory."

AVAILABLE EVIDENCE

The U.S. defence department said all available evidence indicates North Korea shot down the EC-121 aircraft with its crew of 31.

The department said there apparently are no survivors.

"All evidence now available to us, including North Korean claims and debris sightings, leads us to believe that the aircraft was shot down by North Korean aircraft," the statement said.

ABM Foes Now Seeking Nuclear Freeze

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON (WP) — The opponents of the anti-ballistic missile system are expanding their objectives to include a freeze on deployment of all offensive and defensive nuclear weapons by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, one of the leading Republican critics of the ABM, disclosed Tuesday that he will propose that a ban on further production and emplacement of nuclear weapons "be placed at the top of the agenda" of expected U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

Percy told a group of newsmen he will detail his proposal in a speech Thursday at State College, Pa. A similar suggestion was offered last Saturday by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, another ABM critic.

By broadening their objective, the anti-ABM forces appear to be trying to diffuse the partisan heat that has built up on the president's recommendation for deployment of the Safeguard system.

PAY HIKES COME OUT FOR CIVIL SERVANTS

About 5,000 Greater Victoria workers were to learn about their pay increases at quitting time today.

The provincial civil service commission was to announce the breakdown for distributing $6.5 million in this year's budget for pay boosts to the 23,000 B.C. government employees.

Retroactive to April 1, the boosts will average about 7 per cent but there are expected to be wide individual variations.

Arab Guerrilla Groups Renew Demand for War

By The Associated Press

Five Arab guerrilla organizations have rejected King Hussein's six-point Middle East peace proposal and renewed their demand for war against Israel.

The guerrillas, who long have sworn to fight until Israel is destroyed, rejected "each and every point" in the plan Hussein outlined in a speech in Washington last week. They also rejected all other plans for a political settlement with Israel.

The Jordanian monarch, who said he spoke for President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt as well as for Jordan, called for Israel's withdrawal from Arab territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. His other points included a guarantee of the "territorial inviolability" of all Middle Eastern states, use of the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba by Israeli shipping, an end to Arab warfare against Israel and an equitable settlement of the claims of Arab refugees from Palestine.

Hussein said Sunday in New York that a "majority" of the Arabs, including the guerrillas, would accept a peace settlement negotiated on the basis of his six points. With many of the guerrillas now operating from bases in Jordan, and support for them increasing among the hundreds of thousands of refugees in Hussein's kingdom, the repudiation of his peace overture constitutes a grave new threat to the young monarch.

Israel already had called on Hussein to make his proposals at face-to-face negotiations with the Israelis if he were serious.

Leaders of the five major Palestinian resistance groups held a secret meeting Monday and later issued a joint statement in Amman, the Jordanian capital, rejecting the king's proposal. They said they had agreed on a "unified course of action"—to send delegations to a number of Arab governments seeking clear definition of their attitude toward plans for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

LAUNCHES TIRADE AGAINST . . . . . THOSE 'GODLESS' SOCIALISTS

Bennett Sharpens Vote Claws on Berger

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett Tuesday called for a political holy war against the NDP in his strongest indication yet that he will call an election this year.

Bennett asked all British Columbians who are federal Liberals and Conservatives or "CCF reformers" to join a Social Credit crusade against the "Godless socialists" and "labor bosses" he claimed took over the NDP with selection of Tom Berger as its leader.

The premier also said it remains to be seen whether Berger ever will sit in the legislature as leader of the opposition because he could suffer personal defeat in a general election before the next session.

Berger shot back that he expects an election this year and is sure it will bring the NDP to power with a 36-seat majority.

"I think the premier should hustle up to Kelowna and make sure he's going to come back himself before he begins to suggest anyone else is not going to come back," said Berger.

He said last weekend's NDP convention had a bigger impact than expected "and the premier obviously has blown his cool.

"But the premier has no right to cast reflections on the religious convictions of 15,000 members of the New Democratic Party or the quarter of a million people of this province who voted for us (in 1966)," he said.

The exchanges came in back-to-back interviews which showed both party leaders were in a go-for-broke mood following the NDP convention in Vancouver last weekend which gave Berger the leadership by a 4 per cent margin.

Berger came to Victoria to take over the opposition leader's office in the Legislative Buildings and announce he was winding up his law practice to devote full time to his political duties.

Bennett, who personally staked out the NDP convention by conveniently holding a minor family reunion in the same hotel, touched off the electioneering crossfire.

He vehemently denied he had seen Robert Bonner on his Vancouver trip to discuss the timing for severing the former attorney-general's last links with public life.

He said rumors that Bonner, who left cabinet last summer to become executive vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel, would drop out as MLA for Cariboo next month—due either to resignation or a general election call — "are without an essence of truth."

But Bennett shifted a religious query which began the interview into his favorite election platform theme—portrayal of Social Credit as the population's saviour from anti-church socialism.

The premier was asked for comment on a Vancouver school board decision to request the cabinet to abolish the mandatory religious exercises in classrooms comprising daily Bible readings and the Lord's Prayer.

"It's the law of the province and personally I'm not in favor of changing it," Bennett said.

●

"We are a Christian society," he responded when asked about the feelings of Buddhists, Jews and other religious minorities whose children also are in the classrooms.

"But," he added with sudden passion, "there are forces all around that are trying to break down our Christian principles."

Bennett said society now is "reaping the whirlwind" in breakdown of moral fibre and family life sown by atheists and such things as "progressive" education.

"These people who believe in the socialist no-God theory —that's what I oppose," he cried across his desk. "These God-less socialists are all around."

A startled reporter asked if he meant the NDP.

"Certainly," snapped Bennett.

(In a press release today, Berger said he supports the Vancouver school board's request because the mandatory classroom recitations make "a meaningless ritual of religion and religion is too important a part of life to allow that to happen."

(Referring to "Premier Bennett's hysterical outburst" describing socialists as God-less, Berger said "he obviously has decided that he wants to run against the Devil at the next election.")

●

Bennett was asked by reporters how he felt about Berger facing him in the legislature as Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, in view of his statements about God-less socialists.

"He might not get elected personally," the premier snapped.

'The Better Life'

It's: "The Better Life."

The watch phrase of the Social Credit government in the last few years had been "the dynamic society." Bennett told a news conference today "we now see the dividends coming for the better life."

The dynamic society was marked with intensive construction of highways, bridges and electric power developments throughout the province.

Beginning this year and going into the 1970s "the emphasis will be on the better life," which the premier described as the results of the dynamic society.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1969 —PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

Across the road from our place, big yellow digging machines are scooping out sewer trenches with diesel-powered ease.

On our side, by way of quaint contrast, a couple of guys with hand-propelled spades and weary backs are renewing a septic tile field.

These toilers are a teen-ager by the name of Bob, and myself. I'm pleased to report that Bob is doing about three-quarters of the work.

Let me make it plain right here that I'm not reproaching

our local government for what might appear to be favoritism. We're on the downslope to Haro Strait, and can be sewered only with the aid of a pumping station which Saanich does not include in its present plans.

Like any other project, digging in a tile line requires some initial study. I made a sketch of the operation, and was filling in measurements when my wife paused to inspect the plan.

"You didn't allow for a nine-inch layer of drain rock under the tile," she said.

"Well," Win said amiably, "that's what the sanitation people told me when I phoned." She borrowed my pencil and made some changes. "See? You wrap the tile joints with building paper, and put strips of tarpaper over them to make a roof. Then you lay another two inches of drain rock over the tarpaper, and building paper over the rock."

★

"Anything else?" I asked her, not too happily.

"Yes," she said. "I'm afraid your trench has to be deeper. The sanitation people said about two feet should be right."

I did some hasty arithmetic, and decided it might be an idea to call Bob in on the deal.

Then, with a fair stretch of daylight still in hand, I went out and turned the first sod.

It was tough with grass roots, and only by jumping up and down on the spade could I make a dint in it. Chunking turf is hard work, but by persevering, I got our line marked out.

This done, I limped in to clean up, and in the process, stole a side-view glance in a mirror.

There's nothing like digging to flatten the silhouette. Mine, however, was discouragingly unaltered. On the debit side, I'd acquired a set of twinges that began in the left instep and ranged upward.

"I thought it might save you some time if I ordered the tile and gravel," Win told me at dinner.

"Gravel, sure," I said. "But what – about all that old concrete tile I've been saving?"

"It's against the regulations for septic lines," my dear one said. "The sanitation people told me that, too."

★

Next day, the drain rock arrived, and with it a batch of the proper orange-red tile. Bob turned up. I loaned him my best spade, and was about to join him in the diggings when I remembered commitments elsewhere.

Anyway, in a task of this sort, it's unfair to set an adult pace and expect a boy to match it.

That evening, we strolled down for a look. For a moment I wondered if one of the yellow monsters across the road had waddled down to lend a hand. The trench was mostly dug, and this to a depth that would make the sanitation people very happy. The finished portion was neatly floored with rock wheelbarrowed from the pile.

Since then, the job has progressed very nicely. Though it's but a humble effort compared to the machine-delved operation across the road, we're kind of proud of it.

We're about ready to fit the tar paper roof, apply the other two inches of gravel, and fill in. I expect business elsewhere will keep me from sharing the windup, but perhaps I'll be through in time to replace the sods.

PO Asks Public To Pin-Point Mail Problems

Cause of Slow-Up Object of Probe

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Delays in mail delivery have been increasing, especially in the last two months, prompting a number of complaints.

Stofer and Victoria Postmaster James Deans met Tuesday with officials of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, which has had a small committee looking into the subject for several months.

While not guaranteeing the post office will have all the answers, Stofer said specific instances of delays are being sought along with envelopes and cancellation marks.

This could provide a lead in finding out why there was a delay, he said.

For example, some people have complained it takes five days to receive a letter from Vancouver.

★

Stofer urged the public and businesses to mail early and often during the day to connect with early flights out of Victoria, rather than hold all the mail until quitting time at the end of the day.

He said late-day mailing is "part of our problem."

At the same time, the post office in Ottawa issued a statement saying the amount of mail being shortpaid is "rather substantial" since postage rates for surface letters and printed matter to other countries took effect last November.

A good portion of the mail with insufficient postage was for addresses in the United Kingdom, Germany, The Netherlands, Switzerland, South Africa, France and Italy.

The statement said short-payment resulted in complaints and criticism by recipients who must pay double the deficient postage.

Mailers were reminded to make note of the correct postage rates for surface letters and printed matter mailed to other countries.

"The importance of the foregoing cannot be too strongly emphasized," said the statement.

U.S. SHIPS VISITING ESQUIMALT

Two United States Navy destroyer-escorts arrived in Esquimalt Tuesday following exercises in local waters with Canadian Navy ships.

USS Bridget and USS Evans were accompanied by destroyer-escorts Qu'Appelle, Yukon, St. Croix and Mackenzie and the submarine Rainbow.

Vast Playhouse For Handicapped

By PAT DUFOUR

The young patients will feel they've moved into a giant-sized playhouse.

David Hambleton, of architects Wagg and Hamilton, said one of their objects was to provide a light airy atmosphere. This has been achieved with artistic effect.

The patients moved into their new quarters this week. It will take some time before they're truly able to appreciate their surroundings. The main floor of the $660,000 building covers 27,400 square feet while the huge basement spreads over 43,000 square feet. The clinic stands on three acres.

Clinic officials are certain the new building is unique in Canada and will prove an example for other organizations dealing with the handicapped.

Nothing has been overlooked. The most modern of equipment has been built in the jumbo-sized physiotherapy room, each piece adding its own splash of color.

A room of the same size at the other end of the building doubles as an assembly and dining area. It's skirted by the most modern of kitchens, complete with a freezer, two stoves, washer and refrigerator.

Day Nursery Service Provided

There's a nursery with built-in cribs that will also be used by parents who wish to leave their children under supervision in order to shop or make other necessary calls.

The four classrooms each have their own sink, cloakroom and bathroom facilities, and an enclosed outside porch, which can be used for both study and play areas.

Occupational and speech therapy rooms are well equipped and attractive. One of the clinic's most recent gifts is $12,000 of equipment to be used with the hard-of-hearing patients. This was donated by the Victoria Rotary Club, project director George Gray said.

A 20 by 40-foot pool, heated to 90 degrees, is designed for use by both walking and wheelchair cases. Gaily-curtained cubicles are available for changing and an observation corridor facilitates overseeing by medical staff.

The floor of the basement play area, to be used on wet days, is staked out with permanently installed shuffleboard checkers, hop-scotch and square ball games.

The ranks of the patients were increased this week by 35 pre-schoolers formerly taught at the Elford Street School for the Retarded and five pre-school children with hearing difficulties.

In many of the rooms overhead supports (looking something like inverted bed springs) have been installed for children who need help with head or limbs.

The clinic will have the wraps taken off officially when Premier W. A. C. Bennett declares it open April 30 at 2 p.m.

It will be completely paid for in three years time when all pledges have been met, at a cost of $17 a square foot.

FREEMAN KING

OVERTIME PERMIT OK

That rambling naturalist, Freeman King, has had his licence to ramble extended for a year by the British Columbia government.

By order-in-council the cabinet extended the well-known Victorian's post as naturalist with the department of recreation and conservation's parks branch at Goldstream.

The order notes that the formal extension is necessary, King "having reached the age of 65."

Freight Rate Effects Minimized

Victoria won't suffer any more than other B.C. points as a result of coming freight rate increases announced today in Montreal.

George Farmer, chairman of the harbor and transportation group in the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said he was not shocked by the announcements but the full picture could not be seen until there is more information.

Canadian Freight Association said 6 per cent boost will be made effective July 14 in two-thirds of 1,500 "agreed-charge" arrangements with individual companies shipping by railways.

The boost will add $3 million to the total revenue of Canadian railways during the last half of 1969, it was estimated.

Farmer said the only agreed-charge bulk shipments coming to Victoria are CNR grain cars delivering to the Ogden Point elevator but a special agreement provides that the Vancouver-Victoria shipping cost will not be increased.

The Express Traffic Association, representing most Canadian railways, also announced that charges for non-carload railway shipments west of Quebec City will be raised between 3 and 10 per cent May. 1.

Farmer said few such shipments are made to Victoria anyway.

"So I don't think the increases will affect Victoria any more than any other place," commented Farmer.

Marijuana Trafficking Still Means Jail Term

Judge Montague Drake said in county court today that, under Canada's present law, no person found guilty of trafficking in marijuana or LSD can be "let off" with a suspended sentence.

Defence counsel A. N. Patterson said the pre-sentence report on an 18-year-old Victoria youth, convicted of trafficking, suggested a suspended sentence would be desirable.

"But, in view of the decisions of the Court of Appeal, I don't think that course is open to Your Honor."

Judge Drake agreed. He sentenced 18-year-old Raymond Prior to three months definite and 12 months indefinite at the Young Offenders' Unit Haney on two charges of trafficking.

Defence counsel Patterson asked that Prior be give a chance to continue his education, which was halted at Grade 7.

REHABILITATION

"Rehabilitation is obviously called for," said Judge Drake.

Patterson said the pre-sentence report called for by Judge Drake, showed he was not a non-co-operative citizen and did not have any chip on his shoulder against society.

"He has no previous convictions."

Prior had admitted to selling LSD in Centennial Square last Oct. 7.

He was also jointly charged with David Weir, 18, of trafficking in marijuana on Nov. 13 last.

Weir entered a plea of not guilty on the trafficking charge, but was convicted. Judge Drake said he would sentence Weir on April 21.

UNDERCOVER

On the LSD charge, RCMP Constable John O'Neill said an undercover man, Constable Michael Onischuk, met Prior in Centennial Square and arranged to purchase the drug.

He paid $75 for it.

On the joint charge against Weir and Prior, Constable Onischuk said the trafficking deal was arranged in a downtown department store.

Ask The Times

Q. On traffic signals, why is the red at the top and the green at the bottom? D.F.

A. The red, being the most important of the two signal colors, is placed at the top so as to give it greater prominence and make it visible at a greater distance. Another reason is that the color is less likely to be obscured by high trucks and other abnormally-large vehicles, according to highways and police officials.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Kiddies' Theme for Parade

The Victoria Day parade will have a children's theme this year to get away from the "serious centennial business we've had for the last umpteen years."

This year's parade will also be cut to about half its usual length, but quality will be improved, a Greater Victoria Celebrations Association spokesman said today.

Association chairman John Rafter said the "Children's Fantasy" theme was chosen because "normally the parade is for children anyway."

As for length, organizers hope the procession will pass any spot on its route down Douglas Street from the Mayfair shopping centre to Belleville Street in about 1½ hours.

Only a few local entries have so far been received and organizers emphasized that applications must be in by May 2, eight days before the parade.

MAJOR LOCAL INDUSTRY, SAYS PLANNER

29,000 RETIRED PERSONS

South V.I. Retirement Centre for All Canada

This view was presented to the Capital Region Planning Board Tuesday at its second seminar and review of regional planning in the area from Sooke to Sidney.

CRPB planner John Northey said the retirement industry is an invisible one, but it was a "strong, highly important" sector of the economy.

He produced a welter of statistics to show this, pointing out that the retirement industry is bigger than manufacturing.

In fact, in terms of payroll, it was nearly equivalent to the major employer—the federal government.

In another comparison, he said retirement income was equivalent to a shipyard payroll of 6,800 persons.

But he cautioned later that a shipyard of such size would result in greater retail sales than the retirement industry because the workers would be heavier purchasers of consumer goods.

It was estimated that there were between 28,000 and 29,000 retired persons in this area in mid-1968, which is only slightly less than the combined populations of Oak Bay and Esquimalt municipalities.

Just over 11 per cent of total income in the area came from investments or pensions, the highest rate in Canada. Most metropolitan areas had a figure of four to five per cent.

Two reasons given by retired persons for coming here were the attractiveness of the region and the climate.

The seminar was entitled How Are the Bills Paid and Northey's comments followed some suggestions by elected officials that the area should be attracting certain specialized industries.

"Comfortable retirement is what this area can provide," said North Saanich Ald. Trevor Davis after Northey's presentation. "This aspect is more important than perhaps it has been credited."

●

Half the retired people in the area come here after they retire, the seminar was told.

Of those who come, 45 per cent were from the Prairies, 20 per cent from other parts of British Columbia and lesser amounts from Ontario. The United States was "very small."

Tony Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board, said the economics of the region are one of the essential foundations of its life and growth.

Roughly 70,000 persons work for a living, or a third of the population, but in 1951 this figure was 40 per cent. The number of workers was increasing, but the percentage of the total population was slipping.

One of the obvious reasons for this is the number of retired people, he said.

The percentage of the labor force who are men was declining (today's figure of 73 per cent was predicted to fall to 60 per cent by 1981) while the female percentage was rising correspondingly.

If nothing interrupts the trend, the labor force will be equally divided between men and women by the end of the century.

●

A number of reasons were advanced for this—the decline in the stigma attached to the working mother, more part-time work which is suitable for mothers, improved contraception, deferred motherhood after marriage.

There were more and more pressures to buy more and more consumer goods and the service industries were suitable employment areas for women. The trend in female employment is "pretty much the same as the rest of Canada."

A breakdown of the labor force showed 14,638 people working for government, including defence, 13,020 in service industries, 7,199 in retail and 5,960 in manufacturing.

By 1981, it was predicted the government workers would increase to 23,000 but service workers would jump to 24,000 and take the lead. Retail would increase to 11,100 and manufacturing to 7,600.

BROADCAST HEARING

Famous Players Lectured With War Poem

OTTAWA (CP) — A public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission seemed an odd place for a reading for the poem In Flanders Fields.

But that's where it happened Tuesday, as the CRTC heard an application by Famous Players Canadian Corp. for a structural reorganization that would make this American-owned company fit the latest government regulations on foreign ownership of broadcasting interests.

Commissioner Gordon Hughes read the First World War poem into the record to point up the fact that, during the Second World War and for some time after, he had found only scant references to Canada's war participation in American-made movies.

"I used to go and hope to see a Canadian war film," Mr. Hughes said. "I sort of gave up after 15 years."

The poem by Canada's John McRae illustrated Canada's involvement in both world wars, Mr. Hughes said. He wondered why Paramount Pictures, the American parent company for Famous Players, had not seen fit to make some films about Canada when the organization was taking money from Canadian motion picture audiences.

George Destounis, Famous Players president, agreed with Mr. Hughes that it would have been nice if Paramount had made a picture about Canada—either her war effort or some other aspect of Canadian life.

DOESN'T DISTRIBUTE

But he also said that Famous Players, which has operated a string of theatres in Canada, some of them established as long as 50 years ago, is an exhibitor, not a distributor, of films.

And he added that earnings from a Paramount-distributed film in Canada probably amounted to about six per cent of Paramount's total revenue from the American market.

Paramount Pictures controls about 51 per cent of Famous Players Canadian Corp. Paramount in turn is owned by Gulf and Western Industries Ltd., another United States firm.

A recent government order requires that foreign ownership from 1970 on shall be limited to 20 per cent of the voting shares in any broadcasting operation.

Famous Players came up with a corporate revamping to enable it and its Canadian partners to meet this regulation and presented it to the CRTC Tuesday.

At the heart of the proposal is creation of Teltron Communications Ltd.

ISSUE VOTING SHARES

All those partners with Famous Players in its present broadcasting undertakings would be issued voting shares of Teltron. A public issue for sale on Canadian stock exchanges would be made—some 808,000 shares representing about $8,000,000.

The outcome would be that Famous Players would hold just under 20 per cent of the voting stock, its partner companies would have just over 55 per cent and the public offering would amount to about 25 per cent.

But 100 per cent of the preferred non-voting shares would rest with Famous Players, giving this company close to 60 per cent of the total outstanding shares.

Mr. Destounis told the hearing that Gulf and Western has made a public commitment to whittle down the Famous Players participation in the whole operation over the next five years.

Vote Favors Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil, Chemical and Atomic Union members in the B.C. lower mainland have voted 87 per cent in favor of a strike, it was announced Tuesday. Total of 550 men seek a pay increase of $1 an hour over two years on a base rate of $2.90 an hour. Companies involved are Imperial, Standard, Gulf, Home, Shell and Texaco.

Developers Warned On Swimming Pools

Developers should check B.C. health and building regulations before drawing up plans for swimming pools, a health department spokesman said today.

"They would save themselves time and unnecessary expenses," he said.

Developers had planned a $60,000 public swimming pool on Resthaven Drive at Mills Road, but the plan was not acceptable to the Metropolitan Board of Health because it failed to meet standards.

The project has been dropped, Sidney council was informed Monday.

The normal procedure for constructing a pool is to submit plans to the board of health which hands them over to provincial health department engineers.

The engineers are consultants to the board.

The standard for pools are governed by regulations approved by the government in 1967 to safeguard health and prevent accidents.

"At this time of the year we are deluged with pool plans for motels and hotels," said one engineer. "We have five men working on them."

He said civic swimming pools rarely give the department any trouble because officials are aware of the regulations.

But plans for privately-financed pools for motels and hotels often fell short.

Pools must not only conform to health regulations but safety standards, he said.

For example, a pool must be light in color so that the bottom can be seen; all floors must be of durable material, impervious to moisture and non-slip, and junctions between walls must be curved not sharp.

"There are many more regulations—all necessary to prevent accidents and to safeguard public health," he said.

Less Than One Per Cent Show Candidate Interest

By MARJOUL PARKER

More than 3,000 people voted down incorporation in Colwood, Langford, Metchosin last February — and forced their regional representatives out of office . . .

The 29 who did appear to hear candidates for seats on the regional board, included six members of the Association of Women Electors.

The meeting was held in Colwood Community Hall.

Organizer and chairman of the meeting, Fred Boulter, said Colwood candidate James Buchanan, presently in hospital, favored planning.

Richard Emery, Colwood, promised to work for an extended-care hospital for the area. He urged a regional vote on Sunday sports.

Mrs. Bessie Smith, Colwood, outline the structure and jurisdiction of the regional board. She hoped the board would assign extended care beds to St. Mary's Priory.

Fourth Colwood candidate, Herman Williams, promised that he would "not represent the board to the people, but the people to the board."

The voting structure of the regional board was criticized by Earl Pallister, Langford, who believes that "we should have equal say with the people of other municipalities."

William Temple, Langford, also criticized the voting setup of the board. He suggested that regional government will eventually replace municipal government which he said, are both clumsy and awkward.

Ken Rainey, Metchosin, said the people are uninformed and the regional board's method of parkland acquisition is "throwing away the people's money."

Donald Stansall, Metchosin, said the regional board "seems to bungle through everything."

Mac Tipton, former Metchosin director, explained that metro government does not do away with municipal government, but merely does away with duplication. He advocated an acute care hospital unit to augment the proposed extended care facilities for St. Mary's Priory.

Election takes place Saturday.

SFU to Laud Prominent Canadians

SFU chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum will confer honorary degrees on Dr. Har Gobind Khorana, a former B.C. Research Council Scientist who was co-winner of the 1968 Nobel Prize for medicine; Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat and specialist on Far East affairs; H. H. Stevens, former MP and minister of trade and commerce in the Bennett cabinet; and Professor Robert McKenzie, political commentator and analyst in the United Kingdom.

The honorary degree recipients have all made outstanding contributions to the Canadian scene. Prof. McKenzie will give the convocation address to the 650 graduating students.

Transplants Contrary To Jewish Law

BOSTON (AP) — A rabbi says he believes heart transplants at the present stage of development are contrary to Jewish law and constitute "double murder" of recipient and donor.

Rabbi Maurice Beknitsky, vice-president of the Rabbinical Council of Massachusetts, expressed his views Tuesday at a symposium at Berth Israel Hospital.

He said such transplants might be "permissible" later. He said that donors still "lived" at the time of transplants and that recipients sometimes died immediately after surgery.

QUICK
Ask Him Where Salmon Are

Would you like some herring?

"A phewww," replied the whale.

It may not come to that for a while, but by golly, they're working on it with Junior, the killer whale.

Poolside psychologist, Dr. Paul Spong, who chats with other mammals at University of B.C. and the Vancouver Aquarium, is on the job.

Soon after the 3,500 pound whale was brought to Oak Bay Marina's Sealand, Dr. Spong began a vigil with a tape recorder.

Already he has filed away a variety of squeals. And every little squeal has a meaning of its own.

"Junior has a well-balanced mind.

"He has a tremendous versatility of language."

Pretty good for a kid of two.

DO TRICKS

Graham Ellis, formerly of the Vancouver Aquarium, says Junior can already, on instruction, open his mouth, roll over, shake a flipper, or jump eight feet.

He has four hour-long training sessions daily.

STUDENT ART SHOW OPENS

An exhibition of student art from the University of Victoria was opened Tuesday by Vancouver artist Jack Shadbolt at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

The show by students of the School of Fine Arts includes paintings, sculpture, pottery, graphics and glass, and will continue until the end of the month. Some of the work is for sale.

"What I like about this show is the element of risk.

"It looks to an outside observer as if there are a great number of switched-on people here, and there is also the impression that there is a tremendous rapport between the students and their instructors."

Spring Festival Celebrated

The spring religious festival of Baisakhi — meaning the New Year — was celebrated over the weekend by more than 1,000 Sikhs at the East Indian temple on Topaze Avenue.

The majority of worshippers were from Victoria and other major Vancouver Island centres.

In accordance with custom, the 1,400-page Sikh bible was read from cover to cover during the three-day celebrations. Six men took part in the reading which started at 10 a.m. Friday, and ended at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Couple Safe

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Two persons who were missing Saturday on a flight from Vancouver to Harrison Lake in the Fraser Valley were flown to Abbotsford Sunday after they walked 28 miles to a logging camp near Stave Lake. Roland Cartledge of Vancouver was the pilot of a float-equipped Piper Apache forced down on a glacier in mountains north of the Fraseer Valley. He and a passenger, Penny Nelson of Surrey, walked through deep snow to Stave Lake Division of Whonnock Lumber Co.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts this week to:

Kathleen Oliver, 2519 Scott Street, from Frank Oliver, 812 Daffodil Ave. They were married at Victoria in 1948.

Marion A. Haliday, 1847 Crescent Road, Victoria, from Peter J. Haliday, Kinnaird, B.C. They were married at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, in 1960.

B.C. BANK WORKING ON NANAIMO BRANCH

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Bank of British Columbia will open a branch in Nanaimo, Albert E. Hall, the bank's chairman and president, announced today.

Hall said the branch will open in late summer. He said renovations on the building, now occupied by Nanaimo Pharmacy, will begin as soon as plans are completed.

The bank now has four offices: two in Vancouver, one in New Westminster and one in Victoria.

Several other branches are expected to be opened throughout the province before the end of the year, said Mr. Hall.

The Bank of British Columbia, the 10th federal-chartered institution, started operations in July, 1968.
